MYSTERIOUS BURIAL IN UNMARKED GRAVE

Sheriff Bridgman Orders Investigation After 'Strange Story Told With Much Hesitation and Fear to County Police Officers.

(International News Service.)

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 28. — Sheriff George Bridgman tonight ordered an investigation into the reported mysterious burial in an unknown, unmarked grave in the lonely unkept cemetery of the House of David of a former member of the colony.

The body was buried, according to the records, as Mary Kirkham, 68, cause of death apoplexy. The grave will be opened and its secret cleared up according to the deputy sheriff.

The investigation was ordered after Clarence Pullen, with much hesitation and fear, told of the strange discovery of "Mary Kirkham's" body to deputy sheriffs who went to Crystal Springs to investigate the whispered stories which reached the ears of the sheriff.

On August 4, 1921, the sexton of Crystal Springs was asked by F. H. Martini, undertaker for the House of David, to prepare a grave. He gave the death certificate to the sexton, saying that "Mary Kirkham, an inmate of the House of David, aged 68, died from apoplexy."

Was Assistant Sexton.

At that time Pullen was acting as assistant to the sexton and took charge of the burial.

"When I was putting the casket in the rough box, the lid fell off," Pullen said, according to a deputy sheriff. "Then I saw a paper bag

Measure Over Which Solons Spent Much Time Finally Expires.

The upper house stepped on one of Governor's Bryan's bills, H. R. 624, which had been somewhat decorated in the lower branch. It placed gathering and publication of agriculture, statistics, and also facts in regard to farm and city renters, with the state fair board instead of the agriculture department.

The twelve votes for the measure were cast by Banning, Barr, Chambers, Cooper, Illian, Kroh, Meacham, McGowan, Osborne, Purcell, Rickard and Shellenbarger. Fries, Reinfenrath and Thielen of the minority side voted against it.

INDUSTRIALISTS DRAW NEW PLAN

Coal, Iron and Steel Barons Ready to Back Reparations Scheme.

Willing to Resume Deliveries of Materials Stopped When Ruhr Occupied.

(Copyright, 1923, by International News Service.)

BERLIN, April 28.—It was learned from an authoritative source tonight that an executive committee, representing the mos powerful industrial interests in Germany, at a secret session has worked out the basis for the new reparations proposals which Germany is expected to make to the allies soon.

The industrialists, it is understood, have signified their willingness to sign the guarantees to be offered by the German government to the allied powers. This is the first time the German industrialists will act as co-signatories to a reparations offer.

The chief feature of this "basis" worked out by the industrialists is an offer to resume deliveries of materials which stopped when the French and Belgian armies occupied the Ruhr. There was a long debate over the question of offering a definite sum of money. A majority of the committee, including the losses sustained through the loss of the Ruhr coal mines made it impossible to fulfill such a pledge. No figure was decided upon, but it is probable that if such a sum is stipulated it will be twenty billion gold marks or approximately $5,000,000,000.

CONTINUE CHEST CANVASS MONDAY

Workers Not to Stop Until $100,000 Community Fund Is Scheduled.

Now 7,300 Subscribers But Size of Donations Shows Falling Off.

The following statement was issued by the committee in charge of the Community Chest campaign Saturday evening:

"The Community Chest is going through the same experience in Lincoln had, has occurred in many other of the one hundred and sixteen cities now operating under this system. The desire of those citizens who proposed the combination of the twelve drives into one was to spread the burden of maintaining these social agencies over a large number of subscribers than had bretofore given to any one agency. Already the subsciptions number more than 7300. There is a notable falling off of amounts given per subscriber. Where heretofore this number of subscribers would have fully covered the modest total necessary for Lincoln, but due solely to the decreased size of the subscriptions, there still remains about $20,000 to be raised.

"Many citizens have reduced their subscriptions to amounts far below the total of their past pledges. This simply means that new pledge are absorbed in taking up this falling off.

"The lines of workers are being re-formed and cards carefully checked to determine who have been ovrlooked or who have undersubscribed, and the workers will continue until the necessary funds are raised.

"The undersigned realize that Lincoln has never failed to do its full duty. It is imperative that our agencies be on a sound financial basis, and we request that each person or firm who has not given at all or not given adequately will either send in his subscription or be prepared to receive a call from the committee on Monday, so that the canvass may be completed and the workers, who are all volunteers may be released."

NEW TRIAL ASKED BY MRS. STOCKER

Gives Twenty-One Reasons for a Rehearing of $50,000 Alienation Suit.

Says Jury Disregarded Court's Instructions and Evidence Insufficient.

Twenty-one reasons are included in a motion filed in district court Saturday on behalf of Mrs. Harriet Socker for a new trial of the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought against Mrs. Stocker by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Gussie E. Stocker, who Friday was awarded the record judgment of $33,333.34.

One of the reasons upon which the claim for a new trial is based is that the jury disregarded instruction number eleven as given by the court. It states that although the jury might find from the evidence that the younger Mrs. Stocker and her mother-in-law quarreled and were unable to live together amicably and although the elder Mrs. Stocker was entirely to blame in bringing on such quarrels and was entirely to blame in her treatment of her daughter-in-law it was still not enough toentitle the younger Mrs. Stocker to recover, but in addition thereto she must have established that the acts and conduct of her mother-in-law were maliciously done for the purpose of alienating the affections of the plaintiff's husband and that said acts and conduct had that effect.

It is also claimed that the verdict was contrary to law and was not supported by evidence; that the amount is excessive and appeared to have been rendered under the influence of passion and prejudice. It is further claimed the court erred in refusing to give instructions requested on behalf of the elder Mrs. Stocker.

Emery was brought to Lincoln Saturday from Des Moines by Deputy Sheriff H. W. Craig.

Petition for Divorce.—Pearl McCaughey brought suit in district court here Saturday for divorce from Clarence McCaughey. They were married at Luverne, Minn., October 15, 1915, and have three children whose custody are sought by Mrs. McCaughey. Extreme cruelty and non-suport are charged. Mrs. McCaughey states her husband struck her, called her vile names and on April 12 forced her and their children to leave their home in Lincoln. She asks $100 a month alimony.

Held For Investigation—A man and woman, giving the names of Elizabeth A. Nolan and F. A. Barton, were arrested Saturday afternoon by the police and are being held at the city jail for investigation. According to Captain Walter Anderson they will be questioned concerning a number of certified cashier's checks on a Chicago bank which are alleged to have been found in their possession. No charges had been filed Saturday night.

Tourist Season On.—Many tourists who intended to make early trips have called at the touring bureau of the Lincoln Automobile club during the past week. The bureau has just contracted with the Custer Battlefield highway to furnish the local bureau with road information, maps, register and other general information on this route to the Yellowstone, Black Hills, and Glacier park. This enables the club to give more accurate information to tourists who desire to travel this route. The new club house at the Saltillo camping grounds will be completed during the coming week.

Faces Second Charge. — Directly on the heels of a no fund check charge of which he had just cleared himself, came a second no fund check charge against W. J. Emdy in Justice W. A. Hawes' court Saturday. The latter complaint charged Emdy with issuing a $10 check on the Continental State bank on March 5 to the Consumers Coal company. He pleaded not guilty to his charge and his case was continued until May 5. He was released on a $200 bond. Saturday morning he pleaded guilty to writing a $5 no fund check and was fined $5 and costs in addition to paying the check.

BUSINESS EXPERT WILL SPEAK HERE

Irving S. Paull to Talk at Chamber of Commerce May 4.

To Discuss Facts and Figures Revealed In Federal Probe.

Two years ago when the cost of living was at its peeak, a storm of indignation swept the country and broke over congress. The farmers had been caught in an unprecedented predicament and the national representatives set out to find why. The results, hearings and investigations of the congressional agricultural inqeiry will be told in Lincoln this week by Irving S. Paull who was retained to direct the investigation and was given power to compel the production of facts and figures that would shed light on the industrial condition of the nation. Mr. Paull is regarded as one of the country's leading business alajyst.

The investigation followed general discontentment when bankers were accused of conspiring to restrict the farm credits; railroads were charged with taking excessive rates; manufacturers, jobbers and retailers were branded as profiteers; and labor in turn was accused of a variety of crimes. Congress, reaelizing that the farmers were paying top prices for everything they bought and receiving lowest prices for his products, instituted the inquiry.

After many months of work with a large staff ender Mr. Paull's direction, the committee sorted and compiled facts from thousands of sources and finally decided to adopt a policy of public education.

Mr. Paull's visit to Lincoln, May 4 is a part of the campaign. He is now engaged in a speaking tour of the principal cities of the country and comes to Lincoln under the auspices of the chamber of commerce.

At 10 a. m. Mr. Paull will speak before the students of the college of business administration of the state university. At noon he will address the Kiwanis club. In the afternoon he is to lead a discussion by business men at the chamber of commerce.

The most important meeting of all comes Friday evening when he will speak at the city auditoriem under the auspices of the Women's clubs on the subject "Where the Consumer's Dollar Goes."

DEFERS ACTION ON RESOLUTION

Capitol Architect Question to Be Taken Up Again Monday.

Speaker Mathers Calls On All Members to Be Present For Windup.

Discussion of the pending resolution asking the state capitol commission to cancel its contract with Architect B. G. Goodhue was interrupted in the representative diet Saturday afternoon by a motion to adjourn until Monday at 9 a. m., which carried by the close vote of 26 to 25.

Mr. Gilmore spoke for the resolution, asserting that the capitol commission itself had shown its loss of confidence in the architect by designating State Engineer Cochran to oversee the building operations on the new capitol hereafter. He suggested that there are good architects in Nebraska who are competent to finish the edifice.

The motion by Mr. Hughes to defer action until Tuesday was withdrawn, which left the architect question as unfinished business to be taken up again Monday.

Members Notified to Attend.

Speaker Mathers served notice on all members present that they would be expected in their seats Monday, and he handed a written request, signed by himself, to Chief Clerk Corrick asking the latter to wire all absent members to the same effect.

Mr. Orr of Burt county left Saturday for his home at Lyons, and will not be called back. He has been ill for several days and is too weak to resume his legislative duties.

Oil Inspection Bill Passed.

The bill reducing state oil inspection fees from 6 cents to 2 cents per barrel was passed on third reading, 82 to 2. The house concurred in senate amendments to these bills:

H. R. 165—Pertaining to government and management of irrigation districts.

H. R. 147—Three-fifths vote required to carry school bonds in districts having 150 or more pupils.

H. R. 359 — Transferring pupils from one school district to another.

Has Fun With Collins.

A joke resolution congratulating George B. Collins, the youngest house bachelor, on his reported engagement to a popular university girl and praising him as the 'savior of romance" at this legislative session was adopted with a whoop, but an amendment to include Donald Gallagher, another eligible solon, was not put to a vote. The josh on Collins was sponsored by George S. Collins, Elsasser, O'Malley and Quinn.

The house listened to a poetical composition by Ray Pettit, one of the bill room clerks, hitting off the peculiarities of various members. On motion of Mr. Keck, one of the victims, the verses were ordered printed in the house journal.

Cigars and candy were distributed among the legislators with the compliments of ten employes who recently had their pay raised a dollar a day, to date from the time their services began.

UNI. TEACHERS COLLEGE SHOWS MARKED GROWTH

Organization of Department at University Made Fifteen Years Ago.

Registration Has Doubled In Past Two Years; Now Is 763.

Fifteen years ago this month former Chancellor Andrews of the University of Nebraska announced the organization of Teachers college. Official action by the board of regents on February 14, 1908, transformed the department of education in the college of arts and sciences into a Teachers college. This action was made legal by an act of the legislature in 1919, but it was not until the 1921-1922 year that the college functioned as an autonomous institution within the university.

The college has grown from a faculty of four or five and an enrollment of about 300 when the department of education existed, to a faculty of forty-six and a registration of 763 the second semester this year. In the past two years the registration has grown from 472 to the present total. Only fifteen were graduated from the college last year; this year the senior class numbers more than eighty-five and the graduating class of next year promises to be more than a hundred.

Double registration was necessary until the spring of 1921 when the regents gave Teachers college the right to confer degrees. Previous to that, students were registered in both the arts and sciences and Teachers colleges, the former granting degrees and the latter certificates. In addition to granting the bachelor of science in education degree, the college was empowered in April 1922 to confer the bachelor of science and bachelor of arts degrees. At the same time the faculty was organized and Dean W. E. Sealock made head of the college.

Organization is Complete.

The college is organized along the same lines as are the educational departments of leading universities in the country. Without doubt this plan will stay and make its influence felt upon the task of preparing young men and women for the teaching profession.

In addition to this, a definite program for fitting men and women for positions in the field of administration and supervision of education as well as for positions in colleges and normal schools hase been operative for some years. The college is a professional institution.

The board of regents, seeing the need for a building set apart for training teachers, authorized the erection of a building, which was occupied in the fall of 1919. Previous to that classes were taught in various buildings on the camypus. The new building and equipment are modern in every respect and make efficient work possible. The college also houses the Teachers College high school with its fully equipped departments for teaching secondary work. The high school has an enrollment of about 175. Students who expect to teach in high schools are given training in this secondary department, and those who expect to teach kindergarten and elementary education cadet in Lincoln schools under supervision.

Chancellor Samuel Avery quotes former Chancellor Andrews in the April issue of the University Journal, in connection with his announcement of the organiaztion of Teachers college. Chancellor Andrews said, "The department of education is erected into a teachers' college, the aim of which shall be, while dealing with the history, theory, and practice of teaching generally at the department of education has heretofore done, to improve the quality of the teaching in the secondary schools in particular and to provide thoroughly prepared teachers for said schools." The college, however, did not grow as fast as Chancellor Andrews expected when he said, "It is confidently predicted that within ten years from the date of establishment of the teachers college, the university will be training at least 1,000 prospective teachers."

University Notes

Letters were issued this week from the Wesleyan campus to the alumni with ballots for the annual election of officers. The committee on nomination was composed of Prof. W. G. Bishop, Mrs. Edna Higgins Perrin and Miss Mary Lobb. They have suggested the following candidates upon whom a vote by mail will be taken.

President, John Aikman, '17, Ethel McAfee, '11; vice president, Earl L. Hunter, '12; Edna Thomas Nigh, '13; secretary-treasurer, Gladys Coatman, '19; Loren N. Mills, '12; historian, Helen Gruver, '14; Winifred Haskell Mattley, '08; trustee, A. O. Hinson, '96; Don R. Leech, '11.

Announcement has been made that the annual alumni business meeting will be held in the Epworth League room of the First M. E. church of University Place at 5:30 p. m., Monday evening, May 28. The alumni banquet will im mediately follow in the dining rooms. The main event at the banquet will be an address by Dr. Clark A. Fulmer, '98. The honor class of this spring is that of 1898. Reunions are being planned by these classes: 1893, 1903, 1908, 1913, 1918 and 1922.

The pageant written and directed by Prof. May Hopper will be given on the afternoon of Monday, May 28. This was most successfully presented a year ago and deals with the history of Nebraska Wesleyan.

Revisions and additions have been made.

The superintendent of schools at Winnetoon, H. P. Anderson, has asked Wesleyan to supply the commencement speaker this spring.

University Student of Today Is Not Fastidious When Part Time Employment Is Offered

When the delivery boy deposits his load on the kitchen table, best not shriek at him, "Say, ain't you got them canned things I ordered." He may overwhelm you with the remark, in a most dignified manner, of course, "No, madame, I haven't the tomatoes and corn. Those brands you ordered were not in stock."

He's probably a university student—a future Ph. D., finding a fair means toward potential honors by bringing shoes and sealing wax and short ribs to waiting housewives.

Gone are days when all the ambitious youths worked their way through university waiting on tables or coaxing furnaces to burn. The old and tried means have not been discarded, but many new, and unusual ones have taken their places.

Several Demonstrate Radio.

Sevral students now enrolled at the university are demonstrating radio in different stores—not so differeht, but a means to financial assistance that the student of '16 or '17 or '18 could not have enjoyed. A few who scoff at superstition and scorn such feminine things as nerves have elected to achieve a degree with the money obtained by working in undertaking parlors. A couple of the boys have a pleasant sort of job, that of chauffeuring stately touring cars for their plutocratic owners.

Tom Sawyer's cousin must be somewhere in the university—although he has probably arranged a more valuable reward than a little leisur and a red apple. This enterprizing individual took the contract to paint a house ,and so alluring was the picture he gave of his work that he was able to secure a whole corps of student painters for his aid. Several of the students in the department of business administration are helping the wealthy afflicted who are burdened with income tax blanks to return.

Some of the boys have part time jobs as mechanics, and one runs a lathe. Money has rolled in for a few who sorted potatoes. Windows shine after the degree seeker has applied a little chamois and water and some of the most cleverly worded and well planned show cards in the store windows are the work of the student ambitious. One boy, and only one, earns a part of his university expenses by posing for the life class in the art gallery.

Deliver Hand Bills.

The athletically inclined have contracts with several Lincoln stores to distribute hand bills each Saturday or some afternoon during the week. Driving delivery wagons or trucks is quite the vogue—rather pleasant to go rattling about the town and not so arduous that it tires a person for study in the later evening.

The university Y. M. C. A., through which the majority of these men are placed in temporary or permannt positions, has found that 1,050 men have bn placd during the current school year. This number has earned $31,000 in that time, but that amount is but a part of the total amount the men have earned. When a man applies for a temporary position, he often secure a permanent place, and the amount of his earnings is not known, for he never returns to the Y seeking work.

Choosing an Executor for Your Will

You have, in the past two months, had opportunity to study somewhat the problem of how to direct what shall be done with your property after you no longer need it. We have dealt with "Your Property," "Laws of Descent and Distribution," "Making Your Will," (four talks) "Choosing the Executor of Your Will," "Some Duties Your Executor Must Perform" and "The Oldest Will in the World" in our advertisements appearing each week in the Lincoln Sunday newspapers.

It is not absolutely necessary for you to choose an Executor to carry out the provisions of your will, for the County Court will appoint an "Executor with the Will annexed" if you fail to express your choice. But if it is desirable for you to make your Will instead of allowing th elaws of descent and distribution to take their course, it is equally desirable for you to choose the person to administer it.

In making this choice, it will be well if you hold sentiment in check with reason and common sense. It is the most human thing in the world to name your wife as Executrix. But have you thought what a burden you have placed upon her right at a time when she will be overwhelmed with sorrow? Have you considered the Federal and State inheritance taxes? And the dozens of acts which require a knowledge of accounting, real estate values, investment, marketing, and other business

Choosing your nearest and dearest male friend is hardly less faulty. If he is a successful and responsible man, he has business troubles of his own to look after. If he is free of business cares of his own, the chances are he will not be competent to handle your estate in the best manner.

Lincoln Trust Company, since the law of 1911 was enacted, has served as Executor of a good many Wills, settling the estates promptly and impartially without becoming involved in family disputes. As Trustee it is now handling a number of fairly large estates with very little friction and "no fuss and feathers." For Lincoln Trust Company makes such duties a part of its regiar busiuness.

The advantages of having a Trust Company act as Executor of your Will have been told many times, but they will bear repetition.

(a) Its financial responsibility is much greater than that of the average individual Executor; and it is constantly under supervision of the Department of Trade and Commerce, thorough examinations being made every year. A deposit of sound securities with the Department adds to the safety.

(b) A Trust Company has continuous existence. It does not get sick or die, go on vacations, become insane, or smashed up in an automobile accident. Its officers and staff are mortal, of course, but the corporation—the Trust Company—is not.

(c) The accumulated experience of those who do the Trust Company's work in Probate Court is not to be considered lightly. Few individual Executors ever settle more than one estate.

(d) Trust Company officials are usually better able to invest funds, sell property, and transact business than an Executor chosen purely on sentimental grounds.

(e) The Trust Company will not entertain prejudice or take part in family feuds or discords.

(f) And the outstanding reason is that this Trust Company service costs no more than if performed by an individual Executor—and often relatively costs considerably less.

Our Trust Officers will be glad to talk over with you these matters. You will incur no obligation you do not wish to incur. Ask for free booklet, "Safeguarding Your Family's Future."

Our Capital and Surplus

¶ Mean strength and safety. The two words spell responsibility to you.

¶ A striking example: Under your will a private executor must give bond. As your executor this institution is not required to give bond. The court accepts our capital and surplus and state supervision as a proper guaranty.

"Cubb" Is Back Again In the Harness

This is the story of a dog. It is not about a blue ribbon dog who has won so many medals he can't carry them. It is not about a cute little Pomeranian dog that cuddles up in its mistress' lap or about a masterful Belgian dog. It is just the story of an ordinary scrub who had had a dog's luck.

"Cubb is the name thatEvan Tapley gave him when as a little pup separated from his mother and brothers and sisters he came to live in Evan's home. But Cubb didn't mind being an orphan for he had plenty to interest him in his new home. He did not mind being a scrub either, for he was intelligent and good looking, and what more could any dog want?

That was about two and a half yeare ago when Evn became his master. For a time he frolicked away his days in the perfect freedom of puphood, but when he was about a year old his education began. A leather harness was fitted to him and he was hitched to a wgon. At first it was hard for him to control his eager playfulness, but he was a conscientious dog and he realized that his days of puphood were almost over and he must soon assume the responsibilities of a dog. Drawing a wagon-load of Stars was the line of work he would naturally expect to take up since his master was a Star carrier and he took his vocational training as seriously as a good-looking puppy could be expected to take it.

Everything went along smoothly till one day last July an automobile ran over Cubb. Evan took him home and lost no time in getting a skilled physician to attend him. First he went to a physician who lived in the neighborhood, but this physician had never done any work for dogs. So he told Evan of a place where there used to be a veterinarian, who specialized in the ailments of dogs and other pts. This man had moved away, but Evan finaly got trace of a veterinarian who sometimes cared for dogs.

The veterinarian went to see Cubb who was in great pain, and he found that Cubb had a broken leg but was not inured in other ways.

Cubb had been in great pain and he heroically submitted to chloroform. When he awoke his leg was stiff and heavy and still in pain. Even if he was only a scrub he was just as intelligent as any other dog and he summoned all the intelligence at his command to determine what had been done to his leg. But Cubb had never seen inside a science book and it is doubtful whether he was able to fathom the mysteries of science which enabled the veterinarian to put wires in the bone and fasten them with screws to hold the bone together until it knit. Ane he probably did not quite unterstant the purpose of the plaster of Paris cast. But the human race so far as he knew it had been good to him and he placed full confidence in the veterinarian and especially in his young master. Some time later the cast was removed and another put on. After tht was removed he was kept tied up for a long time so that he would not run around.

It was only recently that he was allowed to "get into the harness" again, but now he is back on the job and frisking around as though he had never had a broken leg. He doesn't go every day, but when he is allowed to make the trip he considers it a special pleasure. And no doubt the people on his route who knew of his misfortune are glad to see him about again.

EFFORT TO BOOST LINCOLN SCHOOL TAX LIMIT FAILS

Lower House Refuses to Accept Senate Amendment to Board's Bill.

Eleventh Hour Change Would Give Opportunity of Raising Levy.

An eleventh hour move to raise the limit of school tax in Lincoln to 20 mills—it is now fixed by law at $1,200,000, equivalent to 13 1-4 mills on the present valuation—was frustrated in the lower branch of the legislature Saturday afternoon. The members from rural territory helped to kill the proposition.

The senate amended H. R. 622, the Lincoln school board's bill, so as to increase the limit to 20 mills when the board should submit the question to the people of the district and they should approve it by majority vote. One of the board members had asked Senator Anderson to offer an amendment providing for an increase.

Originally Fifteen Mills.

As originally drawn by the board's attorney, and introduced in the house the measure carried a 15-mill tax provision. This was cut out before its passage by the lower chamber, leaving only some minor changes in the law relative to refunding school bond and other matters.

Upon the reappearance of H. R. 622 with a 20-mill tax clause engrafted upon it, Mr. Otterman began to ask some questions about it. He said it did not look to him as though the taxpayers of Lincoln were getting exactly a square deal.

"I'm against anything that will raise the taxes of Lincoln people," declared Mr. Colman.

"Nobody but the school board ever appeared before the committee on education asking for the passage of this bill," asserted Mr. O'Gara. "We heard from a good many taxpayers who were against it."

Mr. Davis (Cass) corroborated Mr. O'Gara's statement, saying that all the Lincoln school patrons he had talked with wanted the law left as it now is.

The bill was defended by Ralph Wilson, one of its introducers. J. Reid Green said he had been opposed to any flat increase in the tax levy, but was willing to have it decided by vote of the people. He told the house that the Lancaster delegation had spent about half its time during the legislative session trying to fix up something which would satisfy the school board without infringing on the rights of the people.

"I am against this bill because this house has voted against allowing any other school district in Nebraska to levy as high as 20 mills," announced Mr. Kendall.

Lancaster Delegation Split.

Messrs Green, Harrington and Wilson of the Lancaster delegation voted to accept the senate amendment. The other three members, Messrs. Dennis, Egger and Jacoby, voted to reject it—and send the bill to conference. The total vote was 21 for the amendment and 47 against.

Speaker Mathers appointed Messrs. Green, Dennis and Johnson as a conference committee on H. R. 622. The three members indicated that they would ask the senate to recede from its amendment and leave the bill in the same shape it was when passed by the house.

On the senate conference committee, Senators Anderson, Warner and Barr were appointed.

The committees will meet Monday morning to decide on their recommendations.

PREPARE WAR ON LIQUOR VIOLATORS

Federal Government Drafts Plan For Finishing Drive On Booze Peddlers.

Scheme Would Permit Aid of Entire Land and Naval Forces.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The federal government tonight prepared to concentrate its might in a finish ing blow at violators of the prohibition law on land and sea to drive them forever out of business and drive into the public conscience the knowledge that prohibition is a fact, not a joke.

If the government succeeds in its ambitious plan of drastic law enforcement, within a few months, whiskey, now sold legally by thousands of barrels, will be as scarce a opium and those who peddle it will be classed with drug venders and other social outcasts. If the public can be taught so to regard them, half the battle of enforcement will be won, officials here tonight declared.

A manifold drafted by administration officials may include the declaration that rum running and bootlegging constitute an "unlawful procedure."

Would Call Out Army.

Such a step would enable the president to order the whole military and naval forces of the government into action, if necessary.

Administration officials believe that a show of determination by the federal government in enforcing the law would speedily sober the public mind and the prevalent disposition to take the "Volstead act as a joke."

The administrations program contemplates moving swiftly against bootleggers and rum runners as soon as the justice department returns a favorable ruling on the power of the president to use the army and navy in prohibition enforcement.

NO RESPONSE TO DE VALERA MOVE

Free Staters Await Reaction From Republican Leader's Armistice Offer.

(International News Service.)

DUBLIN, April 28.—Free State military headquarters took vigorous precautionary measures tonight to cope with week-end attacks by republican irregulars in Dublin and elsewhere. Despite Eamonn de Valera's offer of an armistice, effective at noon Monday, Free State troops continue to round up the irregulars throughout the western counties. Many captures were made during the day.

So far the Free State government has not responded to De Valera's pease offer. Free State officials are inclined to wait until the last minute to ascertain the general reaction to De Valera's offer on the part of the public at large. Opinion is prevalent in many quarters that the irregulars will grasp the De Valera proclamation as evidence of defeat and will voluntarily give up their arms, pledging their loyalty to the Dublin government.

De Valera's proclamation is regarded as tantamount to admission that his office of "president of the Irish republic" is empty and void.

TO RENEW FIGHT AGAINST TRIBUNAL

Senatorial Opposition to the World Court Not Silenced By Harding's Challenge.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—An unremitting campaign against President Harding's world court proposal will be carried on by republican senators who for a time threatened an open party breach over the issue.

Silenced and driven under cover by Mr. Harding's bold challenge to them, the republicans have not abated their hostilities toward the court idea. They still hold it an entangling step and are unsatisfied about the British six votes to America's one in election of judges.

A report circulated today that the British government had informed the United States it would accept a senatorial reservation providing that if this government had only one vote in the election the British empire should also have but one, was declared at the state department and the British embassy to be wholly without foundation.

British willingness to accept almost and reasonable terms the United States might propose has always been well known, it was stated

NEW OUTBREAKS IN GRAPE REGION

Second Clash Within Week Between Raisin Growers And Armenians.

(International News Service.)

FRESNO, Cal., April 28—Serious trouble is feared in the raisin belt tonight as a result of the second clash between white grape growers and Armenians within a week.

The Armenians are alleged to have refused to sign co-operative crop contracts. Walter Osterhoudt is lying dangerously wounded tonight in a Fowler hospital, while Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Torosian, Armenians are held without bail, charged with the shooting which occurred early today when a large committee of white growers surrounded the home of G. A. Kukuligian, an Armenian grape grower, in an effort to force his signature.

A mass meeting of Monmouth citizens has been called for Monday night to discuss a course of action against the Armenians.

FEEL CLARA FAR FROM CAPTURED

Officials Apprehensive Lest "Red Tape" Delay Extradition of "Tiger Woman."

LOS ANGELES, Cal. April 28.—Clara Phillips is far from captured. That was the opinion of the sheriff's office tonight. Reports that the supposed "tiger woman" held at Tegulgatpa Honduras, had performed a quick shift from her original alias of Mrs. R. M. Young to that of Mrs. Jesse Carson, left the matter of extradition in the air tonight.

Extradition papers, which have been rushed through and are on their way to Washington, ask for the arrest and extradition of "Mrs. R. M. Young," on the ground that she is Clara Phillips.

It may now be necessary for the state department to go through the red tape of returning the papers to the governor's office for alteration, it was reported at the sheriff's office. No action will be taken in this direction however until word is received from Washington.

Consul general Rodriguez of Honduras declared tonight that he could not say what action his government would take in the situation.

MAKE FIGHT TO ESCAPE PRISON

Eighteen Gary, Indiana, Men Sentenced to Jail File Appeal Motions.

(United Press.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 28.—Motions of appeal to the federal district court of appeals at Chicago were filed late today by Mayor Roswell Johnson and seventeen others of the fifty-two persons denied new trials and sentenced by Judge Geiger in the Calument court on conspiracy charge.

Judge Geiger today sentenced Johnson to a year and six months in prison and fined him $1,000. This was the highest penalty inflicted in the individual sentences. The lowest was one day in jail. New trials for three were ordered.

Included in those who appealed are Dwight Kinder, Lake county prosecutor, Clyde Hunter, former Lake county prosecutor and Lewis E. Barnes, former sheriff.

The eighteen were released on bond.

Homer R. Elliott, United States district attorney declared when the motions for appeal were made that the government is ready to fight the case as long as there is a single defendant, "with a show of scrap left."

Outlook Optimistic Despite Buying Slump Reported in Some Sections.

News From Industrial Centers Encouraging—Earnings in Steel Increases.

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 28.—A rise in prices along with wage increases has resulted in a buying slump in some parts of the country, according to reports from mercantile interests today. However, the federal reserve board contends that business in general continues to improve. Encouraging news came from industrial centers. The United States steel corporation reported a tremendous increase in earnings. The Central Leather company reports net profits of $2,463,995 for the first quarter of the year against $950,271 for the same period of last year. The surplus of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad has jumped to nearly $15,000,000.

The average price of twenty representative industrial issues on New York stock exchange was 101.16 against 101.38 last week and 92.76 this last year. Average prices of twenty representative railway issues was 86.52 against 87.37 last week and 84.40 this week last year.

Bank Clearings Higher

Bank clearings of the entire country this week were estimated at $9,753,953,436, compared with $7,983,905,908 the previous week and $7,452,475,964, this week last year.

The rate on money for call loans in New York averaged from 6 to 4 1-2 per cent this week. Ninety day loans were made at 5 1-2 per cent.

Bradstreet's reported 385 commercial failures this week, compared with 386 last week, and 500 this week last year.

Cotton Prospects Good.

Renewed buying by trade interests improved the tone of the cotton market. There are prospects that the acreage for the new crop will be increased. The amount of the crop brought into sight this week was 115,584 bales against 107,573 bales the week before, and 135,900 bales this week last year. The week's exports totalled 30,304 bales against 64,448 bales the previous week and 96,156 bales this week last year.

The visible supply of American cotton is 1,887,890 bales against 2,017,908 bales last week and 3,398,909 bales this week last year.

There has been heavy unloading of wheat due mainly to rains in the southwest but despite this pressure the price has fallen off only four or five cents.

Grain Prices Rally.

Both wheat and corn prices were irregular earlier in the week, but rallied. There was an increase of 119,000 bushels in the visible supply of American wheat and a decrease fo 2,274,000 bushels in the visible supply of American corn.

The grain market finished this week where it began. It lost most of the gain after having attained new high prices for wheat this season. The reaction followed extensive profit taking sales. Some of the larger longs here took their profits. The amount fo wheat thrown into the market was too great to be assimilated readily.

SESSION MAY END TUESDAY

normals be reduced proportionately to the state university and to various institutions and departments.

There is a considerable sentiment in the house, as well as in the senate, that the normals should stand their share of the reduction, and unless the conference committee so decide their report may be upset in the lower chamber and a new committee appointed to represent it.

The conferees were reported Saturday afternoon as having virtually agreed on these items:

Giving the national guard back the $30,000 for general support which the senate cut off, making its allowance for that purpose $130,000.

Allowing the railway commission $50,000 additional to the governor's budget.

Retaining $50,000 for the state fair, as provided in a senate amendment.

Appropriating $100,000 for the Missouri river brdige at Yankton, S. D., to connect with the Meridian highway through Nebraska.

Cuts made by the senate in salaries and wages for employes in the various state offices, except the railwway commission, are opposed by the house conferees, and the senate committee may yield as to them.

Senators Reed, Anderson and Purcell represent the senate in the conference on H. R. 672, while the house committee comprises Messrs. Mears, Burks and C. L. Yochum.

Mixing Up New Code Dish.

Other congerence committees were appointed Saturday afternoon to patch up an agreement on the much amended code revision bill, H. R. 537, originally known as the Dysart Mathers bill, for which the senate substituted its Reed-Hastings bill. Messrs. Dysart, Garber and Densmore were named for the house and Senators Hastings, Allen and Warner for the senate.

It was understood Saturday evening that the code conferees had framed up this revised plan to be laid before the two branches for approval Monday:

1. Appointive code secretaries abolished, leaving the governor no option of naming them.
2. Distribution to the six code departments made to the following elective state officers: Governor, finance; lieutenant governor, agriculture; secretary of state, labor; land commissioner, public works; treasurer, trade and commerce; state superintendent, public welfare.
3. Allowing the lieutenant governor $2,500 a year additional salary for administering agriculture department; but providing that all other department heads shall serve without additional salary.

This scheme is a compromise between the house and senate bills. If the republicans can muster enough votes to pass it in the house, it will go to the ogvernor to be signed or vetoed. The general expectation is that he will veto it, although the republicans claim it is a literal fulfillment of the decomratic platform plank in the late campaign. The bill could not be repassed over Governor Bryan's veto without democratic votes.

Mathers Is Satisfied.

Speaker Mathers, who fathered the proposal to have elective state officials take charge of code departments and administer them, said that he would be well satisfied with a bill embodying the provisions above enumerated. He commented as follows:

While I am not officially informed as to what the conclusions of the conference committees on H. R. 537, the code modification bill, may be, I have every reason to believe that the compromise it is working out will prove satisfactory.

"Personally, my effort has been, throughout this entire code revision controversy, to place the regrouped code departments under the elected state officials. This is a fundamentally correct principle of government and is so generally acceptable to the people of Nebraska that I feel certain the conference committees will roeemmend and the senate and house will approve such a plan.

"At least, I am delighted with the prospect and hope that the governor, in his wisdom, will attach his signature to a bill of this kind when it reaches him."

The state officers' salary bill, which was amended by the senate to provide for six code secretaries at $5,000 a year each, or a total of $60,000 for two years, will have that item stricken out and one carrying $5,000 for the biennial salary of the lieutenant governor inserted.

STATESMAN IS CALLED WHILE ENROUTE HOME

was removed from the train here at 10:30 p. m. Dr. J. H. Kleider, coroner, received the body, and started an examination to determine the exact cause of death. After being embalmed, the remains will be sent on to Minnesota.

Was Picturesque Figure.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 28. — The death of Knute Nelson, senator from Minnesota, removed one of the most picturesque figures from American political life.

One of the republican partys oldest statesmen, Nelson had served in the senate for twenty-eight years. He was the oldest senator in age and the second oldest in point of service.

Nelson was chairman of the senate's powerful judiciary committee. He was an authority on law and one of the senate's best parliamentarians.

Was 80 Years Old.

Eighty years old last February 2, Nelson topped all other senators in age and his service in the senate, starting on March 4, 1895, ranked second only to that of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader.

He was born in Norway, February 2, 1843 and came to the United States in July, 1849.

Senator Nelson left Washington on a Pennsylvania railroad train early tonight en route to his home in Alexandria, Minn., to spend the remainder of the congressional recess on a vacation. He seemed in health when he said good bye to his capital friends.

A few hours before his departure, the Minnesot asenator was interviewed by an International News Service correspondent who asked his stand on the world court proposal to President Harding. The senator declared he was "still opposed to all foreign entanglements."

Nelson said he was not yet ready to make his views public.

Doesn5t Look Like Fight.

"Will the republican party be split over the world court proposal?" he was asked. "I don't think so," Nelson replied. "I'm a very old man now and I've watched many a fight here, but this doesn't look like a fight to me. think by the time congress comes back this talk about the world court will be all calmed down. One thing though is certain. The United States is opposed to the league of nations and if they take the league away from the court, it may be a good thing for us to join."

Official and private circles in the national capital were shocked by the sudden death of Senator Nelson.

President Harding and other officials of the government were grieved beyond measure when the news of his death reached Washington.

Deep sorrow was expressed by the president when the news reached the white house.

"Senator Nelson was a stalwart American and performed a great service," Mr. Harding said.

THINKS MURDER DONE BY HOUSE OF DAVID CULT

in the coffin. That surprised me very much. I pulled the sack away from the face and found not an old woman, but a young girl of about sixteen or seventeen years of age. The body was lying face down. I turned the body around and saw that there were blue finger marks about the neck. The face was swollen and dark. I pulled the sack back over the face and closed up the casket."

Wallace will make a report Tuesday to Judge Harry Dingeman, who is investigating affairs of the colony. Other bodies of the House of David will be exhumed, it was reported tonight.

Gives Hansels Compensation.

(United Press.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. April 28. —Federal investigation into activities of the House of David is expected as a result of Judge John E. Sater's decision that the cult and "King" Benjamin Purnell, its ruler are frauds.

The decision filed in federal court here today, awards John and Margaret Hansel, plaintiffs in the suit against "King Benjamin $15000 as recompense for what they donated to the "gathering" when they joined the cult and for their labors and work done by their children during their stay in the colony. The Hansel's asked for $80,000, but Judge Sater declared that was excessive.

Betrayed Young Girls.

In his decision, Judge Sater charged Benjamin with betraying young girls. In commenting upon the "King's" relations with the young women he said:

"That a man may so dominate young girls or mature women as to render them submissive to him, may be doubted or disbelieved by some, but not to a person who knows the details of genuine white slavery laws. In this case the submissive girls received their keep, but in the name of religion they were taught that subjection was a holy rite and insured immortality to their bodies."

The court held that Benjamin alone could refute the charges of immorality brought against him by witnesses, but that he did not and is reported to have disappeared "His absence at this critical period in the life of himself and his colony, when he should have been quick to defend is significant" the judge said.

Assails Attacks On Power of Tribunal

WASHINGTON, April 28. — Attempts to change the present unlimited powers of the United States supreme court were condemned tonight by Secretary of Labor Davis in speaking to the American Society of newspaper editors. Davis declared the "status quo" of the court should be maintained and urged the editors to advocate "less tinkering with the constitution."

Civic Clubs of Lincoln Boost for Opening Day at Landis Field

CIVICS TO BOOST FOR OPENING DAY

Local Clubs Intent On Making State League Inaugural An Event Worth While.

Governor C. W. Bryan and Mayor Frank Zehrung Engaged As Battery.

DOUBLE BASEBALL BILL TODAY.

Two exhibition games are on the program for this afternoon at Landis Field. Lincoln's State league squad will take on the College View team of the City league in a curtrain raiser at 2 p. m., while Ernie Holmes' White Sox of Omaha will oppose the Links in the second game. Manager Buck Beltzer has a new aggregation of Links this Year and today's double bill will give local fans the opportunity to look them over.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Civic clubs of Lincoln have heralded the tidings that Friday, May 4, opening day of the pennant race in the Nebraska State league, shall take rating as a real day in local baseball annals. The Links of Lincoln and the Elkhorns of Norfolk are scheduled to blow off the baseball lid May 4 at Landis Field and live wires of the capital city in civic club circles are intent that the Lincoln inaugural shal set the pace for the entire Nebraska circuit.

Announcement was made Saturday night by Trev Gillaspie, field agent and office manager for the Lincoln Automobile club, that 100 per cent lparticipatetion in the opening day ceebration had been pledged by the following organizations:

Rotary club.
Kiwanis club.
Lions club.
Pathfinders club.
Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.
Lincoln Automobile club.

Worth Lincoln's While.

"Opening day in the Nebraska league comes just once each year," Mr. Gillaspie said, "and it is worth Lincoln's while to make the event one that will reflect credit on Lincoln in every way. Officers of the various civic clubs have pledged one hundred per cent in loyalty to the opening day celebration. The very least that Lincoln can afford to do is to make the capital city baseball inaugural, the biggest and best, from the standpoint of interest and attendance, in the State league."

Definite plans are on foot for an automobile parade by civic club members, business men and fans in advance of the opening day game. Headed by the state band, the paraders will form at the Chamber of Commerce building for a drive through the principal streets to Landis Field. Will Hitchcock has pledged the necessary cars to transport the two ball clubs, with state and city officials, including Governor Bryan and Mayor Zehrung. A program of festivities has been mapped out for the event at the ball park. The governor and mayor will serve as the honorary battery, while prominent civic club members will take stations on the bases or the diamond.

Tender Use of Landis Field.

Owners of the Lincoln club—Beltzer brothers and Charles N. Moon—have manifested their appreciation of the interest displayed by civic organizations in the opening day by offering to build a special clubhouse at Landis Field for the use of civic clubs and inviting the latter to organize teams, staging their games at the local State league park. Club President O. A. Beltzer yesterday forwarded the following letter to Mr. Gillaspie:

Mr. Trev. Gillaspie, City—Dear sir: You may inform the members of the different civic clubs of Lincoln that it is our desire to interest them in baseball and in our local organization. We shall be pleased to build a clubhouse at Landis Field for their use, and our playing field wfill be open to them at any time we are not using it ourselves.

"We hope each organization will have a ball club and that each may have the best one. It will be pleasure to do anything personally, or through the use of Landis Field, to help along these lines. Sincerely yours,

"O. A. BELTZER."

Pair of Games Today.

A double bill of exhibition baseball is on the card for this afternoon at Landis Field, the Links taking on the College View City leaguers at 2 p. m. and later colliding with Ernie Holmes' White Sox of Omaha. The lineup of the Holmes aggregation includes several pastimers well known to Lincoln fans. Harry Williams, with Lincoln's Western league club in 1915, will wear the mask behind the bat, while Shook, former State leaguer at Grand Island, will be on the mound. "Irish" Carrig, with last year's Links, and Srb, ex-Hastings State leaguer, will be in the outfield, while Echtermeier, with Hastings last season, will be at the second sack.

The Lincoln Lineup.

Manager Buck Beltzer last night announced the following Lincoln lineup in the second game with the White Sox:

Catch—Conkey, DeButch, Alley.
Pitch—Eller, Dillon, VanHoutte.
First—McCoy.
Second—Tanner.
Third—Cleveland.
Short—Bondurant, Slattery.
Left—Purdy.
Center—Kinkel.
Right—Hoover.

Manager Buck made use of the pruning knife Saturday night, issuing releases to four Lincoln tryouts—Pitchers Girch and Foster and outfielders Niggeling and Peacock.

SEVEN VALLEYS MEET IS MONDAY

Callaway Meet Booked to Draw More Than 200 High Athletes.

The 1923 track season in Custer county will be formally opened at Callaway Monday with the staging of the annual Seven Valleys meet. More than two hundred athletes have been entered in the meet and as each man is limited to four events and medals are given for five places in each event, competition wil be keen and a crowd of at least two thousand spectators is expected. The meet was postponed from last Thursday.

Teams entered in the senior championships are Farnam, Ansley, Broken Bow, Comstock, Cozad, Callaway, Gothenburg, Kearny, Lexington, Mason City, North Platte, North Loup, Litchfield, Ravenna, Sargent, Elmcreek. In the junior champion ships the following teams will compete: Amherst, Anselmo, Arnold Berwyn, Climax, Eddyville, Gandy, Miller, Overton Stapleton, Sumner, Westerville, Merna and Oconto.

Competition For Callaway.

If Callaway is to repeat its victory of last year in both the senior and junior championships the locals will have to show real class. Gothenburg and Broken Bow look to be the strongest contenders for the senior championships with Kearney, North Platte and Farnam as the nearest rivals.

The 100-yard dash contest will see several high youths in action that are close to ten second performers. This group includes Beal of Broken Bow, Holmes of Gothenburg, Smith and Greenlee of Farnam, Best and Pierce of Callaway, Shaner of North Platte and Donahue of Comstock. The same men will compete in the 220 dash and some fast time is expected in both events.

Field of Quarter-Milers.

The quarter-mile will bring out some speedy men. The entry list includes Ostergard, of Gothenburg, Jaco and Jackson of Broken Bow, Simpson of Ansley, Greenlee and Velte of Farnam and Marrs of Callaway.

For the distance races, Beck of Broken Bow, Simpson of Ansley, Mercer of Mason City, Sterner of Callaway, all look good enough to place. In the hurdles competition will be seen between Karr and Holmes of Gothenburg, Jackson and Nye of Broken Bow, Smith of Farnam, Donahue and Comstock of Comstock, Fochtman and Watkins of Callaway. Cozad and Kearney also have some good hurdlers.

Discus and Shot put.

In the weights, Comstock, Gothenburg, Lexington and Farnam have a number of good men entered. At least six men are entered who will throw the discus over 100 feet and probably more than that number have a record of more than forty feet in the shotput. Shaner of North Platte looks to be the class of the pole vaulters.

Watkins of Callaway has the best mark of the group this season in the high jump, with Whetstone, Farnam boy a close second.

The relay teams that beats Broken Bow will win the race, according to advance dope. Farnam, Kearney, Gothenburg, Sargent and Comstock have good quartets.

The junior championships will be close if present indications mean anything. Arnold, Berwyn, Stapleton, Miller, and Overton will all bring strong teams.

String of Junior Sprinters.

Among the sprinters in the group are Govier, Berwyn; Lindell, Arnold; Pierce, Oconto; Rollings, Miller; Harvey and Schneinger, Callaway. Some of the distance men are Welch, Berrwyn, Downing, Arnold; Chiles, Callaway; Walker, Oconto; Johnson, Stapleton.

In the field events the following are prominent: Govier, McEvoy, Berwyn; Johnson, Stapleton; Lindell, Root, Arnold; Deal, Pinnell, Callaway; Pierce, Walker, Oconto.

The relay race last year was a neck and neck finish between Arnold and Callaway, with the former winning by a yard. Arnold expects to repeat this year.

Hastings College Track Meet Winner

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., April 28—Hastings college won the intercollegiate track meet here today, taking a total of 72 points out of a possible 176 points for which six teams were competing. Rivalry was keen between Doane and Hastings. Doane came next with 57 1-2 points, followed by Grand Island with 17 1-2, Nebraska Central 15, Kearney 12, York 2.

Bryan of Doane was the high point man of the meet, scoring a total of 15 points. Anderson of Hastings was second with 12 points, breaking the school record and unofficially shattering the state record for the half-mile in 2:03 2-5.

BRITISH RUNNERS SEE YANK HEELS

Oxford Team Second to Penn State; Americans Lower World's Record.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Plodding on through a curtain of cold rain that sent chills up the spines and rivulets of water down the backs of forty thousand spectators, four running machines from Penn state college defeated the great Oxford team in the two-mile international relay championship at the Penn relay carnival here this afternoon.

The game Britishers were conquered only after a terrific battle in which they forced the victorious Penn State combination to a new world's record of 7:48 4-5.

Behind the Oxford team and bringing up the rear were Georgetown, Boston college and Pennsylvania.

Today's defeat gave America the edge in the three international events which featured the carnival, the Oxford team having won the medley event yesterday and lost the two-mile race.

Penn State's sensational performance was one of the few features of an afternoon that was ruined by rain which started falling just as the big event started.

Nebraska high school track teams will round the curve and race down the backstretch this week preparatory to the final test at Lincoln, Saturday, May 12, date of the state championship competition.

This is the final windup before the big show and a program crowded with invitation meets and county competition awaits the high school tracksters.

The annual Custer county meet will open the program Wednesday. Track meets in Custer county go over big and Broken Bow is making preparations to entertain a crowd of five thousand people the day of the meet. The athletes will compete in four classes, medals being awarded the athletes winnig places in all the events. Addition of class C, rural schools, has increased the interest. The program for the day calls for field events in the morning and track events in the afternoon.

While the Custer county athletes are competing at Broken Bow, Dawson county athletes will gather at Lexington for their county meet.

Fifteen Highs at Alliance.

Alliance will be the mecca for Western Nebraska athletes Friday, May 4. The western Nebraska interscholastic meet will be the magnet attracting the athletes. Coach F. C. Prince reports an increased interest in the meet with an entry list already reaching fifteen schools. The cancellation, due to unfavorable weather, of the South Platte Valley meet, which was to have been held at Scottsbluff last Friday, will probably increase the interest in the Alliance classic.

Kearney Normal will entertain neighboring high schools at an invitation meet Friday. The Kearney meet always attracts a large field of entries and should furnish some good records.

Saline county tracksters will gather at Crete Friday for the annual Saline county meet.

High school fans will turn their attention to Hastings next Saturday where a large group of athletes will be competing in the annual Hastings college invitation meet. A large number of trophies and medals have been hung up for competition and Coach A. F. Holste is expecting the entry list to exceed that of last year, which was a bumper one for the Hastings college compet.

Athletes from high schools of three states are billed to gather at McCook Saturday for the annual tri-state meet. The competition will include lads from Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

Thayer county athletes will meet at Hebron Saturday.

WREAK REVENGE ON SOONER CLAN

Huskers Get Back at Norman Team; Win Saturday's Game, 4 to 3.

Lewellen's Hurling and Hitting Prime Factor In Victory By Nebraska U.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The University of Nebraska Cornhusker baseball nine got back at Oklahoma Saturday afternoon, defeating the Sooners, 4 to 3.

The Husker performers gave a better account of themselves at bat and in the field than in the Friday tussle with the southerners.

Nebraska fell on two Oklahoma twirlers for ten hits and bunched them in a fashion sufficient to count the necessary runs, rounding out the proceedings in a ninth-inning bombardment which scored the deciding run.

Lewellen Smacks a Homer.

Verne Lewellen, rangy Nebraska hurler, stepped into spotlight in the Saturday game. He supressed four of the gentlemen from Norman on strikes and held the opposition to seven blows.

Lew's best effort, however, came in the third frame. With two men away, Gibbs having been caught asleep off the first station, Lewellen met one of Johnson's fast ones and sent it for a circuit ride, the ball clearing the right centerfield barrier with ten feet to spare.

The Sooners, however, were not to be denied. The fourth frame was their inning, as in the Friday contest, for three Oklahoma runs filtered across in both frames.

Sooners Count Three Runs.

Phillips, first up, partook of the ozone, but Bishop was safe on Smaha's error. He promptly swiped second and reached third when Groom singled. After Groom had sped to second, Johnson singled, scoring Bishop and advancing Groom to third. Groom rode home and Johnson took third on Cornelius' sacrifice. McLaughlin walked. Petty's throw to catch McLaughlin at second was muffed by Volz, and Johnson scurried across the platter with the third run. Briscoe flied to Collins for the third out.

Huskers Knot the Count.

With the outlook somewhat gloomy the Huskers took their turn with the willow. Collins was extinguished, Briscoe to Fox. Russell then bounced one off the second baseman's glove for a single. Volz sent him to third on a one-ply wallop and took second on the play to third, Groom then obliged by a passed ball, Russell scoring and Volz halting at third.

Captain Carman then came to bat. His effort was a grounder to deep short which retired him at first, but enabled Volz to cross the home platter with the second tally. Petty rolled to Johnson for the third out.

Lew and his teammates then tightened up like a base drum on a hot day and allowed the Sooners but three scattered bingles in the five remaining frames.

The ninth inning was filled with thrills. In the Oklahoma side of the controversy, Gibbs sent Groom back to the bench when he scooped up the Oklahoma catcher's grounder and shot the pellet to first. Johnson then singled, his third safe rap of the afternoon. Cornelius flied out to Russell, Johnson holding first.

Long Drive Goes Foul.

With two down and a runner on first, McLaughlin drove the ball out of the lot, but his effort was foul by two yards. It went for a second strike and he looked at the last one for the final out.

Pitcher Durkee then assumed the burden of hurling the slants for the Sooners, relieving Johnson for apparently no reason at all. Carman smacked his first pitched ball for a single. The Nebraska captain took second when Petty hit out another one-baser. Smaha advanced both runners by a neat bunt and Gibbs' hit through the infield sent Carman across the plate with the winning run. The two teams now leading the local amateur baseball circuit are billed to clash in the feature game of the City league doubleheader at Rock Island park this afternoon.

LOADED BALL IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Makers Put More "Hop" In the Sphere; Larruping Records Sure to Tumble.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

(Copyright 1923 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Ten homers the opening day.
Seven the next afternoon.
And then thirteen on the third day.

A total of 30 in three playing days—an average of ten per day.

And all the while a perfect hail of singles, doubles and triples—games in which thirteen, fourteen and fifteen safeties have become the rule rather than the exception.

That's that for baseball of 1923.

What's the reply?

More "Hop" in the Apples.

Can it be anything other than that the manufacturers of the noble diamond apples have "hopped up" the—gosh darned thing more than ever—and that all larruping records are likely to go by the wayside in the season which just has gotten under way?

The sportive world became somewhat aghast when the final figures of 1922 exposed to view the fact that the major league pummellers had maced out something like 1054 circuit swats.

What's going to happen if the athletes of 1923 maintain the ratio established during the first three days of the new campaign, which would make it possible for them to hoist out something like 1,540 four-basers?

Everybody Doing It.

And what'll be the emotion if the boys continue to bang 'em as they've started to bang 'em, which would result in about 25 becoming possessed of .400 averages and everybody else in both leagues smacking for nothing less than .300?

What happens in the inaugural week of combatting isn't always a real tip-off as to what really will transpire through the year. Yet the game which teams play during opening week enable the innocent bystanders to get at least a fair idea of what will transpire before the final "play ball" sounds.

Tough Sledding for Yanks.

So with four good looking ball clubs to give fight to the Yanks, and four to do the same thing to the Giants, the Gotham hope of another private world series looks gloomy—and still more so.

During the snowflake season someone asked Ty Cobb:

"How do you feel about 1923?"

"Well," remarked the "Southern Typhoon," "the old legs arn't quite as good as they were when I was sweet sixteen or blushing twenty-one. But they're still fairly good. And so are the optics. All of which make me feel hopeful that I can do some real stuff through 1923, for I feel that I still have another great year of baseball within me."

Cobb Goes at Dizzy Pace.

If Cobb's showing through the first week of 1923 is any tip-off as to what he'll accomplish throughout the year, then it means that Tyrus Raymond will smash all existing seasonal clubbing marks, and go so far above .400 that it'll require an aeroplane to get close enough to read the exact figures.

The amazing Tiger, usually a slow starter and the type of swatsmith who never gets into full stride until the spring is far advanced, has started off this year with a tornadic rush. He has been hitting almost everything that has been sent up to him and banged the ball with savagery beyond anything he has shown before.

Cobb, like the brook seems able to ripple on forever.

NIPPONESE PLAN TO CAPTURE CUP

(International News Service.)

VICTORIA, B. C., April 28.—Within four years Japan plans to be the holder of the Davis cup, the premier tennis trophy.

Japan reached the final round last year, but suffered defeat at the hands of the American aces, Tilden and Johnston. This year Japan will again appear in the competition, but will have to rely upon the same team that carried its colors in 1922. The Japs do not anticipate victory this year. They realize the strength of the American team.

Builds for the Future.

But Japan is not greatly concerned over the present. It is building for the future.

According to James H. McClain of Tokio, who has arrived here on a visit, the Japanese tennis body has arranged to train its school boys. Courts are being built over the Island empire, and each of the universities with over 1,000 students is expected to turn out at least four brilliant racquet wielders each year.

For the next year or two Japan must depend upon its present stars, "Itchy" Kumagae, Shimidu and Kashio, to carry the burden in the Davis cup competition. These players are respected in all countries where tennis is played for their steady and consistent, if not overbrilliant, game.

Kumagae Tennis Pioneer.

Kumagae, known as "The Father of Tennis" in Japan, is exerting every effort to have the game popularized in his native land, and if the Nipponese succeed in taking the Davis cup across the Pacific they will be forced to place much of the credit at the feet of "Itchy."

The Japanese are playing tennis the whole year. They are endeavoring to master the game with all the pertinacity of their race and are spurred on by the ambition to lift the Davis cup. Within four years the Japs hope to have the trophy and make the challengers cross the Pacific to play for it.

CHANDLER MOTOR HAS ADVANTAGES

Demonstrations Emphasize Its Usefulness to Those Who Drive Carefully.

The advantages to the woman motorist of driving a high powered car are being emphasized in demonstrations by Chandler dealers with cars equipped with the new Pikes Peak motor.

A high powered car ordinarily is associated with the idea of "a man's car." Unthinking motorists simply associate power with speed. As a fact, a reserve of power at instant command is of as much, if not more, advantage to the woman driver as to the man.

This was demonstrated recently in a striking way. A physician buying a car for his wife stated to a Chandler dealer that he wished his wife would become less reluctant to drive the car. She always had hesitated to take a car through city traffic because of the frequent shifting of gears required, and constant need of guarding against stalling the motor.

Stalling a car is what most women seem to dread most, and at the same time they have a reluctance to shift gears. Every woman fears being made conspicuous at a busy street intersection by stalling her car where it will block traffic. The gentle attention given to the stalled car by the traffic policeman does not add any to the fair driver's composure and usually results in a longer delay than would otherwise result. The high-powered Chandler car, with its Pikes Peak motor, can scarcely be made to stall, and is finding favor with women drivers on this account.

Other features of the new Chandler appeal strongly to women, notably its ease of steering, obtained by the use of tapered roller bearings in the steering spindles. This makes the car so much easier to handle while running, and so much easier to place into a restricted parking berth, that a woman driver is put at ease.

Auto Trunk Is Popular Asset To Closed Car

Good evidence of the increasing long-distance use that people today make of their automobiles is to be found in the great popularity of the trunk as part of the regular equipment of the closed touring sedans. Probably no other single accessory has enjoyed such an increase in vogue as has the trunk in recent months, and many automobile men prophesy still greater popularity for it in another year.

"When automobiles were first invented, you couldn't get far enough from home with one to make a trunk necessary," said C. D. Lampert, sales manager of the Nebraska Buick Auto company. "Nowadays, people think no more of a trip to San Francisco than they did of a ten-mile journey fifteen years ago, a trunk becomes a very real necessity. It affords a convenient way of carrying luggage, and avoids the nuisance of strapping cases on the running boards, where they are apt to scratch the body.

"The new Buick touring sedan in both the four and six cylinder models, is one of the models in which the manufacturer has recognized a new demand from the motoring public. It is full five passenger sedan of the conventional seating type and has in the rear, a trunk. It is covered with a composition cloth which makes it dust-proof, and luggage is carried in it to the end of the journey, perfectly safe and clean.

Paige Motor Is Likened to Well Trained Animal

The evolution of the silent Paige motor and its origin has been traced president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car company for highbred animals, back to the love of H. M. Jewett, especially horses and dogs.

Jewett, who in his younger days held several world's records for sprinting and was nationally known for his ability as a runner wearing the colors of the Detroit Athletic club, following his graduation from Notre Dame university, has built the same fleetness into his motor cars.

Quiet dignity, the ear mark of good breeding in animals can be found in the engines of this motor car executive's products.

Mr. Jewett demanded a motor completely silenced, so perfectly balanced that idling at the curb, neither a sound or a tremor would betray its presence. It is claimed Mr. Jewett's engineers not only accomplished this in the Paige but have produced an engine that in action gives one the sensation of effortless motion—another asset in a high bred horse.

In order to have power ready in case of emergency, it is a safe practice to have the motor running when descending a grade.

Maxwell Reaches High Water Mark In Car Shipments

DETROIT, Mich., April 28.—With a shipment of five hundred and forty-eight Maxwell cars Saturday, April 21, all records of the Maxwell Motor corporation for a single day's shipment were smashed, indicating that Maxwell has apparently reached maximum production several months in advance of what is generally considered peak season.

Maxwell's history throughout the winter and spring has been one of continuous activity and it is reported that orders have constantly remained well ahead of production.

Maxwell's increasing business of past months is well reflected in the quarterly statement of the company, that shows a net profit of over one million dollars for the period.

With reference to the record shipment of the 21st, it is also interesting to note that the day's output of five hundred and forty-eight cars represents sixteen more vehicles than were produced and sold by the old Maxwell-Briscoe company in the first full year of manufacturing.

U. S. Rubber Co. Announces New Tire Process

NEW YORK, April 28.—In a statement just issued to stockholders of the United State Rubber company, C. B. Seger, chairman of the board of directors, makes this announcement of a new material perfected for automobile tire manufacture.

"Between cotton cords and pure rubbed latex, there exists a natural absorptive characteristic of the greatest importance to the cord tire manufacturer and the user of cord tires.

"This is the basis of a fundamental development—Web cord.

"Web cord is a rubber-webbed sheet of cotton cords with the filaments of each cord impregnated and surrounded by pure natural rubber. It does away with all cross tie-threads and all other resistants to flexure within the fabric.

Great Expansion Shown by Haynes In Organization

"The tremendous expansion of the Haynes selling organization is indicated by the fact that in the last seven months, fifteen new distributors and thirty-five dealers have been appointed," says Gilbert U. Radoye, director of sales and advertising for the Haynes Automobile company, Kokomo, Ind.

"The placing of new distributors and dealers is rivaled only by the demand for Haynes cars," says Mr. Radoye. "And like the widespread demand, the new Haynes representatives are located in all sections of the United States and Canada, thereby extending the scope of Haynes Merchandising."

Hudson Breaking Production Records

Hudson and Essex are breaking all records for sales and output. From all indications, the 1923 season will be at least 50 per cent more active for them than even the phenomenal year of 1922. And they are setting a new mark for all motordom to shoot at by devoting 75 per cent of their production to enclosed cars—mostly the Hudson and Essex Coaches which have enjoyed so remarkable a reception.

These are the high spots of a statement on business just made public at the Hudson plant in Detroit. Despite the increase in production, the Hudson and Essex plans are to keep the number of body-types to a minimum. In the line will be only seven cars in all—four Hudsons and three Essex cars. These are.

Hudson: Four and seven passenger open cars, Coach and Sedan.

Essex: Five passenger open cars, Cabriolet and Coach.

"The motor car business is becoming much more stabilized," a factory statement declared. "The public is buying cars for utility, thus when a type of car is discovered which is useful to a very great proportion of motorists, it puts one-purpose cars out of the running.

"The national automobile Chamber of Commerce has just completed a questionnaire which it addressed to 20,000 motorists. It discovered that 60 per cent o fthese expressed a definite preference for enclosed cars. Cars are wanted which are useful every day and in all seasons. It is our belief that more than 60 per cent of 1923 buyers will prefer closed cars, and that the trnd toward this type will grow rapidly.

"Our two coaches have now been on the market a year. They have been approved by a discriminating and highly competitive market in the world. Their usefulness is almost universal, and we have every reason to believe that they will continue to merit the approval of the motoring public."

Harley Davidson Club Organizes

Thirty-three Harley-Davidson motorcycle riders met on April 17 and organized a Lincoln branch of the Harley-Davidson Motorcycle club.

Officers were elected and plans laid for a weiner roast and road run. Officers elected were: Wm. Wolff, president; R. L. And Once They Thought The World Was Flat

WHEN Columbus set sail with his little expedition of three ships and eighty-eight men, it was with prophesies that he would disappear over the edge of a flat world.

Now Cole Proves That Automobile Prices Can Be Lowered Without Sacrificing Quality

When Cole conceived and announced the Plan to sell Cole Aero-Eights at a net price instead of a list price, it was as revolutionary an idea as was that of Columbus 531 years ago.

Accustomed to high distribution costs, which have dominated America's third largest industry by an economically unsound practice, many were slow to appreciate the fundamental soundness of the Cole Merchandising Plan.

But in less than 60 days, thanks to the speed of modern thought and news, the public, the press and financial world enthusiastically endorsed the plan.

The Cole Plan has proved that a quality car can be sold at a price never before deemed possible, simply by removing an extravagant waste.

Whether or not you have an old car, remember that Cole saves you from $800 to $1000 by his Merchandising Plan. Consult your local Cole Dealer and let him show you just how this is done.

BEAUTIFY GROUNDS OF COUNTRY CLUB

10,000 Flowers, Shrubs and Trees Form Background for Unadorned Soil.

State's Largest Planting Venture Done by Architect Ernst Herminghaus.

Within the next few weeks there will blossom forth upon what only a year ago was plain, unadorned, weed-covered Nebraska soil a mass of colorful blossoms and flowering bushes and trees, hedge and dainty evergreens will send out little green shoots and leaves. It is all the background for the beautiful new Country club of Lincoln and is the work of Ernst Herminghaus, Lincoln's landscape architect. Ten thousand trees, shrubs and flowers have been collected and planted there under the supervision of Mr. Herminghaus and the transforming of the plot of bare ground into a garden of rare beauty is easily the largest planting venture which has ever been done in Nebraska. Six thousand of the total number are trees and shrubs, at least thirty-five trees from thirty to forty feet high have been transplanted, and he remaining 4,000 are flowers.

On either side of the entrance to the club grounds is a group of snowberry bushes and following the road up to the house will be hundreds of peonies whose blossoms will add a bright color note during the late spring and early summer. Back of these on the east side is a row of lezpedeza, a new shrub which has not been used in large quantities before in Nebraska. It has a purple blossom and blooms all during the summer. Hhen there are spirea bushes, mock oranges and astly a row of tall hackberry trees. On the west side of the road is a group of lilacs, honeysuckle, dogwood and spirea. A stone curbing encloses the large grass plot in front of the club house around which the road winds. A barberry hedge follows the stone curbing inside of which will be oranges tables and large shades and here during the summer evening sodas will be served. Looking southwest one sees a group of five varieties of snowballs of viburnums. Banked at the front of the building are snowberry bushes, potentilla, a yellow flowering bush which blooms al summer, yellow spirea interspersed with spruce. At the east of the house are more snowberry.

The dance hall opening to the east overlooks an expanse of lovely garden arranged about the swimming pool. It is an alluring area of flowers and shrubs. A hedge encircles the entire edge of the pool. Between this and a row of trimmed evergreens is twelve-foot grass plot bordered with petunias of which there will be at least a thousand plants. A mulberry hedge is the background for two garden flower borders which follows a stepping stone path about the pool and in this will be fifty different varieties of perennials and annuals. Chinese catalpa form a natural pergola at the very back and at either end are pylons of poplars.

Man has done his very best and it only remains for spring rains and spring days to complete the work.

Correspondent Says Definitely Woman Held Is Clara Phillips

Newspaper Man Talks With Honduras Prisoner at Length And Asserts She Practically Admits Being Escaped Murderess.

Former American Minister to Honduras.
(Copyright 1923 by International News Serrvice.)

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, April 28—The woman arrested here and posing as Mrs. Jesse Carsen is Clara Phillips, "hammer murderess," who escaped from a Los Angeles jail. There can be no mistake. I talked with her for an hour in her cell. For months I had read of her crime nd escape in American papers and gazed upon her picture. Her mannerisms and her talk confirm me in the positive statement that she is the much-wanted "tiger woman."

She practically admits it. I addressed her as a father.

"Don't you think it is time for you to come clean and admit your identity?" I asked her.

Promises An Exposure.

"Not yet, not yet," she replied "Many things may happen between now and the time I am forced to go back to Los Angeles. You can tell the world that I deny I am Clara Phillips. It is for the smart sleuths who trailed me here to prove that I am. You can say this, however. If I am ever dragged back to Los Angeles there will be big doings in that old town. I'll tell some things which some people in authority may not want to have exposed.

"I know all about Clara Phillips. I probably know her better than anybody else in the world. I probably know her every move—before and since she left Los Angeles."

I then thrust several pictures of Clara Phillips in front of the prisoner's face and shouted at her:

Hurls Direct Challenge.

"You are the woman!"

"You can guess what you please," she shot back.

"You've admitted practically in your conversation you are Clara Phillips," I said.

"You can draw your own conclusions," was her answer.

"I'l exhaust every means to keep from going back to Los Angeles."

This defiant woman was in a talkative mood. The only time she refused to talk was when I tried to press her as to her identity.

She is thoroughly conversant with Los Angeles and New Orleans.

Familiar With Scenes.

I recalled to her the route of the Southern Pacific across the desert and through Texas. She was familiar with many of the scenes I discussed with her.

She insisted on displaying her wardrobe, which is expensive and pretty. Nearly all of her gowns were purchased in New Orleans. I asked her when she had married Jesse Carsen and where. She smiled and said:

"People don't have to show a marriage certificate these days. You seem to be such a good guesser and so sure I am Clara Phillips, why don't you ask about Mr. Carsen. I will say that, and that is that men are sometimes an encumbrance. If it had not been for Mr. Carsen I doubt if they would have had me now."

CANDIDATES TALK TO WOMEN VOTERS

School Board Problems Are Discussed at Meeting in Faculty Hall.

The Lincoln League of Women Voters heard several candidates for election to the school board at their meeting Saturday afternoon in Faculty hall. Problems confronting the board were discussed by George Woods, retiring member.

The building program of the board was presented in some detail by Mr. Woods. He said that several thousands of dollars had been saved by careful buying of supplies and by the letting of building contracts wherein the school board's interests were safeguarded. In order to guard the taxpayers' money he declared it necessary to decrease the number of school buildings, making those larger.

"I don't know of any city which has come through the periods of war and the succeeding inflation and deflation as well or as economically as has Lincoln", Mr. Woods said. In school teachers' salaries Lincoln has lagged in comparison with other cities its size, he stated, being from $200 to $400 behind.

Alex Wekesser, M. L. Palmer, Dr. E. W. Rowe, H. J. Forney and Mrs. Mary Campbell Majors, all of whom seek a place on the board gave short talks. Dr. Rowe gave as the causes of the rising cost of education the constantly increasing number of students and consequently of teachers, higher wages paid the latter, different equipment and the enrichment of the curriculum. Mrs. Majors is the only woman candidate.

Mrs. C. W. Bryan will entertain the league at the executive mansion on the afternoon of Saturday, May 12. A discussion of international relations, will be lead by Miss Pfeiffer and Miss Reynoldson, members of the university faculty.

NEBRASKAN GOES TO COLOMBIA AS FINANCE EXPERT

Fred Fairchild, Formerly of Crete, Now In South American Republic.

Letters Tell of Strange Conditions and Incidents South of Equator.

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., April 28.—Chilly weather almost on the equator, a journey in a stern paddle steamer like those which used to ply on the Mississippi in the youth of Mark Twain, pot shots at alligators, a bull fight, and Spanish bedrooms, are among the adventures of Fred Fairchild, former Nebraskan in Colombia, South America, as told in letters received in Crete. Mr. Fairchild, who is a former Cretan and a graduate of Donae college, is tax expert on a commission of American economists who are advising the South American republic about the reorganization of its budget, and is on leave of absence from Yale university.

The commission proceeded by steamer to Baranquilla, where it took a boat up the Magdalena river 600 miles and went thence by railroad to Bogota, capital of Colombia, which has an elevation of 8,500 feet. Extracts from Prof. Fairchild's letters recount adventures along the road. In March he wrote:

"I am sitting on the forward deck of the good ship "Rosa Perez" or words to that effect, steaming leisurely cp the river Magdalena, with tropical forests on either side and strange tropical birds flying along the banks and big fifteen or twenty foot alligators and crocodiles sunning themseelves on the mud banks orl azily slipping off into the water when somebody with a rifle takes a shot at them from the upper deck.

Old Fashioned Steamboat.

"The weather is warm, though not so hot as I have often experienced in New Haven or Crete, and there is a good breeze blowing. About ten days' travelling cover the 600 miles from Baranquilla. Two or three times a day we have to stop for wood, which the boats' engines consume in prodigious quantities. From three to four hours out of every twenty-four is thus spent. The natives have the wood all cut in proper sizes and all neatly piled on the bank, ready to sell to the steamers as they pull up to the shore.

"It is hard to describe the boat beyond saying that it is exactly the same type as the stern paddle steamers that sail on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. We have separate state rooms very scantily furnished. But the governor of the department of oBlivar, in which Baranquilla is located, was very kind to us, and sent us a bundle containing a piece of matting to put on the cot, a sheet, a pillow and pillow case, and a mosquito netting to hang from the ceiling and eneclose the bed.

"Last night we tied up to the bank for the night instead of sailing all night as we had done so far. The river is getting too narrow and too much obstructed with stumps to make night sailing safe. This morning is very cool and comfortable, but the pilot's work is getting more and more exciting."

Excellent Hotel Service.

In a later March letter Mr. Fairchild said:

"I have been in Bogota a week and a day now. This hotel (Hotel Regina) is not like anything you ever saw. Not a window in one of our rooms; only doors opening onto a balcony enclosing an open "patio." The food and service are wonderful. I never ate such delicious food in my life. All kinds of fruit and vegetables, the tropical and temperate, eggs and meeats, and everything cooked in the most wonderful ways.

"The weather is like a cool, still day in early spring. It is quite cold and there is no way of heating the hotel or any of the buildings in the city. The only time you are really warm is when you are outdoors walking. I have not really suffered at all, though we work all day and sit in the evening in rooms that are downright cold. The government put an oil heater in each of our rooms, having heard rumors that the Americans do not like the cold, but I have not lighted mine and I don't expect to.

"We have all felt the altitude and change of climate somewhat. To come in two days from a hot tropical climate and practically sea level to a cool temperate climate and 8,500 feet altitude is some stunt.

"This afternoon we went to a bull fight. It wasn't much of a show and I can't say I enjoyed it. Having seen this one, I don't think I shall go again."

ANNIVERSARY OF CALL TO COLORS

William Lewis camp of Spanish war veterans celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the call to colors with a program at Walsh hall, Saturday evening, B. J. Newlon, department commander of the Spanish War veterans being the principal speaker. Mr. Newlon reviewed the history of the war and some of its more interesting incidents. He also told of some of the contributions in the way of armament that had been made during this war.

The address followed a dinner served by the auxiliary at which seventy-five veterans attended.

It is planned to erect a flag pole at the O street entrance to Antelope park, it was announced at the meeting. The flag pole, which will cost about $1,000, will be made up of material contributed to the veterans by the war department and will be constructed by the veterans themselves.

The state encampment in Omaha, June 12, 13 and 14 was also taken up. A number of prominent speakers have been secured and it is thought that a number of veterans from Lincoln will attend.

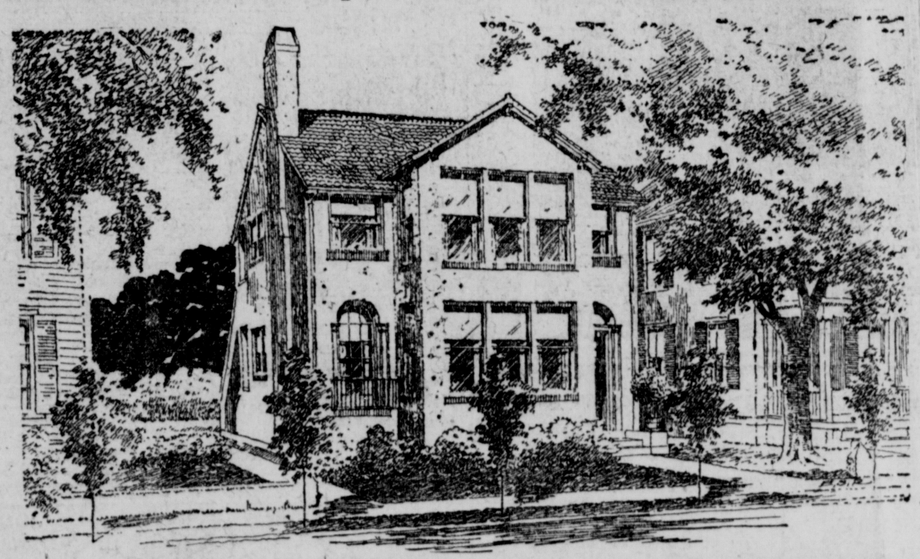
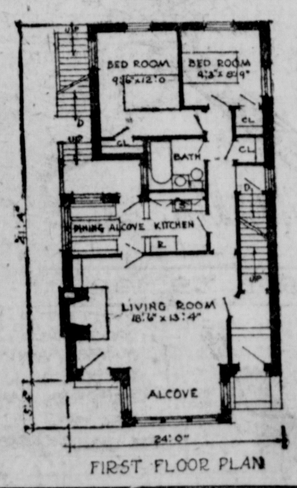
The Southshore--A Duplex House With a Home Atmosphere





FIRST FLOOR PLAN

Perhaps many more people would build homes if they knew how to plan them so that they will pay for themselves. Duplex houses have so many advantages over the best of flat or apartment types that it is hardly worth while to make comparison. In addition to the economies involved, many families prefer to live where they have the from the presence of another family under the same roof. This factor counts with the renter as well as with the owner and as a consequence apartments in duplex houses are easily rented at prices above the average.

To look at the Southshore one would never guess that it is planned for two families. The whole exterior is one of substantial dignity though not so severe in treatment as to appear inhospitable. The plan is one selected by a committee o architects to be built at the 1923 Chicago "Own Your Home" exposition. After a moderate first payment on this house, the cost to the owner of completing the payments and paying the taxes will be very little more than rent secured from the rented apartment. At the same time the owner has a cheery, comfortable home for himself.

Along the Trail It's Springtime—Nature Calls Lincoln People to Beauty Spots at Antelope Park or in Woods Nearby the City

BY LYNNELLE GRER.

Along the trail it is springtime—it is dawn for the little green things that are drowsily yawning their way to life again after a long night of winter. The woods, the hedge, the fields—they are all awake now, even the narrow little creek that never quite finishes its journey—it, too, is fired with new ambition and is stretching its lazy form an inch or two, and there is a promise in the air, a promise of more beauty to come with summer showers and rainbows.

It is springtime the world over, and to the hearts of us comes a yearning to smell again the fragrance of the woods, a fragrance intermingled with the curling smoke of deserted campfires which seems almost an incense burning as a tribute to the ghosts of yesterdays. We want to see the baby leaves creeping out from their shelter, we want to smell the young clover, and even the dandelion, its golden head bright and shining, is a welcome sight.

But we are not all fortunate enough to answer the call of the trail or to follow it through its summer roamings, so for those who stay at home and still yearn to be gone, a second-best has been provided in the way of parks and lovely countrysides.

Antelope a Beauty Spot.

The most perfect bit of nature to be enjoyed by Lincoln people is Antelope park. It is spring there, too, and the shrubs, the closely cropped lawns, and the trees are all turning green.

Here and there, over the little creek, is a rustic bridge that links a footpath from one side of the park to the other. There are fountains, and slopes, little hollows that are a wonderful hiding place for pretty blue violets, there are flower beds galore, each seeming to vie with the other in giving out beauty, there are pools, and most of all there is spring.

The park is an exceptionally beautiful place, there is just enough of the natural left, to make it seem a pure bit of nature. To be truthful, almost all of it is pure nature, with the exception of flower beds, and some of the shrubs, which have been trained by the hand of an expert gardner, and for the coming season, four thousand brand new shrubs have been ordered, and are to be planted in various parts of the park. There are to be many new trees, also, which are to take the place of some of the old ones, and there are to be hundreds upon hundreds of flowers that will come later in the spring.

Roaming O'er the Paths.

There are little winding paths that lead hither and yon from the entrances, and there are roads that may be traveled by the motorists, in fact, there is nothing lacking in this park of ours that contributes to beauty or convenience.

But why should not the parks be beautiful?

There are close to one hundred and fifty acres confined within the park boundaries, and there will be more ground eventually, as fast as the city can buy it. Very recently some ground was purchased and added to the park. Much of the new land will be old residential districts, and will include property which has been bought by the city. The houses will either be torn down or sold off of the lots, and then with the aid of shrubs, trees and flowers, it will be made to look as if it had always been part of the park.

One of the very newest additions, of course, is Memorial avenue which was dedicated by the Lincoln Woman's club to the men and women of Lancaster county who gave their lives in the service. The avenue is especially beautiful now, even though the elms are rather slight. The trees are set at regular distances, and each one is tagged with the name plate of the person for whom it was planted. The avenue is to be extended down past South street and no doubt in a few years will be one of the very prettiest drives in the city.

The golf course is one of the particularly interesting features of the park at the present time. When it was first laid out two years ago, it was a nine hole course, but the past year it was made into an eighteen hole course, and is giving very evident satisfaction to all golf devotees.

Playground for All Ages.

The pool, of course, interests many of the younger people and not a few of the elders the year around. In the summer time there is swimming, diving and the like, and through the winter months, if it is cold enough, there is skating. The bath house is stuccoed and is attractive looking as well as convenient.

In fact, Antelope park has come to be the playground for Lincoln people. A few weeks more and it will be picnic time, then the park will be inhabitated from morning until night, the playground for the childrenA, the teeter-totters, the swings and slides will all be in readiness so that the children will be well entertained.

But while Antelope park is the center of park activities for most of Lincoln during the summer, there are any number of other smaller tracts in Lincoln which have been made into recreation places for various communities.

All told, Lincoln has about three hundred and fifty-seven acres of park ground located in every part of the city.

The F street park at Eighth and F streets has twelve acres, sodded and arranged for picnics with swings and other things for the children.

Lincoln Heights park, located in the Lincoln Heights addition has six acres. The Van Dorn tract, at Seventeenth and Van Dorn streets has fifteen acres, which were donated by the heirs of the William T. Van Dorn estate. A similar park at Fifteenth and Lake streets, called Lake street park, has three acres.

Breta park is a park still and not a park, it is a strip of land forty-six feet wide in the center of A street from Nineteenth to Twentieth streets. This is a lovely bit of ground, but is not used as a park, it is one of the places where beauty must be admired at a distance.

Woods are Nearby.

Surrounding Lincoln are ever so many groves and woods that are used by Lincoln people for picnicking. Belmont has a beautiful park, that is small, and rather exclusive. It is fitted with electric lights, tables, swings and has a bandstand where band concerts are given at intervals during the summer.

We should not feel badly, then, those of us who must let the trail wend its way alone, because if we

Wanted: A Home. Four Tots Made Homeless by Death Long for Touch of Mother's Hand

Three little boys and one little girl, cast adrift by conditions over which they have no control, dependent for their future happiness on the kind impersonality of an institution. Four little kiddies, bright-eyed and bright-minded, needing and looking for a father and a mother and a home to take the place of the ones of which they have been deprived.

Wanted: A home.

A home with a big yard, where the grass is not too precious for childish feet to play and to romp. A home whose back yard will hold a load of white sand and a stout rope swing. A home where tea parties are in vogue—at least once a week. One whose back and front gate is open always to the little ones of the neighborhood.

Wanted: A home.

A home whose furniture will be finer for a few slithery scratches. One where headless dolls and violently red engines are not in the way. A home with lots of sunshine that drawn shades never keep from entering. A home whose every room is open to curious little folk and welcomes them with its brightness and homely comfort. A home where ginger cookies hide in deep jar and whose top shelves are the abode of ever decreasing jam jars.

Wanted: A home.

A home where there is a mother. A mother whose days are not too busy to cuddle small bodies and to magic away a smarting bruise with a kiss. A mother who knows 'Jack the Giant Killer" and 'Little Red Riding Hood" or the story of Sir Galahad and who can tell them at the sleepy hour. A mother who is always there in sickness and in health, in daylight and in dark, in sorrow and in happiness.

A home where there is a father, all powerful who knows so very much and who can spare a moment to explain to a small and enquiring mind. A father whose Sunday afternoons are kept for walks and talks with the children. A father who can romp and teach in the same moment through example. A father whose home is his world and the kiddies the most important bit of plastic material in that world. A father who always understands.

Wanted: A home.

Four Homeless Tots.

That's what four little children are thinking today, Bobbie and Billy and Mary Lou and Tommy. Two of them are almost too young to know that this life for which they did not ask has set them adrift—if no one hears their "wanted." The others know. The knowledge is in their eyes.

Perhaps, the home that they have known for the first short years of their lives can only be a precious memory for the many, many years to come. In two cases, that is only too true. She who was the center of the home, she who kept the little family together, who made it home has gone, and she will never return. Possibly, if a very great miracle would be wrought, the other mother might return—but it is a question of months, and there may never be a happy outcome.

Through the ironies that these mere babies cannot understand, Bobbie and Billie and Mary Lou and Tommy want homes. The world, in general, is ever kind to the little folk, and they are sheltered at present. They want, though, a home to take the place of that other one, a home that has a mother and a father and love and understanding. Its a warm feeling in every baby heart to have a place that's always waiting to shelter them and other arms to love them.

Victim of Circumstance.

Down in the southern part of the state lived Bobbie and Billie with father and mother. They had a comfortable home and plenty to eat and Bobbie and Billie were as happy as any two small boys can be. They did not know very much about anything but the home farm, but that was the least of their troubles. At four and six years of age the world is a pretty small place, anyway.

Down on the farm there were horses to ride and such fine hay stacks for slippery slides. It was the greatest fun to hunt eggs and to feed the chickens that squawked so unnecessarily if you grabbed for one. In the evening, the broad acres were the finest kind of a place for 'run, sheep, run" and no other place excelled the farm for "hide and seek." Two little boys did not care if life never gave them more than they were having.

Life may not even be offering them even so much, for one day a visitor came. His name was Death and when he had passed on, there was no mother in the home.

For a year, the father struggled to keep his family near him. The little boys were given to relatives for care. He tried to keep the farm on its former basis, but it was hard for a discouraged man. He had done his best, and he had had no reward, only sorrow. He struggled against growing odds and bitterness. Nothing was right; everything was wrong. He felt he would never be able to care for his little sons. They could never have the opportunities he wished for them. He decided to put them out of his life.

Association to Rescue.

He called the Lincoln headquarters of the National Children's Farm Home association, a part of whose work is the placement of children and asked the organization to care for the children. The association took the children and has put Bobbie and Billie in a home where they are in good care, but it is only a temporary home.

The world was disrupted for them, when this change came into their lives Bobbie, with the brightest face and most intelligent eyes possible, was broken-hearted to leave the cows and the chickens, and his home, but he is learning to forget, for his baby memory is short. Billie has been touched by the tragedy and by the knowledge that the old home is gone forever, and he is a little sad. He wants the home for himself and the little Bobbie, who does not know what a hard world it is for Bobbies without a home.

Of course, a home where there were straw stacks and orchards and chickens would be a little bit of heaven for Bobbie and Billie. It would keep forever the memory of the first home vivid to them. Sadly enough, little homeless boys cannot choose, and the home may be in a city, where the only playground is a handkerchief-size grass plot. If there is no thought of the country about this "wanted" home, though, Bobbie and Bille will not care too much, if there is a lot of love and understanding and care—something which with a personal touch they have lost out of their lives.

One day tiny, dainty, Mary Lou stood in the door of her home and watched the quiet gray ambulance drive up to her house. White coated figures took away the indifferent figure that had not been a bit like mother for so many days. Mary Lou clutched her brother's hand and hid her face. Her large hazel eyes were tearless with terror and they dared not gaze on this terrible but uncomprehended sight. Four years old does not understand ambulances and attendants that leave such desolation behind them.

Tragedy of the Homeless.

"Muvver" was going away and she did not even notice Mary Lou. Mary Lou could not remember that had ever happened before. Tommy felt awfully funny, too, so gone-like as though he had gone down in a too swift elevator. Tommy had a sudden terrible lonesomeness, too, for she was Tommy's mother as well as Mary Lou's. And she had been such a good comrade to her son. He felt the touch of Mary Lou's cheek in his hand, and he knew that he must be a brave little boy, for he was five years older than the frightened little sister.

When that ambulance door clanged, tragedy came to Mary Lou and Tommy.

A kind friend told Mary Lou that she must be a good girl for daddy and for Tommy. She tried, but she was awfully lonesome. A small boy cannot always remember the even smaller sisted, and daddy was away from home so much. There was money to be earned, for shoes and stockings and hats, and for mother's hospital bills. He was so strange and silent, also, and sat for such long minutes staring at nothing but the wall, Mary Lou thought. He did not geem a bit like the Daddy she had known. And daddy knew that he was failing, that Mary Lou and Tommy needed a home—if only for awhile.

And he turned the same friend that the other harassed father had, the farm home association.

For Tommy and Mary Lou he asked only a temporary haven, he hoped. Again, kind hearts spoke and two homes were opened, one to Mary Lou and the other to Tommy. They are having excellent care, but they may need a home for longer than they can stay where they are. Daddy has gone far away, where he can earn more money, and "muvver" is very sick in the hospital. Only time can know how long Tommy and Mary Lou will be without a home.

It would be so much better if they could be in the same home, the two that are left. With the elasticity of childish memory, Mary Lou has temporarily forgotten her fright and sadness, and she is being taught through cheer and happiness to forget—if "muvver" can never come back. Tommy will never forget, for he is a big school boy and will always reemmber that one scene more vividly than all others. It would be so splendid, if they could stay together.

There may be more who want homes, who need them. There can be few who are quelt as adrift as these four, sturdy Tommy, sad little Billie, demure Mary Lou, and bright Bobbie. They are at the mercy of the world that is kind but hurried. They need what they say so earnestly:

Wanted A home.

EFFICIENT LOOP RECEIVER.

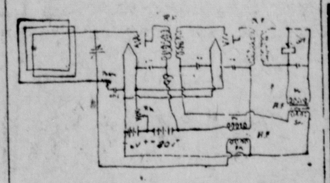
The set deserted in this article may be successfully used with a loop antenna for reception of distant stations. It is fairly economical to make as it requires no more apparatus than a set using two stages of straight audio frequency amplification. The circuit is one of the reflex type and is very similar to that used in the DeForest D-7 receiver except in the order in which the tubes are used for the audio amplification.

With two hard tubes, two R. F. and two A. F. transformers and a crystal detector this set gets four stages of amplification and produces signals on a two foot loop which are about the same intensity as those produced by a regenerative detector and one stage A. F. amplification when used on a regular antenna.

The loop for the set should be two feet square and have about twelve turns spaced three-eighths of an inch apart. The tuning condenser which shunts the loop should have a maximum capacity of .0005 mfds. and should have a vernier attachment.



The .002 mfd. condensers shown in the diagram should be good grade mica condensers because they have to stand the plate voltage which is fairly high (about 80 or 100 volts).

Make all connections in the plate and grid circuits as short as possible to avoid howling. The 400 ohm potentiometer serves to prevent this also and must be concluded if maximum results are desired.

A vacuum tube detector may be used in place of the crystal if desired although it is doubtful if any advantage can be secured by so doing. Regeneration in the detector circuit seems to produce audio oscillations in the amplifiers. Silicon is recommended for the detector because it is easy to adjust and keep in a sensitive place.

Hard tubes such as the UV-201 or the UV-201A are best and should be used with radio frequency transformers that have been designed to work with them. Any standard audio frequency transformers will work satisfactorily.

Radiograms.

If you have shielded your cabinet with tinfoil and find that the set will not work after shielding, the foil is probably touching some of the wiring. Take out the bulbs and disconnect the 'B" batteries. Now take one of the 'A" battery leads and wrap it around an old spoon or other piece of metal to gibe a fairly large surface and hold the spoon or other metal against the tinfoil. Now take the other 'A" battery lead and touch it to each binding post in succession except the ground post. You will probably find one post where there will be a small flash and the heavy current will melt the foil away from where it is touching the wiring. The set may then be connected and used as usual. The same trick may be accomplished by using the 110 volt house current with a lamp in series but the beginner is advised not to attempt it as the risk to both set and operator is too great.

THE FRUITS OF VICTORY

In these closing hours of the legislative session, republican majorities in house and senate are tasting the full sweetness of their triumph. They have a right to feel elated, for it is not on inconsiderable victory which they scored. Despite a very definitely expressed mandate from the taxpayers of Nebraska, they have succeeded in stallmating every determined effort of Governor Charles W. Bryan to put his program of retrenchment and economy into effect.

It would appear unseemly at this time to begrudge them the joy of the fruits of victory.

What's a matter of conscience?

What's a matter of representative government, embracing as it does the carrying out of the will of the people?

No government, it would seem, is greater than its people and in the case of the present legislature, the people were not intelligent enough to vote as their heart dictated. Why waste any sympathy on such a dub, as the public has demonstrated itself to be. That is the line of argument which self-appointed party leaders are endeavoring to advance in excuse for the legislative failure to live up to the high hopes of last winter. It is poor political philosophy, for unfortunately the people had very little to do with this legislative session. When their cause has been betrayed by men within the law-making assembly—men who talked long and ardently about economy and then voted directly against their frequently expressed views—it is rather difficult to place responsibility at the door of the people.

The issue, however, has been definitely determined. There will be no repeal of an extravagant(, duplicate administrative system of government. he republican pledge of revision of the code is not to be carried out. The six code departments, duplicating as they do some of the duties of constitutional officers, are to be retained in their full glory, with $5,000 a year men in charge, who if past experience is to reveal anything, would have been glad to have worked for the state for considerably less.

The 1923 legislature has cost the state approximately $130,000. It has received in return two good laws—one correcting the state banking situation and the other dealing with the public schools. The majority of the legislature had little to do with either. Their presence on the statute books is due to the determined, persistent efforts of a handful of men in the legislature, who forgot politics long enough to attend to the business at hand.

The great crying problem of tax reduction has been ignored because some republican politicians deemed it of greater importance to ham-string Charley Bryan. Their vision in this respect, as in other matters which have been before them, brings to mind the lines:

"O, wad some power the giftie gie us,
"To see ourselves as ithers see us."

RECORD LUMBER SHIPMENTS.

On one day recently, 5,650,000 feet of lumber was shipped by ocean steamer from the port of Tacoma. In three days a total of 8,650,000—a new record in lumber shipments.

The lumber was not consigned to American ports. Over 2,000,000 feet of it was loaded for San Pedro, another 1,000,000 feet for the Orient, and heavy consignments to Australia and other points. While this enormous shipment was being made to foreign ports, the American market was being supplied from the output of 150 saw-mills and woodworking factories in the district, with record shipments over four transcontinental lines.

The unusual activity of the lumber market reveals that not only America, but practically the entire world, has again taken up the task of building where it was left off eight years ago during the world war. In fact America apparently suffered less than other countries.

A HAPPY COMBINATION.

A happy combination of science and charity has saved the life of Fred Mallott, ex-soldier living near Jackson, Michigan, and the story that results is one that has aroused national interest. The young man was desperately ill will pneumonia and his doctor had told his family he would die. The family had read an obscure item in a newspaper about a new electrical treatment for pneumonia and telegraphed for instructions as to applying the treatment.

The directions came, but they required an electric current. The nearest power line was almost half a mile away and the young man was too sick to be moved. Told about the case, the line men employed by the electrical company strung the necessary half mile of line on the same Saturday afternoon, refusing to take pay for their labor.

The new treatment was applied as per telegraphed directions and the man lived. He is now recovering. You who believe in science can give credit to the new treatment. You who believe in the power of good deeds, can give credit to those who did them. We give credit, as we said, to the happy combination of science and charity and the greatest of these is

But you can choose for yourself.

Reports from Washington indicate Attorney General Daugherty will shortly resign. Daugherty is said to be hurt because Albert Lasker, of the United States shipping board is reported to have usurped Daugherty's place as the closest friend and political adviser of President Harding. Daugherty is not the only member of the president's family reported to be irritated because of the increasing power yielded by Lasker. The shipping board man is a pretty clever politician but he has a man's hized job ahead in smothering out the difficulties for the Harding administration.

Charles M. Schwab thinks the business men could settle the world's affairs if they would only put their heads together. But settling the world's affairs in this manner might interfere with some business men's business.

If the bright new dimes which have been given away by John D. Rockefeller were piled in a single column they would reach to the height of more than seven inches.

Every bashful patron of soda fountains will agree that there is a fortune awaiting the man who invents a non-rattling straw.

SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL

Three hundred and fifty-nine years ago on April 23, there was born at Stratford-on-Aovn a boy baby, son of John Shakespeare, destined to be the world's greatest poet and dramatist of that and many other ages. His life and growth to manhood centered in the little village of Stratford-on-Avon and it was there that he gained the detailed knowledge of nature, of the ways of simple folk, the depths and heights of human emotions that made him the marvel of the literary world. It was there, in the quiet town which stands today almost unchanged by the fleeting centuries, that he received his education, his first appreciation of the drama and the power it could be made to wield; it was to Stratford-on-Avon that he returned after his eventful life in London and it was there that he is buried.

In 1875, on June 29, there was founded in this same village, upon the initiative of seven local men, the Shakespeare Memorial association. Their vision was of founding a memorial greater than could be built of bricks and stone, a memorial that would make the works of the Master Dramatist a living force in the world, a memorial that would keep before the world, in the sanctity of the birthplace, burial place and beloved home of Shakespeare, the choicest possession of English literature, the plays of the Bard of Stratford-on-Avon.

Their plans were many-sided. They desired a memorial building that would house a theatre where the plays of Shakespeare might be presented correctly, understandingly and regardless of financial returns. They desired a library and gallery of pictures and sculpture. They knew it would be necessary to have a lecture hall for the advancement of the study of Shakespeare. They went so far as to include a training school for actors and a fund for their support, when incapacitated after devoting their lives to the interpretation of the Shakespearean plays. And they announced their intention of carrying out these plans "alone or conjointly with any scientific, literary or other society or institution."

"There are in Stratford-on-Avon something less than 9,000 people. At the time of the memorial project there were no more, perhaps a few less—the town has not changed much in the span of three and a half centuries. These people raised nearly a half million dollars—a tremendous sum for that type of community at that time and the whole outside world, indebted to Shakespeare as it is, overloaded with wealth as part of it was, gave a total of less than a fifth as much.

The memorial was built, and was completed in 1879. There are today besides the theatre dedicated to the faithful presentation of Shakespeare's plays, a library of 15,000 volumes, spacious reading rooms and galleries and there has been kept alive for the English speaking peoples and for the world in general a love and comprehensive study and presentation of Shakespeare. Through bequests and other means, other properties have come into the hands of the governors of the memorial so that now it is possible to foresee a fulfillment of all the hopes of the founders of the memorial if a sufficient endowment fund can be raised. To raise it, the little town of Stratford-on-Aon is appealing to the wide world during this, the birthday festival time of 1923.

The many needs are given about as follows: The library, one of the most extensive and finest of all Shakespearean libraries, is without a librarian and without a catalog, due to the lack of funds for either. Instead of a continuous study of Shakespeare and frequent presentation of his plays, the governors are now able to hold only two festivals, a spring and summer festival, with long intervals of idleness. The desire is to have permanent funds enough to be able to employ worthy actors for longer periods than a few weeks, to delve seriously into the interpretation of Shakespeare and to form in time at least two traveling companies to carry to the public authentic and ideal presentations of Shakespeare's plays.

These needs are summed up under five headings, as follows:

1. To do honor to Shakespeare by the fitting celebration of his birthday.

2.—To keep alive the love and study of Shakespeare's plays by their regular presentation at as high a standard of dramatic art as can be obtained.

3.—To insure a supply of competent Shakespearean actors by the establishment of a school of acting.

4.—To make some provision for actors and actresses who, from bodily or mental infirmity, are unable to follow their profession.

5.—To advance the dramatic art by all possible means.

A special edition of the Stratford-on-Avon Herald is being broadcasted to the world, copies of it having been forwarded to every English-speaking newspaper known. It is asking of the world in general a sum similar to the amount raised forty odd years ago in the little town of Stratford-upon-Avon alone, a half million dollars, 100,000 pounds, sterling. With that additional, sum the Shakespeare Memorial will become an established, permanent, self-supporting organization. They ask all who do homage to the Bard of Avon to help out in this cause.

One thought in the personal letter from that editor to all other editors may be repeated:

"Before I finally lay down my pen as an editor, I should dearly love to see 'dreams come true,' and this unique theatre, standing in the meads by the river where the Bard of Avon once took his pleasures, and perchance found his inspiration, able to fulfill its aims."

The donations if any, should be sent, we are told to The Treasurer, Shakespeare Memorial endowment fund, Old bank, Stratford-on-Avon, England.

Drives result in perceptible shrinkage in population but the loss is only temporary.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Turk announces that he's through
With wedding women by the score;
He turned from old ways to the new,
The harem gets his vote no more.
"I've thought," says he, "I've thought and thought.
And if you ask the reason why,
I'll tell you candidly I'm not Inclined to want to leave a lot
Of wailing widows when I die.

"I had ambitions once that seemed
To be ennobling and sublime;
Each time I took a wife I dreamed
Of adding to my string, in time.
I've wooed Fatimas here and there,
And liked them much for being fat;
Once I was strong for bossing where
My wives were busy pulling hair.
But, after this, no more of that!

"I used to wish to be the dad
Of sixty children, more or less,
But that's a hope I'm very glad
To say I do not now possess
I've ceased to think that Allah shows
Especial favor to the man,
And gives him most serene repose,
Who leaves most orphans when he goes
To join the last, long caravan.

"I'm through with all that stuff; I've ceased
To wish to marry soon and late;
I think I'll have my trousers creased,
And drop all but a single mate.
The Christian's ways look good, and I'm
For finding out just how they'll work;
Life, after all, may be sublime
With only one wife—at a time—
Some system, I'll say," says the Turk!

HOMER BALMY TAKES PEN IN HAND

By L. H. Robbins

THE AFFLICTED MOVIES

A large fraction of the criticle public rise up and howl that the trouble with the movies is not that they a re immoral, but that they are stupid.

Will Hays, Esq.,
Motion Picture Hdqrs.,
New York City.

Dear Sir:

Some while ago I wrote you as regards doing you some movie plays. It is about a year now, in fact, and so, not having heard from you as yet, I presume my letter was lost in the mails.

It was a sad loss to our country, sir, let me say, when you went into the movies and ceased to be our Postmaster. The mail service has never been the same since.

However, I will take a chance and pen you once more, trusting that our present postal authority will do his duty and deliver it, whoever he is.

Every day or two nowadays, Mr. Hays, we hear a wild shriek of rage and anguish floating into town on the western breeze. But we are not alarmed by it any more. We know that there will merely be an item from Los Angeles in the paper next morning, as follows:

"Another famous novelist has quit the films. Today it was Jasper Q. Bookey, author of 'Hearts Ablaze' and other best sellers. Abandoning the motion-picture industry in disgust.

Mr. Bookey declared. 'The movies are directed by ignorant morons without brains or honor' And so on, Mr. Hays, and so on.

When a painful thing like this happens I hope you try to remember, sir, that authors are temperamental creatures and have to be made allowances for.

Take my Cousin Almira, who once had a story in the Spiffy Fiction

Possibly I am not such a deep thinker, but I am sincere and willing, and understand the typewriter thoroughly.

Magazine, for illustration. Frequently Almira comes over with a manuscript for our family to read it aloud, so that she can hear how it sounds.

Well we never know how the story turns out, because, sooner or else later, whoever is reading it will be sure and mispronounce a word wrong, and Almira will then burst into tears and make a scene and go home.

I have to think of Cousin Almira when I see Mr. Bookey calling the movie directors a bunch of variegated vultures, or some other pet expression. Perhaps they left out a comma on him.

The movies are worse than Mrs. Aunt Hannah is in the flue season, it seems. They catch it right and left. Wherever there is a crowd they have an attack.

When the weather is fair and business is good and Congress has adjourned, and there is really nothing to complain of, people can always get up a fever over the movies.

Mr. Wooper, who lives next door to us says, "They are demeralizing. I have not gone to them in five years."

Well Mr. Hays, I am a quite a steady patron of your pictures, and I must say that I have not been demoraled by them as yet, lthough young.

I my have gone once or twice in the bright hope of having something of that nature happen to me. But nothing is ever doing, alas. I have seen some pretty high-colored novels turned into screen plays, at that.

One of them was "Hearts Ablaze" by this Jasper Bookey. To my great disappointment, you gentlemen had cut the famous Chapter Twelve of that story completely out and threw it away before you made the film.

If Mr. Bookey's novel had been written the same way that you gave it to us on the screen, I guess Mr. Bookey would not have sold 300,000 copies, or anywheres near, because the play was perfectly respectable in every respect, as far as I could see.

Yet it is hard to please everybody, Mr. Hays, is it not? You gentlemen no sooner make a pure play out of Mr. Bookey's spicy little work, than a large fraction of the criticle public rise up and howl that the trouble with the movies is not they are immoral, but that they are stupid.

So there you are, sir, a rose between two haystacks, and I will be free and confess that I would not care to be in your shoes, even if they did pay me a $500,000 per year salary.

The trouble with your industry, as I view the question, is like this. Man is naturally a fighting fanimal by nature. We can't be comfortable acting like a vegetable. We have to be all the time attacking something. We leave our happy home and go on crusades. We would rather get all worked up over some idea than eat at grandmother's.

But our fighting instinct is suppressed by civilization. We might ease ourselves by watching a couple of heavyweights concuss each other's brains, but most states forbid prize-fights. We might relieve our feelings in politics, only the Democratic party is seldom in office. Some years back we burned our innocent neighbors for witches, which is not done any more. Later on we heaved rocks at the automobile. Now we own one.

So we look around for something to attack that has no friends, and there is the movie drama. It is a new thing. We are not used to it yet. We are like Mr. Wooper was, one time when I had a pet owl. The owl got out of its pen one night and went over to the Wooper barn after a mouse. Mr. Wooper found it there next day. He did not know what it was, and so he killed it.

However, Mr. Hayes, there is this helpful thought to keep before us as we go toiling on: A new house always gets a lot of hammering.

It is too bad the Movie family have had to go to living in theirs before it is finished. Still, the assistant carpenters will be through in the course of time and take their hammers away to some other job.

Maybe they will attack the helicopters next. I would not be one of the first one sto fly in one for anything, I know just how the world at large would come rushing at me.

But what I was going to say, Mr. Hays, is simply that when Jasper Bookey and all the other famous authors have abandoned your industry, you can still count on one true friend and admirer to keep you supplied ith plays.

Possibly I am not such a deep thinker that you could sail the Batcere and willing, and uniterstand the typewriter thoroughly.

lect, but at the same time I am sintleship of Texas around on my intel-

And I still have that western play about ranch life in Ohio that I wrote you about last year. The hero's part would just fit Mr. Fairbanks. The scene where the bandit villian captures the heroine and proposes to her in the lonely canyon (he is a Democrat, by the way, Mr. Hays) is very thrilling in the extreme, and at the same time moral.

So if you run short of authors at any time, command me, will you not?

Cordially yours,
HOMER BALMY.

Rambling through Nebraska.

BY C. DURANT JONES.

Hal V. Minor, a wholesale lumber man living at Hastings, comes of a family whose patriotism never could be questions, for the history of his ancestors furnishes abundance of evidence of their devotion to the flag. Five generations have a war history which is a little unique. His great grandfather was a soldier in the war of 1812. His grandfather had an active part in the Mexican war. His father fought through the civil war and Hal, himself was a soldier in the Spanish-American war. The world war rolled around conveniently for by that time he had a son just old enough to get into it and keep up the family reputation and help to make the record an unbroken one.

If the good men in the legislature could know just what was being thought and said out over the state over the kind of record it has made so far there would probably be some serious thinking. The tourist could tell some interesting things that he has picked up, but it does not seem best to do so. But the other day a prominent republican worker, known among the professional men and in the newspaper fraternity of Nebraska, whose party has honored him in the past, and whose standing as a republican is unquestioned, wrote the Rambler a letter, from which we quote:

'The Nebraska legislature will soon be a thing of history, another blot on the fair page of Nebraska's past. Nothing really accomplished, and with no reminder exxcept the privilege of paying the bills for its existence and the memory of party pledgs. Although I am a republican, 'Brother Charlie' has my sympathy. If the stubborn republican element had been willing to go half way and let him do something, there would have been time to find fault later if his ideas did not work out satisfactorily. The dear people got what they voted for though, so we all ought to be satisfied."

The question of Sunday baseball, like Banquo's ghost, simply will not down. The board of suprvisors of Dixon county, recently voted four to three in favor of permitting th Sunday games. This does not alter the situation in incorporated villages for county outside of the towns and cities. But that does not mean that the animosities that have been engendered were eliminated by the they are ruled by ordinances, but action will apply to all territory in the vote. The question usually divides a community and to its hurt, for both sides have pretty good arguments available and a decision by a board of supervisors simply records a victory of one side or the other for the present. A fight still goes on. It would be fine if the question could be disposed of permanently for the development of many a small town is hindered by the perennial scraps over what to do with Sunday, in some form or other.

Why is a crow, anyway?

Up in the Ainsworth territory, the ranchers report their present in vast numbers and in some places, an organized effort is being made to elminate them. It is conceded that the crow is an expensive pest, and he could be dispensed with. Scare crows have lost their efficacy, if they ever had any, for the problems is not solved by chasing the pests over to your neighbors. In many sections of the country, organized hunts for rats have been staged, and the result has been surprising. It is figured that a rat's board bill runs two dollars a year. Perhaps a crows board bill will run as high. It is taking valuable stitch in time to rid the farms of these two pests. The great American economic sin is waste, and two of the chiefest sinners are the crow and rat

A third pest, more or less prevalent in Nebraska towns and cities, but upon which we dare not use the treatmnt the other two ought to receive is the fellow who marks a beautiful parking or a lawn, by cutting corners and making an unsightly path through it. Arbor day reminded us of the wonderful transformation wrought in Nebraska's appearance, through the planting of trees. They have beautified our towns and cities tremendously. They adorn our lawn, give a setting to our homes and line our streets. The planting of trees has led to the putting in of shrubbery and flower beds, where there was nothing but an ugly barren patch before. But as you travl over the state you will note that about seventeen thousand parking and lot corners have been disfigured by the fellow who thoughtlessly saved an infintesimal amount of time in tramping ruthlessly across the green grass. A property owner often hates to kill a neighbor, but he sometimes feels like it. The Rambler proposes the formation of a new club, the Cut Corner Cutting club, and invites verybody to join. It may not become as famous as Arbor day, but it will help a lot in making the towns and cities more beautiful. Swat the rat, the crow and the corner cutter. The swatting is good right now.

Tourists going east this summer will do well to fill their gasoline tanks at Omaha, and then drive rapidly across Iowa before the tank runs dry, for gasoline in Iowa has a two cent tax on it that Nebraska does not have. It is estimated that this tax will yield that state five million a year, all of which will be used on road building. But that isn't the worst of it. Unless the tourists keeps his clothes clean, he will bump into this tax again, for the dry cleaners inform us that the tax hits their business a big whack which of course will be passed on to the consumer. There seems to be no provision in the law exemptin gasoline used for other than moter purposes, so Iowa won't be a popular state for tourists, for the time being.

Home Training Best.

(Palisade Times.)

How many of us clamor for laws against this or that evil when the remedy is home instruction. What a farce it is to try to correct legislation what the parent has neglected to do for the child. Must we make bottle-fed children of our offspring, or shall we instruct them in morality ourselves. Law is for punishment and prescribes a penalty. What our youn need is instruction and training.

The little one into whose mind the lessons of decency and right living have been instilled seldom needs correction by law enforcement bodies. Parents who have neglected their part are usually the first to roar when the hand of the law is applied. Anarchy, rebellion and all these things are the result of a neglected training in early days. Parents, wake up to your opportunity and don't shift the responsibility of rearing your children onto the police officers and the men and women of the street.

Should Regulate Selling.

(Bloomington Advocate-Tribune.)

The great trouble with the nation today is the inequality of the producer and the manufacturer. The manufacturers of every kind have a thorough organization and maintain their prices at a high figure, while the producers are not organized and are at the mercy of the middleman, who sets the prices on what the farmers sell. This affects the entire west, which is at the mercy of the combinations. If the farmers could regulate the selling of their produce on the markets they might be able to demand and receive a price equal to that of the manufacturers.

Sensible Action.

(Platte Valley Daily News)

The best thing the chamber of commerce has done in many a day, has been to secure Neal Barbour—whom President Harding would call a dirt farmer—as its president.

The News welcomes as the administrative head of the community organization of this city a man whose life is concerned with the soil. Mr. Barbour has always shown the utmost public spirit, and a genuinely unselfish desire to serve Scottsbluff, and on that basis is deserving of the honor that has come to him.

But his selection is not so much a personal tribute, as a recognition of the indissoluble ties of city and country. It is a recognition of the fact that there could be no Scottsbluff without the surrounding farm land, nor would that farm land be worth much without Scottsbluff.

Production, and the marketing of production, go hand in hand to make prosperity for city man and farmer alike. The chamber of commerce has given striking evidence of the fact that it appreciates the truth of this.

There has been a good deal of fault finding with the chamber of late, and many men have said they will not join again. The News believes however, they will think better of it. The way to make the chamber what it ought to be is to give it the support of membership, and membership dues it needs, and to demand and keep on demanding of the directorate, that it serve the city and the community well.

The Boss Must Work.

(Ord Quiz.)

My sympathies are always with the under dog. I always want to take the part of the fellow who seems to be getting the worst of it. That is why I have so ardently espoused the cause of the farmers who have surely been sorely oppressed in recent years. But there is one thing that I can't get through my system right and that is the '8-hour system because I have to put in lots more than 8 hours to make a success of my business. There is no day when I am in Ord, (and the days that I am away are mighty few) that I don't put in more than ten hours at my desk or in my office and there are a great many days when it strings out to fourteen or fifteen hours. I guess the boss in any business has to do about the same, too, if he is going to make a success of his business.

Hindrance to Religion.

(McCook Tribune.)

There are the "kiver-to-kiver" believers and there are those who insist upon the acid test of science—take your choice. But I notice the Savior himself was quite more considerate of doubting Thomas than are some of his followers today. Intolerance and bigotry have long been a major hindrance to religion and many human activities.

Another Fossil Skull

(Scottsbluff Star-Herald)

It seems that "distance lends enchantment" to scientific matters as well as other things in this life, and that when one has to travel long distances and is forced to spend thousands of dollars, the scientific discoveries are always of the greatest import. For instance, there was the hullabaloo over Pharaoh Tut, although many other Egyptian rulers had been dragged from their tombs and placed in glass cases at the Cairo museum, some of them having been on display for forty or fifty years, and tourists by thousands passing them year after year with a sniff and not even going to the trouble to learn their names or when they reigned. Yet in our own country within easy auto distance from any part of the United States there are vast quantities of remains that in point of age makes the XVIII dynasty of Egypt merely an affair of yesterday in comparison. The difference lies in the fact that the King Tut discovery was properly "press agented" together with the fact that to get to the Valley of Kings cost money.

Some months ago the world was notified that a discovery of enormous import had been made by the finding of a human skull which had been fossilized and thus preserved. The relic was found in Patagonia, which also required a long sea voyage, the gathering together of an "expedition" and the consequent expenditure of a large sum of money, and yet——

R. L. Carrier, while doing some blasting in solid rock in the Big Springs, Nebraska, vicinity last week, uncovered a petrified human skull, and the matter is given a four-line item in an inconspicuous place in one of the Omaha newspapers. Too bad the discovery hadn't been made in Unalaska, or Magnolia, or Terra del Fuego, then possibly the world would have heard of the great scientific reconstruction in the schedule of the age of man that would have to be made in consequence. But Nebraska is easily reached. It is not necessary to spend thousands of dollars to outfit an expedition, there are few savages one has to guard against in this region—and so, what's the use. Even though the skull is petrified; even thought it was found in a formation of solid rock, unless a proper press agent bobs up and calls attention to the discovery, it will likely go unheeded. The scientific world has finally and rather grudgingly admitted that the most valuable deposit of fossil prehistoric animals is located in western Nebraska. It will not remain to be seen if the finding of a human skull in a strata of solid rock in western Nebraska means anything to the scientific gentlemen.

Charles A. Lord States His Position

A word to my friends: In my quiet campaign for mayor of the city of Lincoln at the election to take place next Tuesday, I have met with encouragement and good wishes by my friends, but I have been told time and time again by those opposing municipal ownership, that I can not afford to be mayor and that they are not for me, because they do not want to spoil the prospects of a good man's business career by electing him mayor,—that my business will suffer, etc etc. I considered this fully before entering the race for mayor. If my business associates know my business ability, as they claim to know it, they surely understand that I have organizing ability sufficient to have my business continue in a successful way in my absence from my office. Otherwise, I would not be competent as mayor to take care of the city's business as it should be.

If I did not think I could be of more benefit to the interests of my home town and perform a public duty, which will be of more benefit to my community than I can in a private way, I would not have entered the race for mayor.

What success I have made in a business way, has been made under the keenest of competition. I would be afraid to be trusted with full authority to say what automobiles should be sold for in the city of Lincoln. By the same reasoning, I refuse to let the Ice plant, the Gas plant, and the Traction company, be the sole judges as to the price they should charge to the consumers of these public necessities in the city of Lincoln. For the same reason that a juryman is not allowed to sit on a case in which he has a personal interest, I would deny the right of private industries to supply the necessities to the people of our city at a price they only may decide is fair. These are principles as old as our government, and advocated successfully by Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and William Jennings Bryan. And, no matter how successful in a business way, I have or may become, I can not conscientiously deviate from this course. I believe in "equal rights for all and special privileges for none." I know and appreciate our obligations to the private interests mentioned above, and will say that as long as the public feels that it gets fair treatment, they will not be disturbed. But, if I am elected mayor, and an attempt is made to take from the public more than a just profit for services rendered, bonds will be issued and public utilities will be installed and competition will be assured, if I find I have the authority so to do.

If I am elected, I will endeavor to do what I can to keep Lincoln on the map, and continue to be a growing city, not necessarily the "biggest" one, but the best one in which to live and enjoy life. And this means a contented and happy city of home owners, and home builders. I do not want the young men of today living here to come back fifty years hence and say as Goldsmith did of his home town of Auburn:

Here, as I take my solitary rounds,
Amid thy tangling walks and ruined grounds,
And, many a year elapsed, returned to view,
Where once the cottage stood, the hawthorn grew,
Remembrance wakes with all her busy train,
Swells at my breast and turns the past to pain.

CHARLES A. LORD.

After Death, What? Lincoln People Discuss Their Views of Life in the Other World

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

The mysterious darkness that hangs like a curtain between this world and the "other room" is subject for much theorizing by scientist and layman alike. The obscure something called "death" that is the connecting link between the two worlds is so intangible, so impenetrable that it holds a weird fascination for us all. No matter how we struggle to take our thoughts away from it, they turn back and surround it the closer.

As the world has advanced, so has the thought of death lost a large portion of its horror. In bygone years death was rarely pictured other than in fantastic and gruesome shapes. Even ministers of the Gospel who were supposed to lend comfort rather than tear at open wounds, added their bit by telling of the ghastly depths of the cold grave, and of the lonesomeness to be experienced by those who were left. They thought their funeral services not a success unless it brought tears and sighs from all who were present.

Death Loses Terror.

Perhaps one thing for which we are grateful as far as the war is concerned is the fact that it changed the belief of the multitudes in regard to this. Death has lost its terror.

The heathen's conception of death is a shadowy abode in which there is neither sight, nor voice, nor life, only the dim pretense or vision, only the mere echo of a voice and the mere shadow of life.

And close upon the heathen were the hundreds of thousands of other, professing the Christian faith, who felt that death was the end. Always there have been those who disputed this, but they were far in the minority. The "hundreds-of-thousands" scoffed at the idea that there was anything after death other than a burning hell or a heaven somewhere in the sky. They considered the thought of any communication between the two worlds following the demise, little short f rank heresy.

Death has always been and will continue to be. It is only our ideas of it that change, and the idea of the average person has shifted perceptibly since the war.

"The war," says Sir Oliver Lodge, noted English scientist, "has opened the hearts of thousands to evidence which formerly appealed only to their heads."

It may be our fervent desire to believe communication is possible that is responsible for the change. The thousands upon thousands of boys who "went west" left behind them families who would not and could not believe that it was the end, and they began to search diligently for some sign to prove to them that even though invisible to them, their sons were close.

Human Nature the Same.

"Human nature is much the same the world over" said Rev. A. P. S. Hyde, rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, "and it is also much the same in different ages of the world' history. As Dives sought to influence his brothers by a special message from the spirit world, so there are many people today who are constantly seeking to communicate with those who have passed through the gates of death.

"One result of the great war was a revival of interest in spiritism. It seems to me there is nothing new in it. Way back in the Book of Deuteronomy, Moses warned the Chldren of Israel to avoid necromancers and those who have familiar spirits.'

"To us in the church it is interesting to note that science is now convinced of the continued existence of personality after death, but we did not need this corroboration. Since childhood we have known that Jesus Christ rose victorious from the tomb, and thereby conquered. Be cause He lives, we know that we, too, are immortal souls and that we shall live on for all eternity, for weal or for woe according as we make use of our opportunities and talent in this life.

Talk With Spirjts?

"The question that concerns me is not can we communicate with those in the spirit world, but rather, ought we to do it?

"Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle are ardent advocates of communication with the spirit world, but over against them we may set the name of an equally prominent man who takes the directly opposite view, I refer to Rudyard Kipling."

Everone is familiar with the story of Saul, the King of Israel, who was beset by his enemies the Philistines. He greatly missed the wise counsel of the Prophet Samuel. Although as king, he had issued an edict forbidding subjects to communicate with mediums, he was finally persuaded to go in disguise to the Witch of Endor and besought her to call up Samuel. She did, and the prophet rebuked Saul for "disquieting his soul."

It was this story, no doubt, that Rudyard Kipling had in mind when he wrote "The Road to Endor," which followed the report that his son, who was in the service, was "among the missing." No word was ever sent to the bereaved father as to the fate his son had met, and while he believed in a hereafter, Kipling firmly disbelieved in trying to communicate with the spirit world, as is shown n the followng poem:

"The Road to Endor is easy to tread
For mother or yearning wife.
There, it is sure, we will meet our dead

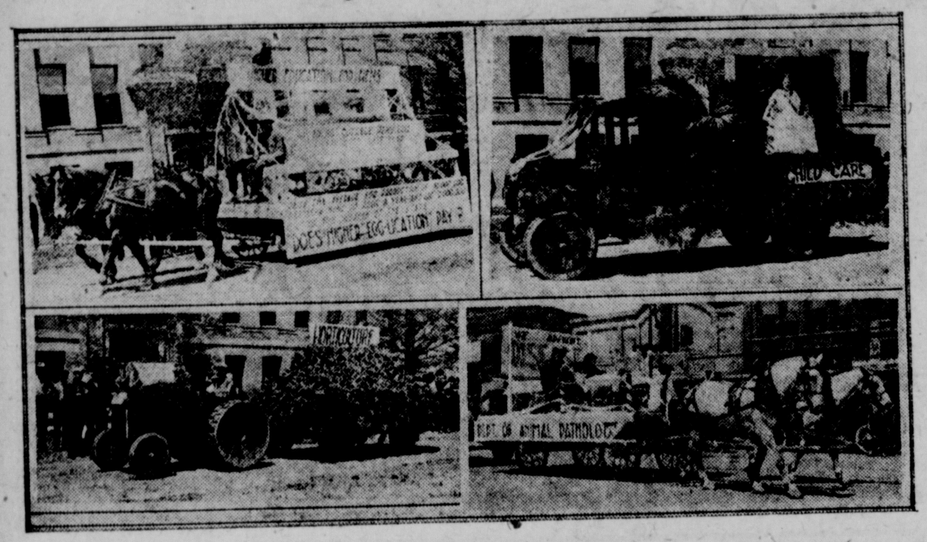
917-21 O Street

Farmers' Fair, Funfest of Ag Students at University of N ebraska, Is Next Saturday



One of the biggest events of university life will take place next Saturday when the agricultural college will give the annual Farmers' fair opening with the parade which will go through O street between 11 and 12 o'clock. Four of the floats in last year's parade are shown above, representing (upper left) the poultry department, (upper right) animal pathology.

The parade always attracts large crowds, and many residents of Lincoln and people from out of town as well as students in all the colleges of the university attend the fair at the agricultural college campus. Every department will be represented in the parade which will be made up of twenty-five or thirty elaborate floats and additional features including clowns and a large number of horseback riders, both boys and girls. Starting out from the agricultural college the parade will go on Holdrege street to Thirty-third, on Thirty-third south to R, on R to Twenty-sixth, then over to O, on O street from Twenty-sixth west to Tenth sreet, over to R street, back to Thirty-third, then to Holdrege and to the agricultural college.

The fair will open at 12 o'clock, immediately after the parade, and will remain open until late in the evening. Special features will be the wild west show at 1:30, the Nebraska-Missouri ball game and a pageant by the home economics girls.

The wild west show has always been one of the biggest side shows at the Farmers' fair and it promises to be bigger and better than ever this year. It will include a horse-riding and a steer-riding contest open to anybody who cares to ride whether a student or not. Monte Munn, varsity football hero, intends to enter the horse riding contest, and Sidney Manning, who comes from Hyannis and has done a lot of riding in country fairs, will also ride. Frank Bond, Texas student, who is an experienced steer rider, will enter that contest. Good prizes will be offered by local merchants.

The need for the conservation of forests will be presented by the home economics department in a "Masque of Conservation."

In addition to these features, dancing will be going on all afternoon and evening in the Engineering and the Home Economics buildings. There will be a number of side shows and the Snorpheum will repeat its performances. The popular Yellow Dog Saloon will be running again this year.

Do you remember those days as a kid you anxiously stood on the street corner waiting for the circus parade to come along? Of course you do. We all do. That is just the same sensation that the older people in Lincoln, as well as the kiddies are going to undergo the morning of May 5, for that is the "big day" in the Nebraska Agricultural college.

Thes tudents of the college set aside the first Saturday in May each year for Farmers' Fair. The Fair is planned and managed entirely by the students with the faculty cooperating through educational exhibits. It is the largest student activity in the University of Nebraska involving an annual expenditure of more than $2,000.

The first indication to outsiders that the Fair has started will be the mammoth parade down O street at noon. Twenty or thirty floats will visualize to the crowds the nature of the instruction carried on at the college of Nebraska's basic industry. Mingling with these will be comics that will touch the funny bone of the most solemn person. You cannot fully appreciate in any degree the magnitude and diversity of the nation's greatest industry until you see these floats.

Shows on The Midway.

During the afternoon and evening there will be sufficient entertainment on the Ag Campus for everyone. The Midway with its wonderful collection of sideshows will show the ingenuity of the Ags at play. The Wild West show will satisfy the blood thirsty desires of many, and those who have the ability to ride the outlaw horses and steers can compete for the prize.

The Universities of Nebraska and Missouri will cross bats in a hotly contested game at 3:30. The Snorpheum and Minstrels will play to crowded houses both afternoon and evening.

One of the prize steers has been groomed especially for the sacrifice that day. Your mouth will water for a taste of the huge slabs of this barbecued steer. No fair would be complete without eats and drinks so there will be plenty of them for all.

In the natural arena of the campus the home economics girls will present the Grecian pageant "The Mask of Conservation." This will take place in the early afternoon and evening and the beauty of it has not been equalled by any similar institution. Outdoor movies will follow the pageant. Football games, western pictures, university activities and other scenes will glide by on the silver screen. The habitual Saturday night movie fan will not have to break this habit to go to Farmers' Fair.

Dancing for all will be an attraction of both afternoon and evening. The large halls on the campus and the huge open air pavilion will furnish ample room for all. The tantalizing music of the best orchestras in Lincoln will make your feet itch for action.

Educational Exhibits.

But the Fair is not all a fun fest. Far from it. The students realize that they are attending a good college and are proud of it. In order to show the visitors their pride they are throwing open the institution for your inspection. Every building and laboratory on the campus will be open. Guides and guide books will answer all oyur questions. Actual demonstrations in the laboratories will show the work done in the regular college courses.

The livestock owned by the Nebraska Agricultural college numbers more than 1,000 animals. The best of these will be on dress parade the fifth. Ambitious "biddy" will direct you to her wares with a business-like cackle. You can go through and inspect the finest agricultural engineering and dairy buildings in the world. In them you will find some of the most interesting and instructive exhibits imaginable. The Home Economics building you will find the numerous exhibits of the work done by the home economics girls. This season of the year will attract many to the exhibits of the field crops and silos department. In Rural Economics will be found exhibits on the economic phases of farm life. The many other departments, vocational education, plant pathology, entomology, horticulture, chemistry, and animal pathology will have their wares out for your inspection.

Reasons For the Fair.

In brief then, the Farmers' Fair is staged each spring for three purposes. First, as an advertising medium; second, as a celebration; and third, as training for the students in the management of so large an enterprise.

The board this year consists of Elton Lux, manager; James Adams, assistant manager; Robert Weir, secretary; George Scheidt, treasurer; and Phyllis Sprague and Frances Weintz, home ecenomics.

The Fair is a self-supporting business-like enterprise and is managed in a strictly business-like manner. The Ags are making preparations for one of the greatest crowds in the history of the Fair.

LINCOLN PEOPLE DISCUSS DEATH

As they were, even in life.
Earth has not dreamed of the blessings in store
For desolate hearts on the road to Endor.

Whispers shall comfort us out of the dark—
Hands—ah God—that we new!
Visions and voices—look and hark—
Shall prove that our tale is true
And that those who have passed to the further shore,
May be halted—at a price— on the road to Endor.

But they are deep in their new eclipse
Nothing they say can reach,
Unless it is uttered by alien lips.
And framed in a stranger's speech.
The son must send word to the mother that bore,
Through an hireling's mouth.
'Tis the rule of Endor."

There are three other verses that deal with the visit to Endor and of what occurs there, all showing Kiping's aversion to the thought of communication.

Says Why Should We Worry

and-ten mark, refers to death as a One of Lincoln's best beloved men who has reached the three-score-second birth. He fully believes that there is as much preparation going on in the other world for the coming of one from this world, as there is here ofr the reception of a new born babe.

"They know that we are coming," said this man. "They know it and they are just as anxious to have us come as we are to have the baby come to us. They love us and they watch over us all of the time.

"We all have the wrong idea of death. It is not tragic, there is even nothing sad about it. It is our selfishness here that makes us grieve. Of course we miss those who go before us, but we mourn over the graves and take flowers and plants out there as if our loved ones were really there. They are not there, nor have they ever been there in that grave that we mourn over. Sometime I think we know better, but it is custom to do the things we do, to decorate the graves and the like. One person does it and then everyone does."

The theory given by this man, that those who have gone before us watch over us and know the things that happen here is contradicted by the belief of another who says that he thinks that those in the other world are not hampered by any unhappiness that may be experienced here.

"When one dies ,or passes on, we should say, they leave worldliness behind them. Why should they be kept to the earth by our troubles when they are supposed to be free?

"That is one reason that I am inclined to disregard the theory of communication. I am thorougly convinced that one lives on even after death, but I can not quite believe that the two worlds are connected to the extent that some do."

Young 'Set Too Busy.

"I don't believe that younger people give much thought to death," said a very prominent Lincoln man, who is still quite young. "I was thinking recently, though, when we look bac upon the years that are gone, and consider that the time has been short, and that the years to come will seem shorter still, life at its best is very brief. When one remembers the thousands of years the world has been in xistence, and then realizes the very short time we spend in it, it gives a rather peculiar feeling.

"I can't imagine spirits, though. There is a hereafter, I know, but what it is, and what happens is beyond me.'

A Lincoln woman tells us that if there is anything to life there must be something to death. Her belief that this earth is just one of the stations where we must abide awhile before finishing our journey is not a new one. Others have expressed the same idea.

"Life is really nothing but spirit said this woman. "And that is all thit is left after the body decays, just spirit. I believe that our spirit is advanced according to our intellect, and our desire to do good. I do not believe a brilliant man who is a crook can possibly be in the same sphere as a man who is not quite so intelligent but who at heart is a much better man. I believe that we are spirit before we come to this earth, and that there is no such thing as death, we merely progress."

Such are the views of some of Lincoln's citizens regarding death.

ALONG THE TRAIL · ITS SPRINGTIME

can not go to nature ,we surely can bring nature to us.

Of course there are not so many places in any one of these parks where one can go hunting for stray little violets, and other wild flowers, or search for bird's nests and the like. It is true that we must use our imagination to some extent, and make-believe ,that we are a thousand miles from bricks and pavement and tall buildings, but it can be done.

One disadvantage about a park is that you know where everything is. You can't just happen on to a little rustic bridge, or a pretty pool of water, because you knew it was there all of the time—you can't go looking for any nests because you know there are none unless they are in the tree tops, and park tres or not to be climbed—you can't go hunting for flowers because you can see them right in front of you all of the time, and besides that they are not supposed to be picked.

There are many, many things one cannot do, but you can walk through the winding little lanes and drives, and admire everything. The flowers are so beautiful where they are that you have no desire to take them away, and it is true with everything you see. It is so perfect right there that disturbing it is far from your mind.

It is springtime along the trail—But it is springtime, here, too. The homliest spot that has been such an ugly duckling during the winter months is now a beautiful swan. Spring works many miracles, it can take away the drabness of the world in a single day, almost, and can turn everything green and pink and white with just a few raindrops and warm sun.

It is almost time for the lilacs again, spring brings those, too, and the tulips, red, yellow, pink white and many other colors, have already arrived decked in their very best. The little almond trees are blooming and it will not be long until the birds will find safe havens in the tree tops, sheltered by thousands of green leaves. The iris will be out before long, and with the coming of May will be lovely peonies and large fluffy snowballs. They are fast waking up, one after the other, and are anxious to be out again where the sun is warm, for they, too, love the springtime as much as we do, and perhaps more, for springtime to them means life to us it is the bringing of another phase of Mother Nature's beauty.

The Freshman edition of the Midland, always to be told by its gorgeous hue of green, is out this week.

"Representative Nebraskans" at University Announced

What qualities are included in the makeup of a representative student of the University of Nebraska? Popularity is difficult to define. Is it that elusive quality of personality, brilliancy in studies, prominence in university activities or in the case of a girl, perhaps, just beauty alone? From a study of the personality and activities of the ten girls and ten men who ranked the highest in the "representative Nebraskan college, conducted by the editorial staff of the Cornhusker one, would say it was a combination of all with prominence in university affairs taking the leading part.

The ten girls, the names arranged in alphabetical order, upon whom has been bestowed the title of "Representative Girls of the University of Nebraska" are Adelheit Dettman, Belle Farnam, Josephine Gund, Mildred Hullinger, Valora Hullinger Lucille Johnson, Hope Ross, Bernice Scoville Margaret Stidworthy and Dorothy Williams. The ten men are Jack Austin James, Fiddocck Harold Hartley Chauncey Nelson Floyd K. Reed Leo Scherer, Andrew Schoeppel, Glen Warren, Adolph Wenke and J. Wilbur Wolfe. The photographs of the four girls and the four men who received the greatest number of votes will appear in the Cornhusker of 1923. The identity of these eight will be kept a secret until the Cornhusker makes its appearance about May 15.

A full page has been devoted to each one and accompaning the principal photograph will be smaller ones representing different activities and a sketch of the affiliations and activities.

The photographs of both girls and men are being displayed today for the first time in the windows of leading Lincoln merchants, the girls at Sardeson and Hovland and the men at Speier and Simon's.

This year's Cornhusker promises to be most attractive and its appearance is looked forward to with great interest in university circles. Adolph E. Wenke is the editor and the business manager is Audley N. Sullivan.

Miss Vivian Hanson Becomes Bride of Joseph John Grainger

An interesting wedding of the spring season was that last evening of Miss Vivian Hanson, daughter of Mrs. Tolf Hanson, to Joseph John Grainger, second son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Grainger, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock at the Alpha Chi Omega sorority house, 1410 Q street, where Miss Hanson and her mother have made their home. The guests numbered 200 and were the young friends of the couple, old family friends and relatives. The marriage service was read by Dr. B. M. Nyce, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

The ceremony took place in the living room before the fireplace which was screened with a tall screen of green and silver. The mantel above was a bank of asparagus fern, smilax, pink roses snapdragons, while on either side burned a group of six cathedral candles in tall floor pedestal candlesticks. Low pedestals wound with smilax and connected with ropes of smilax formed a small aisle through which the wedding party passed. A white prie dieu, a gift to the Alpha Chi Omega girls from Mrs. Fred Sidles after her wedding, was placed before the screen and on this the couple knelt during the prayer

Miss Frances Whitmore was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant She wore a lovely gown of apricot crepe beaded in pearls and iridescent beads She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Her Titian hair was dressed high and was uncovered and the veil fell from a narrow band and stiff frill of rosepoint across the back of the hair. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and whrite roses.

Ernest Grainger was his brother's best man.

Badger Clark, the Cowboy Poet of South Dakota, a Guest Here

Badger Clark, the Black Hills or Cowboy poet as he is often called, the author of "Ridin'", "Home-wreckers," "Great Institution," "Tuck's Quiet Wedding and many, many other stories and poems, arrived in Lincoln Friday evening with his mother, to be the guests of Bess Gearhart Morrison and her family, and ex-Governor and Mrs. S. R. McKelvie.

Badger Clark is as well beloved by his state, South Dakota, as any celebrity from any state, but the thing that this famous poet likes best is that in his own home town he is not noted for his poetry or histories or anything like that. He is just one among them, he sings in the church choir, is active in all of the entertainments put on by the young people, and is just "folks" like everyone else in the town.

Sunset Scribner's, Ladies' Home Journal, Current Opinion, are some of the magazines to which Mr. Clark has made contributions.

Many of his stories would make splendid scenarios, in the opinion of Mrs. McKelvie, and it is this that brings Mr. Clark to Lincoln after repeated efforts on the part of Mrs. McKelvie and Mrs. Morrison to have him home.

The South Dakota poet was born January 1, 1883 in Albia, Ia. He is of Puritan stock on his father's side, and his mother's people were Pennsylvania Quakers. Shortly after his birth, his parents moved to South Dakota, which was then frontier territory.

Badger Clark had his first taste of pioneering at the age of six months, when his mother, in the absence of his father and elder brothers, held hi min one arm while she drove a plow team and turned enough sod to save the home from one of the sudden prairie fires.

During his teens, Mr. Clark spent his time in the Black Hills near Deadwood, and then entered Dakota Wesleyan college, where he remained for one year. Then came an opportunity to go to Cuba in the interest of colonization work, and he went.

He knows his frontier perfectly, he knows the cowboy, and everything pertaining to the west, for he is a true westerner.

It is but recently that the poet has been prevailed upon to read some of his own things. He will do this Monday evening at Nebraska Wesleyan.

Sunday morning Mr. Clark will speak at the Y. M. C. A. breakfast, and Sunday afternoon and evening, ex-Governor and Mrs. McKelvie will entertain a few guests informally for Mr. Clark and his mother.

The following verse written by Mr. Clark typifies his character perhaps better than anything else could do:

I waste no thought on my neighbor's birth
Or the way he makes his prayer;
I grant him a white man's place on earth
If his game is only square.
While he plays it straight I'll call him mate,
If he cheats, I drop him flat.
All rank but this is a worn out lie,
For all clean men are as good as I,
And a king is only that.

TELLS OF WRITER

Bess Streeter Aldrich.

At the last meeting of the Havelock Woman's club, Mrs. J. L. Biddlecom gave an interesting talk on Bess Streeter Aldrich, basing her remarks on a reception given by the Elmwood Woman's club in recognition of Bess Streeter Aldrich, who has brought honor to the state where she has lived during the past sixteen years.

Mrs. Biddlecom describes her as "A kindly, sweet mother and woman; unassuming and genuine—a rare woman. Eyes that see through one, but filled with charity." The noted writer told the company of the hard work and struggle through which each must pass to reach success, the patience and perseverance to be trained and practiced before a single story is accepted.

The list of her sold stories numbers almost one hundred that have been published in the following magazines: American, Ladies Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion Delineator, Designer, McCalls, Harper's Weekly, Black Cat and others. She is syndicating the stories through the Metropolitan Newspaper Snydicate as fast as the first serial rights run out. She is also reselling them to the British magazines in London.

The tribute paid her by the Elmwood women present, as they expressed appreciation of the trend her work has taken and the purity and sweetness of everything her pen produces, became a perfect ovation.

Who's Who in Lincoln

MRS. C. W. HUDSON

Mrs. C. W. Hudson is the companion and playmate of her two sons. One in the university and one in high school. Although a life long worker in women's activities, she still finds time and opportunity to be a valued chum to her two boys. She has served the Y. W. C. A. as a member of the board of directors, has been regent of a chapter of D. A. R., and is always a hard worker whose opinion is sought after, as one of the members declared. Mrs. Hudson says of her hobby: "I am very fond of everything out of doors. I go with my boys when they hunt and fish. We all three get into the front seat and away we go. We camp out along the way and breathe in the good fresh air of the wonderful out of doors. Sometimes we walk miles and miles together. Wherever they go I am with them, not only in person but in thinking, for their pleasure is mine."

Mrs. Hudson has one daughter who is teaching in a northern city, and away from home during the school year. This lady and her family removed to Lincoln from Norfolk two years ago, coming here to educate her boys.

DISPLAYS MINIATURE OIL RIG

—Picture By MacDonald.

One of the interesting features of Engineer's night was the miniature oil rig made and displayed by the members of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, honorary geological fraternity. The deerrick was made absolutely to scale, twelve to one. There was not a part missing, everything about the oil rig was there even to the tiny trap door where the stone and sand from the digging are emptied. The derrick was in action during the display Thursday evening and was run by a small dynamo. Beside derrick was a miniature oil field that proved particularly interesting to the majority of people.

Former Lincolnite Basks In Sunshine of Movie Actors' Smiles at Pacific Studios

One thrill! Two thrills! Three thrills!

All in a row—Elliott Dexter, Jack Holt, Gloria Swanson, and then a teenty little one that answered for a glimpse of May McAvoy.

Can you imagine having tea with Gloria in her little cottage, and Gloria all dressed up in a charming pink negligee that trailed along the ground?

And can you imagine Elliott Dexter asking you if he looked better or worse in pictures?

And then Jack Holt!

And May McAvoy!

And Marshall Neilan!

And a whole lot of others that were also interesting—Kathryn Williams for instance.

All this happened to Mrs. Ashley DeWitt, formerly of Lincoln, but now of Long Beach, Calif., who recently visited some of the film studios and saw all of the mentioned celebrities.

The following letter to Mrs. DeWitt's mother, Mrs. C. Moran of Lincoln, tells of the interesting visit at the studios:

Meet Cecil DeMille.

"We went over to the Famous Players' studio and met Cecil DeMille, then we went out on sets and it surely is a big business. Some of the sets are very elaborate. They were taking a jury scene and we waited about a half hour, and still they were not ready to shoot it.

While we were waiting there we met Jack Holt and Elliott Dexter. Dexter visited with us all of the time we waited and Ash told him how much he liked him in pictures. Then Dexter said, "How do I look in pictures, better or worse?" Rita stepped on Ash's foot, and he said, "Oh, you look very natural." He should have said, "You are better looking in person," as Rita says all of the movie people are conceited.

Then we went to the set where Gloria was making "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," but only three actors were on the set. Gloria was resting, the yhad been waiting all day for a door. I never saw such waiting and so many idle men, carpenters and so forth. We went 'over to Gloria's cottage then, and now comes the real thrill—Gloria's cottage is a little two room bungalow, one room furnished like a living room with beautiful things. Gloria had on a pink negligee with a long train. She is awfully pretty for she has such lovely skin and such pretty eyes. Her hair is bobbed and is all in ringlets. She called her maid who answers the phone and waits in the other room, and we had tea. No use describing what a kick I got out of that. We talked about clothes, cars, rings, hats and playing Mah Jongg.

May McAvoy Arrives.

We had made an appointment at the Goldwyn studios for 3 o'clock, and as we can go to the Famous Players any time, and can only go to the Goldwyn on appointment, we left, and just as we were leaving we met May McAvoy who was just coming to work.

When we arrived at the Goldwyn studios we met Mr. Lehr, the studio manager, who was just marvelous to us. Marshall Neilan was in the office talking to Mr. Lehr when we went in so we met him, also. All of these people look exactly like they do in pictures. Mr. Lehr rang for Mr. Roberts and asked him to show us around. First we went to a set and saw Eleanor B—, King Vidor was directing, but we didn't wait to see them shoot as there seemed to be some delay. Then we looked at different sets, and I saw the stairway used in "Rich Men's Wives," where Claire Windsor saw her baby. Then we went over to see Kathryn Williams working in "Six Days," Charles Brennon directing. Here we saw them shoot the same scene three times before it was at all satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kaufmann on these excursions through the studios. Mr. Kaufmann is one of the prominent directors. Mrs. Kaufmann is a cousin of Mrs. De Witt.

—Dole portrait.

Can you guess?

It might be Richard Barthelmess, the screen favorite, or again it might be Rudy himself, but it is neither, it is Karl Rinehart Nedom, who was chosen by a Paramount Pictures association representative as a type suitable for the screen, during a recent movie contest conducted by The Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Miss Ladd, the representative, considered Mr. Nedom of the romantic type of which Valentino and Barthelmess are the standards. This is due probably to the drooping eye which very much resembles that of Valentino, and is somewhat like the expressive ones of Barthelmess.

Screen Siftings

Lloyd Bacon, son of the late Frank Bacon, is directing one-reel comedies for Universal.

Baby Peggy Montgomery has just completed her last two-reel comedy for Universal. It is called "The Orphan" and was made under the direction of Alf Goulding. Hereafter Little Miss Montgomery will make five reel pictures. The Orphan" is the fortieth two-reel comedy the little lady has made since she began her career when she was two years old. Other members of "The Orphan" cast are Lillian Worth, Charlotte Rich and John Balesco.

Louise Dresser is the latest star to add to the payroll of "Salomy Jane," the next George Melford picture. The other players in the picture so far are Jacqueline Logan, Maurice Flynn and William Davidson.

Gloria Swanson's picture in fireworks is one of the novel effects in "Prodigal Daughters," the latest Paramount release. Beneath the fireworks picture is the word "Swiftie," the name of the character Miss Swanson portrays in the film. The idea was worked out and put into effect with the assistance of a prominent fireworks manufacturer as one of the features of a night party in one of the scenes of the picture.

Lewis Stone, the hero of "The Danger Age," and who played the dual role of the King and Rupert Rassendyll in "The Prisoner of Zenda," is to be a villian, the Marquis de La La Tour D'Azyr, in "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's next Metro production. Alice Terry is the heroine of the picture, and Hamon Novarre will play Scaramouche. "Scaramouche" is a story of the French Revolution.

There are nineteen famous movie players in the cast of "The Spoilers," the famous Rex Beach story which Jesse D. Hampton is producing for Goldwyn. Among the most prominent are Milton Sills, Noah Berry, Barbara Bedford, Anna Q. Nilsson, Robert Edeson, Wallace McDonald, Louise Fazenda, and William V. Mong. $130,000 was paid for the film rights to the novel, and the picture is being produced on an elaborate scale.

Richard Walton Tully has engaged James Young to direct his "Trilby" in which Adree Lafayett, the young French star, will have the title role. Mr. Young directed "The Masquerader," and "Omar the Tentmaker," which Mr. Tully made with Guy Bates Post as the star. Other members of the cast for "Trilby" besides Miss Lafayette, are Creighton Hale, who plays the role of Little Billie, Arthur Edmund Carew, as Svengali, and Maurice Cononge, the French comedian.

Tom Moore has gone to Hollywood, where he will play the leading role opposite Viola Dana in "Rouge Lips," which she is making from Rita Weiman's story. Renee Adoree, in private life, Mrs. Tom Moore, is also on the Metro salary list. She is playing in Reginald Barker's "The Law Bringers."

Dorothy Dalton has begun work on a new picture under the direction of Ralph Ince, at the Paramount Long Island studio. It is a French story, adapted from the play "Leah Kleseena," by H. M. S. McLellan. James Renie, Alphonz Ethier, Frederick Lewis are members of the supporting cast.

"The Silent Partner," which ran as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post," is the story which is being adapted to the screen as a Paramount production with Leatrice Joy and Owen Moore in the title roles. the production. Miss Joy recently completed her work in George Melford's "You Can't Fool Your Wife."

Alice Calhoun has the role of "Bennie Bell" in "The Man Next Door," which Victor Schertzinger is directing at the Vitagraph studio. The story is by Emerson Hough, author of the Paramount feature, "The Covered Wagon." Other members of the cast are James Morrison, who played opposite Miss Calhoun in "The Little Minister," Frank Sheridan, David Torrence, John Steppling, Adele Farrington and Mary Culver.

Thomas H. Ince will produce one big screen classic yearly as a feature of his future production schedules, according to an announcement just made. "Evangeline," Longfellow's beloved poem, will be the first of the Ince series. Madge Bellamy, who has signed a three year contract with Ince, will be the "Evangeline" of the story.

Wesley Barry has completed his twelve weeks personal appearance tour in connection with Warner Brothers, "Heroes of the Street." His next picture will be "The Printer's Devil," an original by Julian Josephson. William Baudine will direct.

Lincoln Woman, on Missionary Staff, Tells of Experiences and Conditions in Far Away India

East does meet West sometimes, and one of the meeting places is the little mission schools in the heart of India. For five years Miss Lulu Boles, whose occidental home is at 2922 Dudley street, has been closely connected with the feminine East at the Lee Memorial mission in Calcutta. Her work has been largely with the business side of the mission, but she has met and worked with girls coming to the school and she realizes that more of these educated women is the leavening that India needs.

"India is a lovely country and I am almost homesick for it," said Miss Lulu Boles, who only this week returned from the Orient. For five years she has been in India, and after a month in America and a few weeks in Europe, she longs to return to that mysterious country.

Miss Boles has been on the staff of the Lee Memorial mission, a Methodist boarding school for Indian girls, in Calcutta, as business secretary. Her work has been largely clerical and statistical, but in the evenings and on Sundays she taught the Indian girls who came to the school for instruction. In December, when Miss Boles returns, she is to be assistant treasurer of the women's work in India. The women's foreign mission board of the Methodist church is to have headquarters in India, and it is with these headquarters Miss Boles will be connected.

In spite of her appreciation of the country, Miss Boles sees very clearly that India has an uncertain future and that many, many years will elapse before its women can take any part in its affairs or make any great effort to help themselves. Of the situation, Miss Boles says:

Far From Enlightened.

"There is a constant struggle between superstition and enlightenment in India. Even the girls who do become enlightened and see the horror of some of the ancient customs, have very terrible struggles before they can overcome the superstition of their parents. Particularly is this true among the Christian Indian girls who refuse to marry a man they do not know or to be forced into a disagreeable marriage. They struggle courageously to support their new beliefs, but it is very hard for them.

"The great mass of Indian women are uneducated, of course. They can not read, and they do not know the movement for freedom that has taken place among the women of other countries. They are so seldom seen, they have no contact with the world, and the majority of them can imagine no other life—therefore they do not envy the women of other countries or dream that life could be different.

"There are exceptions. Even though uneducated, many of them have fine minds, and some feel that women should not be slaves, but they are unable to express themselves. Indian women can take part in a woman movement only in the far future, for they must be brought out of seclusion first, then educated, then enlightened as to their possibilities.

High Cast Organization.

"An organization known as the Bramosamaj has grown up among high caste women of India, which is doing excellent work among the people. The women of the organization do no work, but they supply workers and ideas for their project.

"One of the finest things they have done is to refuse to have their daughters marry under the age of sixteen. Of course, thousands of girls in India are not affected by this organization or its measures, but the force of example means a great deal. It is a step that has been so very greatly needed in India, as every one knows.

"Through the Bramosamaj, a large amount of social service work has been done among the poorer castes. Medical students have been sent into epidemic ridden parts of the country, workers are sent into the homes, to teach the Indian women of sanitation, child health, and child welfare. Many workers have gone into flood districts to assist the sufferers.

"The great need is for strong and highly educated women in India.

Miss Boles stated that it was very difficult to get teachers for the schools, and the majority of those obtainable were native teachers, graduates of the mission schools. In the Lee mission, which is attended by two hundred native girls, the entire staff of twelve teachers is Indian, with a missionary principal. The students come largely from the villages in the vicinity of Calcutta, some from the city, with its population of more than a million.

School Well Equipped.

The Lee mission is an attractive three-story building of brick, entirely modern in its construction and equipment. In addition to the class rooms, it contains living quarters for the faculty and the students are of all ages, and receive instruction in all grades from the kindergarten through the high school and normal training work. The curricula of the British government is followed in this school, as in all boarding schools. It is only in the day schools that an individual curriculum is arranged, as the students are under ten years of age and can be given the most rudimentary subjects in the most rudimentary manner. Classes are taught between 10:30 and 4 o'clock.

Speaking of the educational situation, Miss Boles said:

"The British government has turned over the control of educational affairs to India, and we have a native minister of education. The supervisor has been an Anglo-Saxon, but on her retirement this year, an Indian woman is to be appointed. The assistant supervisors have all been native women.

"The more Indian teachers and supervisors that we can secure, the more rapid will be the Indian educational advancement. They speak the language, of course, with more ease than we ever can and they understand that peculiar thing, the Indian mind. They know the Indian background, also, and can meet the Indian girl, on her own level and at her own understanding. The British have the schools for the boys, so we have nothing to do with that, but mission schools care for the girls."

Home Rule Favored.

Miss Boles mentioned that political affairs in India are very quiet at present. All Indians are strongly in favor of home rule, but affairs are not progressing very rapidly. Since the arrest of Ghandi, his supporters have been less active, either because they lack his power or leadership or because his personality carried them along, and they can not move forward without his aid.

With a party of twelve missionaries on furlough and three children, Miss Boles returned to this country by way of Europe. They were sixteen days on the water between India and Italy. Enjoying herself, rather than studying conditions, as she was, Miss Boles stated that she could not help but notice how very peaceful Italy was for a country so lately in the throes of revolution. She said that Mussolini was held in the very highest favor by Italians and the Fascisti seemed strongly in power. In Paris, Miss Boles enjoyed that most feminine of pastimes, shopping, with a little sightseeing thrown in for good measure.

MIDLAND COLLEGE.

The boys' glee club returned Sunday ,April 22, after a trip to a number of the towns in northeastern Nebraska. Though hindered a little by the rain, all reports are that it was a successful trip.

The boys' and girls' glee clubs will combine and form a chorus to begin work this week on the music for commencement week.

Oily skin

How you can correct it

An oily, shiny skin is not only unattractive in itself—it is especially liable to infection from dust.

You can overcome this condition by using, each night, the following treatment:

FIRST cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. Then rub your face for a few seconds with a piece of ice.

Within a week or ten days this treatment will bring about a marked improvement.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

Morning, evening, noon and night
"Praise God" sang Theocrite.
Then to his poor trade he turned
Whereby the daily meal was earned.

Winter Clothes May be Used Again.

If the proper care is taken of them when they are packed away for the summer. The greatest pest of all for the housewife is the moth who loves to put holes in our most prized possession. Pillers' have found the remedy for this in moth foods. Sprinkle through the clothes just before storing them away and the winter will find them as good as new. Come in 15, 25' and 50 cent packages.

Recent trips to Spain are perhaps accountable for the marked popularity of the black lace mantilla, worn with dinner frocks by the debutantes of a few seasons ago, for evenings of entertainment.

Colton's Celebrate Establishment in Lincoln.

Just a year ago Colton's began business here and in order to show their appreciation for the patronage shown them they are having an Anniversary sale. Every article in the store will be reduced tremendously and it will be a decided advantage for all women who attend. The suits, dresses, capes and coats are going at the very special price of $23.00. Knife pleated skirts in all shades are reduced to $4.95. Dresses include both two and three piece models.

Model house gives private showing of fall styles. Brown and green dominate in fur trimmed street costumes. Elaborate embroideries on day and evening types.

Delicate chiffons favored in bridesmaids' gowns. Use varied floral ornaments. Summer wash frocks distinctly feminine.

Gowns for bridesmaids and cape costumes for mid-summer featured. Bouffant and bustle modes delicately handled.

Multi-color Egyptian and embroidered effects in sweaters featured by department store. Golf coats show spring interpretations.

Recent weeks in Paris have witnessed a series of distinguished weddings, and some of the wedding gowns. In these wedding costumes, one notes a new tendency in the coiffure, a tendency to shape the familiar crown of orange-blossoms into a diadem, not a mere fillet of flowers, such as has been seen before, but a true diadem of the very shape of those diadems of brilliants made by Cartier or Chaumet, which these brides will wear a few weeks after their weddings.

It is interesting to note, however, that this novelty in the coiffure is adopted or rejected by the independent young things of today according to its becomingness. Many young faces find other arrangements more in accord with their lines and choose a novelty of a different order, as in the case of Mademoiselle Pepin Lehalleur, who adopts an eighteenth-century shepherdess arrangement, which leaves the forehead bare and throws the veil of applique lace back over the hair.

Double Value in Trading Stamps.

Gold's offer with each purchase made at their store the famous S. and H. Green Trading stamps. If you have not already started to save these it would pay you to start now for in time they will accummulate until you can turn them in and receive something that you have long desired and have never been able to afford.

We are rapidly leaving behind us even the remembrance of the young person who did nothing, but who, we must admit, did it very gracefully. Nor are we like the Frenchman who, when asked if he was fond of sports, answered that "he loved fo kodak." The vast majority of women nowadays are leading busy and streenuous lives, and clothes adapted from what we call sports clothes are the most practical for an active life. In fact, there are so few occasions when elaborate dresses are needed, that most women of limited income feel they have not sufficient use for them to warrant the expense they entail. And, unfortunately, the outlay does not end with the gown itself, for there are always many accessories, that must necessarily go with it, most of them essential to a perfect costume of the formal type.

It is not difficult to classify these so-called sports clothes. First, there are the things worn for active sports these should be before all else, practical. The best colour for outing things, to speak in the language of colour science, is "yellow-orange." Neutralized, this colour may become brown, tan, heenna, bronze, copper or, for the lighter shades, biege, brilliant yellow, maize, pale orange, flame or gold. These all combine happily—and the woman who buys a hat, muffler, shoes and stockings in these colors may be sure that they will all harmonize. Many greens can be used together, but they require a far more judicious treatment. Blue is good, violet poor; red, except for an occasional article, impossible. And although grey is charming, it is not wise to use it for sports clothes, it one is dressing on a limited income, because the shades of grey are infinite in number and have to be very sympathetic not to be most painful to the eye.

Sport Novelties in Shoes.

Behold, The footwear of spring that will fill every need from the mode standpoint to the pocketbook, $5.98 the standard price for these smart tan and gray suede and buckskin models. They are trimmed in black patent which forms the strap over the instep. Really I can't begin to numerate all the qualities which these shoes really possess. The very cleverest people know that sport for the street is correct and here is your chance to have what is really elite.

$30,000 Stock of Shoes Are Being Closed Out.

Budd's are practically giving away hundreds of pairs of ladies', men's and children's fine shoes. The reason for this Basement sale is that one of Budd's leases were sold in Denver and the entire stock was sent to Lincoln where they must be sold regardless of the cost. Imagine such prices as $1.00 for 687 pairs of women's shoes and 808 pairs of childrens shoes for 89 cents to $1.89. Don't neglect to take advantage of these wonderful bargains.

Next week brings Spring very close to us when we begin to realize that May is already here. Many daughters are graduating and this time is one of the most precious of girlhood memories. If dressed right for the occasion it will always remain one of the happiest days of a girls life. Let we do anything in the way of shopping to help you plan your graduation.

Silk fabrics retain lead in coat demand. Fur-trimmed models in black and tan reported in favor. Preference is given to self-color embroideries.

Voile frocks for children shown in shaded colors in styles of grown-up derivation. Demand felt for taffetas.

Cleverly tailored coats interesting in Apisdorf group. Black and white combingtions sponsored in satin afternoon frocks. Dyed laces and chiffons for evening.

Presages popularity of straightline fur coat 48-50 inches long.

RADIO NEWS

Harold Smith reports all local amateurs operating as per government regulation, ie. 200 meters (flat) decroment not over 210.

Very few calls report interferance of any kind; some of those reported proved to be "static,' which is very bad during this storm period. The new Rock Island bell system trouble has been eliminated. A broken traction line was soon remedied by that company. There are a few old style arc lights in use that cause considerable trouble for radio fans living in south Lincoln. The X-Ray machines are operated for so short a time and only during the daylight hours that the average radioite seldom hears them.

When you see a wet tree limb sparking on a power line, report to the proper electric company, and know you have done a radio a good deed.

The state university and a few others, are trying out a new radio lamp, that is remarkable in the small amount of electricity required ie, .06 amps. or 1-16 that required for ordinary tube. These are very dark from the chemical it is filled with, and are known as "hard" or high vacuum tubes, used as detector or amplifier, they are smaller than regular size. The reflex, with or without the crystal, is proving the experimenter's delight and remarkable results are being had on a small loop, namely Portland, Ore. Havana Cuba, etc. They are non-regenerative and eliminate the static but are of little advantage on nearby stations. Rev. R. R. Brown ought to have plenty of names, for his new baby girl as W. O. A. W. is letting the radio fans suggest names (A new radio set to the winner who suggests the right name. Rev. Brown conducted the 9:30 a. m. and 9:30 p. m. chapel services for W. O. A. W. last Sunday.

Regular Rest and Lunch Periods Help Bring Back Pink to Cheeks of Bancroft Students

The above pictures were taken at the Bancroft school where fifty-five children take lunch and rest periods regularly, most of them taking twice a day, and many more children take milk once a day during school hours.

The lunch and rest periods at the Bancroft school under the supervision of Miss Belle Corbin are voluntary. The children taking these are doing so at the expressed wish of their parents.

The whole thing started in the fall when Dr. Katherine H. K. Wolfe, school physician, recommended to Miss Corbin that one little girl who was not at all strong be given lunch once a day. Miss Corbin offered to do still more for the little girl by giving her lunch and rest twice a day. Other children became interested and went home and told their parents about the lunch and rest periods. Before long the parents of several of the children who were considerably underweight asked that they be given lunch and rest periods. More and more kept asking to come into the group until it grew to its present size.

The lunch consists of milk and crackers, or in some cases just milk. At first the children brought their lunch from home, but now Miss Corbin orders the milk and crackers and each child pays his share. An exception is made for some of the children who cannot afford to buy milk. Milk is furnished to them free by Roberts' Dairy company which has a fund of $27 for school children who are unable to buy their own milk.

Ten minutes is spent with lunch and twenty minutes in rest. After taking lunch at the tables downstairs the children go to the auditorium, which has a board floor, and roll up in blankets on the floor. They lie flat on the back most of the time, but if they prefer they are allowed to turn over on the stomach for the last few minutes. The children who are able to furnish their own blankets do so, but the school has two and a half dozen army blankets which were given by the Rotary club. Each child has his own blanket and at the close of the year the blankets that belong to the school will be cleaned and put away for use next year. The auditorium windows are kept open so that the children will have plenty of fresh air.

The custom of having the children lie flat on the floor is in use in the eastern schools where the rest periods originated. It is carried out exactly the same way in the Bancroft school, the children not even using pillows except in a few instances where very small pillows are permitted. In work of this kind there always have to be exceptions to the general rule to suite the needs of the individual child. There are six old army cots which were turned over the school by the state, and one or two children sleep on seats arranged in rows.

Miss Corbin said that on the whole the children have not increased in weight very much, but they have held their own which is more than they would ordinarily do during a school year and they have gained a great deal in vitality and general appearance. Some of the children have made decided gains in weight, the largest being made by a girl who weighed 56 pounds when she came into the group November 9 and weighed 68 pounds on April 13, slightly more than normal weight. Miss Corbin said that she would stop taking the lunches and rests.

The children are weighed each Friday. It is found that they all lose during vacations.

Prof. E. H. Wells of the Nebraska Wesleyan faculty has just been notified that he has been elected as one of the delegates to represent the Y. M. C. A. movement in Nebraska at the constitutional convention to be held in Cleveland, October 17-26, 1923.

He was elected with special reference to the student group and because of his close contact and deep interest in this group. Six delegates will be sent with expenses paid by the state to this convention. It is expected by association leaders that the convention will be epoch making because of the problems to be handled. The constitution is to be revised for greater simplicity and democracy. The notification of Professor Wells' election came from J. Dean Ringer, chairman of the state committee.

Dr. S. S. Hilscher of the Second Presbyterian church of Lincoln, addressed the convocation Monday morning on the Bible and its literature.

Dean R. A. Lyman of the state college of pharmacy was a campus visitor Wednesday.

The faculty of Nebraska Wesleyan held an enjoyable evening Tuesday under the direction of the young women of the faculty auxiliary. The program took the form of a college night with class stunts. Dean Alabaster presided over a senior class meeting wherein the faculty received especial attention. Another group of the faculty led by Professor H. A. Durham put on an Indian medicine man show with large bottles of pink "Coyote Pep" as the elixir of comfort. This stunt was awarded the prize. Miss Ethol Langdon presided over the sophomore stunt which was an interscholastic meet.

The freshman group presented two dramatic domestic scenes. In these Prof. H. E. Adler and Dean Lillian Swan, Mrs. L. M. Kats and the Misses Marietta Snow, and Alta Vaughn appeared.

After the program the faculty adjourned to the kindergarten rooms where ice cream and cake were served. The spring party for the faculty has become an annual feature.

A "Kindergarten Jazz Band" is helping to bring fame to Pubite School 39, in the Bronx, New York City.

The band was organized under the direction of Miss Florence Clarke and Miss Mildred Horkenrath, kindergarten instructors, and though the instruments used by the children are toys, they give very creditable performances. So expert have the pupils become that they can play any selection which the instructors suggest. The secret is that the children play the same notes on all the instruments, to the accompaniment of the piano.

As with all bands, the "Kindergarten Jazz Band" has a conductor, Carl Sanes. When he leads the band, he shakes his baton and his head at the same time, as real leaders do. If a player slips up on the tempo, Carl stops the piano and repriman is the person at fault. The other members of the band are Marjorie Fromer, who plays a tambourine; Herbert Stein a banjo "expert;" Evelyn Manheim, who plays the bells; Gerard Himmel, drummer, and Abrham Landau, accordionist.

A Mozart symphony in the composer's own handwriting is on exhibition in the music reference department of the New York public library. The symphony is the G Major K 318 and is now part of the Josph W. Drexel collection. This collection was left to the Lenox library in 1888 and was transferred to the New York public library when the new building at 42nd street was completed. Here it forms an important part of the music reference department.

The music reference department is supported by endowment and not by public funds. Joseph W. Drexel's daughter recently gave the department $10,000, the interest from which is to be used for music and music books.

That the department is used by an increasing number of teachers, students and lovers of music is proved dents and lovers of music is proved by the register. In 1911, 5,600 people used the reference library and in 1921 more than 23,300 registered there.

Carl Engel, director of the music division of the Library of Congress at Washington, has suggested that a directory of American composers be compiled by the National Federation of Music clubs, in connection with the collection of American compositions which now has space on the shelves of the capitol library to which the federation contributes. The federation therefore is urging that manuscripts and data for sketches on the lives of the composers be sent to Mrs. James H. Hirsch, chairman of the library division of the National Federation Orlando, Fla.

Music week at Havelock will be celebrated beginning May 1 and extending through May 8. It is sponsored by the members of the music department of the Havelock Woman's club. DE VILMAR-SCHAEFER STUDIOS
Carl L. Schaefer, artist student with Madame de Vilmar, is singing at the Lyric theatre this week. Mr. Schaefer's singing at the teachers' convention in Omaha last month attracted much favorable comment from the judges. He received one of the prizes.

WHEATLEY VOCAL STUDIOS.

Walter Wheatley returned on Tuesday from Cleveland, Ohio, where he was called at short notice to take Riccardo Martin's place with the Cleveland Grand Opera company. The leading roles were largely in the hands of Metropolitan and Chicago stars. Through this difficult situation however, Mr. Wheatley came apparently with flying colors. Both the press and public acclaimed him as a highly satisfactory substitute for Martin and the management with great eulogies, offered Mr. Wheatley a re-engagement for next spring. These seasons are becoming an annual affair, are well financed and no expense is spared to bring the finest singing talent available to Cleveland.

The Times said: "Maurico in the person of Walter Wheatley seemed as if he had stepped from the tombs of knightly adventure; he was in good voice, facile and appealing, as befits the gallant's part."

Senior students of the dramatic department will give a program in the Lincoln high sihool auditorium Tuesday evening, May 8.

Florence Adams, student with Howard Kirkpatrick, will give her senior voice recital in the First Baptist church Thursday evening, May 10.

The Brass choir, a chautauqua company consisting of brass instruments with piano accompaniment, furnished the broadcasting program for the American Electric company, Friday evening.

Nineteen men members of the faculty were entertained by Director Adrian M. Newens at the Rotary club luncheon last Tuesday noon.

A first experiment in England in transmitting music by wireless to travelers in a fast-moving motor car was made recently in London by the Marmoni company in conjunction with the Daimler company. The car was closed, and on the roof was mounted on a frame aerial, while inside had been installed a set of seven or eight receiving valves complete with ear telephones. The experiment was completely successful; in spite of the noise of traffic, etc., the music came through distinctly and clearly.

There is quite a tragic association with Rimsky's fairy opera "Snyeguretcha" of the Metropolitan repertoire. Two of the younger Metropolitan singers appeared in it last season, both made their first outstanding success in it and both are now dead. Mario Laurenti, the Italian baritone who created the part of Mitzuir, died a few weeks after the opening performance, and poor little Alice Miriam, who understudied Lucrezia Bori in the title role, got her chance to sing it at a Saturday matinee, and made a real hit in the part died last summer of tuberculosis.

While inspecting recent repairs in the Dresden Opera house, a trap in the stage floor upon which five persons were standing was accidentally released, throwing all five to the floor below. The result was one fatality and four persons more or less seriously injured. As an aftermath of the catastrophe, the geenral director, Dr. Alfred Reucker, was stricken with an attack of nerve paralysis, and had to be released for an indefinite time from his duties.

There seems to be little question but what some new American composers will be discovered and set firmly on their feet within the next three months. The newly organized movement of the Stadium Concerts of New York to find such is already bearing fruit. The prize is a great one. Those who are found worthy will have their compositions played by the New York Philharmonic orchestra during the stadium concert season this summer. The search is for orchestral compositions only. The time for receiving scores has been extended from May 1 to June 1. William Cowen is chairman of the committee for compositions and the offices are in the Fisk building, Fifty-seventh street and Broadway, N. Y.

The idea has been to give an opportunity to every American composer, so arranging the selection that there should be absolutely no favoritism, and that the composer of the winning score or scores would not be known until after the decision was made. The score committee wishes to be well understood that any form of orchestral composition, overture, symphony, suite or whatever it may be will be considered, provided its playing time is not over twenty minutes in length.

The stadium concert committee feels that this is the greatest opportunity ever given to the unknown American composer, for those who will achieve fame at a obunw, having their music played by master hands, before thousands, interpreted by one of the greatest orchestras of the world, conducted by one of the worlds most famous orchestral leaders.

Here's another chance for you to earn $10,000, if you are handy at juggling words. B. P. Schulierg, president of Preferred Pictures, has offered that sum to anygody who can give him a good "box-office title." Preferred Pictures own a dozen or more stories which they will produce during the next year, some of which will require a change in name to meet picture requirements. "Rich Men's Wives" is cited as an example of a good box office name. If you have any ideas on the subject of titles, send them to B. P. Schulberg, Preferred Pictures, 3800 Mission Road, Los Angeles, Cal.

Franklin's direction. The police dog, Rin-Tin-Tin, also has an important role in the picture.

Twenty-four Boys and Girls From Rural Parts of Western Nebraska To Give Piano Recital in Lincoln

Left: Mrs. Una Snidow-Sawyer director of public school music department at Kearney State Normal.
Upper right: Victor school, in rural vicinity near Kearney.
Lower right: Group of boys and girls at Riverdale school with their keyboards.

On Friday evening, May 4, at the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, Lincoln people will have an opportunity to hear twenty-four little boys and girls from the rural districts of the western part of the state in piano recital.

There was a time, and not more than three or four years ago when music was almost a luxury with children in the rural districts. Not because their parents were not willing they should have it, or not because of lack of funds, but from lack of teachers, good teachers.

Children who had unusual musical ability were forced to grow to manhood or womanhood literally starving for something they had not had, the opportunity to develop a wonderful talent.

But the past year or two, Mrs. Una Snidow Sawyer, director of the department of public school music at Kearney State normal and a recognized national authority on rural school music, has made it possible for the little folks of the rural districts t ohave as many advantages as those of the city.

There are a number of one room and consolidated rural schools in Buffalo county, affiliated with the state normal and teachers' college at Kearney. Many fine projects are carried out here, such as special supervision in domestic science, normal training and music.

The latter project is especially interesting to Lincoln because this city is undeniably an educational center, and besides that fact, the method that the state normal is using is that of Miss Hazel Kinscella, major piano teacher at the University School of Music.

Became Interested.

Last summer Miss Kinscella became much interested in the possibility of the extended opportunity which the Lincoln way piano classes would give to little children living in the country, and so she spent one week in June at the normal as "guest" teacher, preparing rural teachers for this special work.

Now any number of schools in Buffalo county are giving music as a regular part of the school work, and the children are more than merely interested, they are eager for the work, and the teachers say they can not get them to play at recess time and the noon hour, because they want to practice.

In some of the school districts a regular music teacher comes out from town once a week to give a lesson, and in other schools, the regular teacher gives the lesson with the practice work given several times a week.

The story is told of one little boy who lived two and one-half miles from school. During our last big blizzard, it was impossible for his family to get through the roads with the car, so he walked all of the way to school because he was afraid he would miss the music teacher who was due that day.

Lesson by Telephone.

Another little lad took his music lessons on Thursday morning, and one week not so long ago, he called his teacher up before 7 o'clock on Tuesday morning and told her he had his lesson so well learned that he just could not wait until Thursday to play it for her, and wanted to play it for her over the telephone. The teacher told him she would be glad to hear it, and so the little fellow played his lesson all through with his teacher at the other end of the phone.

Some of the schools bought pianos for the children, and others use organs, but the children are learning nevertheless.

It is twenty-four of these little children, who through a competitive recital at home, have earned their way to Lincoln to show Lincoln people what can be done in the rural districts.

George M. Martin, president of the Kearney Normal will give an address on 'Music's Place in Education," and R. W. Powell head of the department of rural education, will present a moving picture of music in the rural schools, showing several hundred children who wanted to come to Lincoln with the twenty-four who came.

The concert by these little folks will be preceded by some work done by representative children from Havelock, College View, Bethany, Cheney and other places.

Saturday afternoon, the twenty-four little visitors will be the guests of honor at the Lincoln Music festival to be given at the city auditorium by Lincoln children.

AT THE THEATRES.

Fred Stone in His Record-breaking Attraction "Tip Top" Comes to the Orpheum Monday and Tuesday.

Fred Stone comes to the Orpheum Monday and Tuesday in his latest successful extravaganza, "Tip Top." This was one of the biggest successes in New York last season. Stone's visit is always one of the chief events of any theatrical year, and in "Tip Top" he is said to have the best show in which he has ever appeared.

Charles Dillingham, under whose management Stone has been playing for the last fifteen years or more, has provided what is said to be one of the most elaborate spectacular productions ever seen on the stage in this country. Always a prodigal producer of musical comedies, Mr. Dillingham goes a step further when he makes a production for his brilliant star and in scenery, costumes and appointments "Tip Top" promises to be both lavish and beautiful.

Anne Caldwell and R. H. Burnside wrote "Tip Top" and Ivan Caryll set it to music; Mr. Burnside, who is the general stage director at the New York Hippodrome, staged the entire production. These names and those of the star and producer guarantees at least one of the best shows of this variety that experience and money can possibly put together.

Many of Fred Stone's tried and trusty associates of other seasons will be found in his supporting company, which also includes numerous other popular artists. "Tip Top" is the greatest of all Fred Stone's shows and the company will number more than one hundred people. The cast includes the precocious White Sisters, melodious Six Brown Brothers, Teresa Valerio, Roy Hoyer, Oscar Ragland and Marie Sewell and the London Palace Girls.

Boy Leyton, son of "Dog" Leyton, captain of the Lady Spray, worshipped his father in spite of the fact that the man abused the boy horribly beating him, cursing him, and saying that he was bound to beat all of the woman out of him. Boy was gentle, he never fought back which only served to enrage his father the more. Boy clung to his faith in his father but wondered why the old man hated women so thoroughly.

Boy loved Minnie, the little girl in the Limehouse district boarding house, and Minnie also loved him. It was finally agreed that she should run away and meet him in Glasgow where they would be married.

Morgan, the villainous first mate on the boat, also loved Minnie, and he told the Boy's father what his son was up to and all about the proposed marriage.

When the ship set sail for Glasgow, the old man began a bitter invective against his son winding up with a vicious attack on the name of the girl he loved. Then was when filial devotion was forgotten by Boy. He would have fought his father then and there, but the old man was overwhelmed with joy to think that his son was a man after all. Captain Leyton was seized suddenly with an attack however, and dying in his cabin on the boat, he told Boy that his mother had ran away with another man. He entrusted Boy with a mission to find his mother and to avenge her wrong.

When the boat landed in Glasgow, Boy was met by Minnie who was all togged up in her wedding finery, only to be told that the wedding must wait until his mission was fulfilled.

And it was fulfilled but in a way that surprised even Boy himself.

One day when Pat rescued a man from drowning at the beach he meets Marian Sangster, a young society girl, and is invited to her home. The call is followed by an invitation to dinner, and at the same dinner is Deane Warner, who is also in love with the girl. Pat falls desperately in love with Marian and she with him, but somehow or other the question of Pat's life work has never come up, and Marian does not know that he is a boxer.

One day Pat is asked by a newspaper for an interview with one of its special writers, and who should the girl be but Marian. She is furious when she finds out who Pat is thinking that he has meant to deceive her. She storms out of the room and goes home where she eases her heart in Deane's arms.

Pat follows her, throws the butler aside, pushes Deane out of the way and then takes Marian in his arms, making her admit that she loves him. They go to the minister right then and there and are married. The next night Pat has one terrific battle but comes out victorious when he and Mrs. Pat leave for the North woods for a quiet and peaceful honeymoon.

Jerry O'Donnell is eagerly awaiting the day when she will sail for America to join her father. She is in Kerry county, Ireland, with her aunt at the time the story opens, brushing up on her education. One day while studying she sees a town yokel illtreating her pig and starts out after him chasing him down the road. An automobile coming at a fast rate of speed is forced to swerve and crash into a tree to avoid running over Jerry. It is in this way she meets John Garland and his tiny daughter, Dot, who falls in love with Jerry at first sight, even if her father does not.

In America, Jerry's father has married the widow Clancy who is trying to make a patrician out of him. Tea is being served when Jerry comes bouncing in, her pig under one arm, and her bundle under the other. She is greeted warmly by her father, cooly by her stepmother, who makes a little slavey out of Jerry. Jerry's father and brother, Eugene, resent this, but say nothing about it.

Jerry can stand the treatment no longer and finally decides to run away. Crossing a street she trips and falls and is nearly run over by a passing automobile, and the owner is none other than John Garland. He takes her home and makes her governess of Dot, much to the disgust of Miss Murdock, the housekeeper.

And then life begins for Jerry. John Garland falls in love with her, but doesn't say much about it until something happens that almost takes Jerry away from him entirely, and then—.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Please tell me all you can about Earle Williams, Lillian Gish, Norma and Constance Talmadge and Mary Miles Minter. Thanking you for the trouble, I remain,—THELMA, Wymore, Neb.

That's the first call I've had on Earle Williams for a long time. He used to be quite a popular man with the fans, too. He was born in Sacramento, Calif., and educated at the Oakland Polytech. College of California. He played in stock companies on the stage before becoming a screen player for Vitagraph. He has spent his entire career in motion pictures for that company. He has dark hair, blue eyes, and is five foot eleven inches tall and weighs 176.

Lillian Gish is a blond, twenty-six years old and single. She was born in Springfield, Ohio, and educated at a finishing school. She began her stage career in 1902, when she was a very small child, and started her motion picture career with Griffith in 1912. She made a hit in "The Birth of a Nation," and is now with Inspiration Pictures, for whom she is making "The White Sister."

Norma Talmadge was born in Niagara Falls and educated in the Brooklyn elementary schools and Erasmus high. She was fourteen when she entered pictures with no previous stage experience. Her first work was with Vitagraph as a member of its old stock company. She now has her own producing company and is one of the foremost emotional actresses of the day. She has been named "The Queen of Versatility," because of her ability to play so many different roles. She has dark hair and eyes, and signs her calling cards, Mrs. Joseph Schenck.

Constance, like Norma, received her education in Brooklyn, and began her screen career with Vitagraph when she was in her early teens. D. W. Griffith gave her the leading role in "Intolerance," and she became one of the leading actresses of the screen. Her roles have been mostly light comedies but she has branched out into more serious work, and is making a success of it. She has golden hair and brown eyes and was twenty-three on the 19th of April.

Mary Miles Minter was born in Shreveport, La., in 1902 and has been before the public ever since she was a baby. She was educated privately and made her stage debut with the late Nat Goodwin. She has appeared on the stage with the Barnums, Robert Hilliard, Mrs. Fiske and Bertha Kalish. Her first screen appearance was in "The Fairy and the Waif," produced by the Frohman Amusement Corporation. She recently completed her contract as a star for Famous Players-Lasky, and is contemplating returning to her first love, the stage. Miss Minter has light hair and blue eyes and is five feet two inches tall.

Dear Movie Editor—I would like to have you send me a picture of Mae Murray when she played "Broadway Rose" and a picture of Harold Lloyd in "Safety Last." How old is Harold Lloyd, and how old is his wife. What is Harold Lloyd's number or where he gets his letters. Oh yes, send me a picture of Claire Windsor, and that is all. Yours lovingly—CECILIA.

Your wants are so few, Cecilia, that I should love to grant them, but I can't since I have none of the pictures at present, that your heart desires. Harold Lloyd is twenty-nine, and Mildred Davis, his wife is twenty-one. Address Harold at 369 South Hoover street, Los Angeles, or the Hal E. Roach Studio, Culver City, Calif. If you will tell him you want a picture, I am sure he will send you one, likewise Mae Murray, at the Metro studios, Hollywood, Cal., and Claire Dindsor, 4634 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles.

Dear Movie Editor—Please give me the ages and color of hair and eyes of the following, also, if they are married and have any children: William S. Hart, Thomas Meighan, Monte Blue, Helene Chadwick Leatrice Joy, Alice Joyce, Pauline Frederick, Clara K. Young, Zasu Pitts and Claire Windsor.

Is Jane Novak's baby a boy or girl?

When will "Brass" be released. The book was fine, but of course, some of it will be censored.

I liked Rudolph Valentine very much, but girls are so silly who rave over him and act like idiots.

I am so sorry that Wallie Reid is dead. I liked him.

Was the Barthelmess baby a boy or a girl? Well I'll stop pestering you. Thanks.—LADY ARDEEN.

Mr. Hart has dark hair and eyes. He was married to Winifred Westover, and they have a young son. William's birth date was 1871.

Thomas Meighan was born in 1880 with brown hair and eyes. He is married to Frances Ring, and they have no children. Monte Blue has been married, but his wife is divorcing him. He is thirty-two, and I have no record of his family. Helene Chadwick is married. She was born in 1896 with light brown hair and brown eyes. Monte Blue has dark hair and eyes, and so has Leatrice Joy. Leatrice is married to Jack Gilbert and they have no children—neither has Helene, nor Pauline Frederick. Pauline has been married three times, and is again single. She is thirty-five and has blue eyes and brown hair.

Alice Joyce has two children and is married to James Regan. Alice was born in 1890 with dark hair and hazel eyes. Clara Kimball Young has dark hair and eyes. She's a year older than Alice, and was married to James Young. I've never heard of any children for her. Zasu Pitts has a young daughter and is married to Tom Gallery. Zasu has blue eyes and brown hair, and is twenty-five years old. Claire Windsor's child is a boy. Claire's hair is light brown and, her eyes are blue. Jane's child is a girl. I believe, and the Barthelmess baby is also a girl.

"Brass" has been released, and according to the press reports, the author himself, Charles G. Norris, is highly pleased with the screen version of the story, which is an exception to the rule because most of the authors are unable to recognize their "brain children" when they appear in celluloid. Irene Rich is given much credit for her portrayal of the role of Mrs. G.

Dear Movie Editor—I received my picture of Gloria Swanson, and I was very much pleased with it.

I was one of Wallie Reid's admirers and I certainly feel bad about him for he was my favorite actor.

Please tell me all about Hope Hampton, Lilla Lee, Frank Mayo, Mae Murray and Warren Kerrigan. Thanking you for the space, I am A TEN YEAR OLD MOVIE FAN, Dorothy.

I'm glad you like your picture. You waited patiently for it.

Hope Hampton was born in Dallas, Texas. She attended the Sophie Newcombe school in New Orleans, and on her return home found she had won the beauty prize in a Texas newspaper contest. She turned down all the motion picture offers she received as the result, and took a course in dramatic art. Later she decided she was ready to start a motion picture career, and made "A Modern Salome" as her first picture. Miss Hampton has auburn hair and dark blue eyes and is the head of her own producing company. head of her own produing ompany. eduated privately. She started her stage career in vaudeville at an early age under the guidance of "Gus" Edwards, to whom is given the credit of discovering her. She was the original "Look Out for Jimmy Valentine" girl, and introduced the song for Mr. Edwards in his "kid" revue. She was known as "Cuddles" in vaudeville. Her first appearance on the silver screen was in "The Cruise of the Make-Believe." She has dark hair and eyes and is five feet three inches tall.

Frank Mayo was born in New York City, thirty-seven years ago. He was educated at Peeksville Military Academy. He made his stage debut with his grandfather in "Davy Crocket," and later appeared on the legitimate stage in "The Woman in the Case" and "The Squaw Man." In motion pictures he has played with such stars as June Elvidge, Louis Huff, Kitty Gordon, and Ethel Clayton. He is six feet tall and has light brown hair and grey eyes.

Mae Murray is a blond, and was born in Virginia. When she was fourteen she went to New York, and the next year was chosen for the Nell Brinkley girl in Ziegfeld's Follies. Miss Murray is a great sportswoman, being an expert swimmer, golfer and tennis player. She makes her own pictures under the direction of her husband, Robert Z. Leonard, and releases them through Metro.

J. Warren Kerrigan, is returning to the screen after an absence of several months in "The Covered Wagon." He was born in Louisville, Ky., thirty-three years ago, and received his education at the Chicago university. He was on the stage in Klaw and Erlanger productions, such as "The Road to Yesterday" and "Brown of Harvard," before becoming a screen player. He played leading roles in American films for three years, and has also played in Essany Universal and Hodkinson pictures. He has dark hair and hazel eyes.

Yes, Adolph Zuker is the president of FamousPlayers-Lasky corporation, and Jesse L. Lasky is the first vice president of the company, and has charge of the production. Mr. Zuker used to be president of Famous Players and Mr. Lasky was president of the Jesse L. Lasky Picture Play company, but when they combined in 1916, Mr. Zuker became the president of the new company, and Mr. Lasky vice president. Mr. Lasky has charge of engaging the big directors, and they in turn engage their assistants. Cecil B. De Mille is the director general of Famous Players-Lasky. The others are all under him. Paramount directors of note are William DeMille, George Melford, Sam Wood, James Cruze, Paul Powell, Joseph Henaberry, Alvan Dwan, Robert G. Vignola, Wesley Ruggles, Charles Maigne, Wallace Worsley, and others of less importance.

Gloria assures us that her hair is brown, dark brown. Gloria was born in 1893; Alice Terry in 1896; Constance Talmadge, 1900; Douglas MacLean, 1892; Viola Dana, 1898; Dick Barthelmess, 1895; Marion Davis, 1898; Monte Blue, 1890.

You may get to see Glenn Hunter sometime in 'Merton of the Movies" on the screen—if you cant see him on the legitimate stage. There has been no definite announcement that he will screen the picture, but there are possibilities. He is to do one more picture for the Film Guild before starting his contract with Famous Players-Lasky. The picture has a tentative title of "Richer and Richer." He's in his early twenties.

Screen Siftings

All three units of the Joseph M. Schenck organization are now busy in Los Angeles. Gigantic sets have been built for Norma Talmadge's latest picture, "Ashes of Vengeance," upon which she has started work. Constance is now in the Yosemite, where she is filming exteriors of her comedy, "Dudley." Buster Keaton's "The Three Ages," is now being edited and assembled for release. It is the most prententious comedy that has ever attempted and takes the married man down through the ages from the caveman days to the present.

Robert Brower, who will play the aged king in Jackie Coogans first Metro picture, "Long Live the King," is a real veteran of the amusement world. When he was eleven, he became office boy at the Lucy Ruston theatre at Broadway and Spring street, New York. Later he was in the casts of such celebrities as Edwin Booth, Charlotte Cushman, Edwin Forrest and Barry Sullivan. His first picture was with Frank McGlynn, at the old Edison studios, and he recently played a part in "Adam's Rib."

Billy Dove, who recently finished her work opposite John Gilbert in "The Madness of Youth," has been chosen for the feminine lead with Tom Mix in his next Fox picture, "Tempered Steel." The story is an original, written especially for Mr. Mix.

Ruth Dwyer, former leading lady for Eugene O'Brien and the featured player in "The Stealers," has signed a contract as leading lady in Fox pictures. Miss Dwyer is leaving New York for Los Angeles in a few days and will start work immediately upon a picture, the title of which is as yet unannounced.

Mrs Chepstow, named Bella Donna by an admirer, has sickened her world by some revolting scandal. She is alone with her fading beauty. She meditates suicide but is prevented by the coming of Nigel Armine, an engineer lately returned from Egypt. He is a fine fibred young Englishman and knows nothing of Bella Donna's reputation because of his long absence from London. Nigel's chivalry is intrigued by her loneliness. He sees good in her and believes that his faith in her will bring it out.

Patricia, the ward of Dr. Meyer Isaacson, a fashionable London physician ,stung by the humiliation of Nigel's constant attendance upon Bella Donna, breaks the placid engagement existing between the two. Dr. Isaacson begins to worry about Nigel, and decides that it is time to tell him about the woman. But when he calls on Nigel it is too late, he had married Bella Donna that morning. Following the marriage Nigel takes Bella Donna to Egypt where he is to resume his work in the desert.

The East lays a hypnotic spell on Bella Donna. In the shade of the pyramids she turns forever from the chill reverence of Nigel's love. She meets Mahmoud Baroudi, a man of great energy and will who pulls the strings of many enterprises and lives in princely splendor. The next day she visits the temple and Baronudi follows her. He invites her to his houseboat and Bella Donna's fury melts into a rush of tears as she realizes the hold this strange man has upon her, and makes her escape.

She begs Nigel to take her deeper into the desert, where shortly after her husband has left on a hunt she hears plaintive music. To Bella Donna it is the voice of Baroudi, he has followed her, and is waiting for her to come to him. She goes to his camp. The following morning Bella Donna returns carrying a little gold box and a command from Baroudi.

What was in the gold box, and what was the command? Strange contents, and a strange command we assure you, but foolish Bella Donna, under the terrible spell believes that she must carry Baroudi's command out to the letter.

Then what?

He goes back home to live with Myrtle and Bennie, two underworld sweethearts of whom he is fond, but finds it impossible to hold a job because of his prison record. In despair Chic finally decides to go back to the gang. That night Myrtle and Bennie are attacked by a thug who has designs on Myrtle and in the struggle, Bennie trips the man who tumbles down stairs and breakes his neck. Fearing the affair will bring trouble to Chic, Myrtle and Bennie decide to leave town.

District Attorney Brandon fears for the conduct of his wife "Duckie" more than he does his enemies. 'Duckie" is fifty-five years of age and frivolous. Her husband prosecutes vigorously all crooks and poses as a political reformer and futilely tries to reason with his wife, who insists on the high life. Her son Jerry is following in her footsteps. Molly Brandon their daughter, returns from a convent in France and is being recklessly driven home by Jerry, who is slightly intoxicated, Chic carries the child to its mother, and an adjuster is set around to settle with the mother for the accident. Chic refuses to settle.

That night Jimmie Monohan, whom Brandon cultivates for political reasons, gives a party for Molly and insists on making love to her. Molly repulses him. 'Frou Frou," a dancer in the Jewel Box cabaret is jealous of Jimmie's attentions to Molly, but he pays no attention to her. The party moves to the Brandon home and Jerry drunkenly invites 'Frou Frou" to go along.

Leaving the Jewel Box, Jerry is threatened with exposure by a man to whom he has given bad checks. Jerry promises to make good. Meantime, in the Brandon library, Chic is working on the safe, determined that Brandon shall pay for the damage his son did to the child he ran down. Surprised, Chic hides in the room and sees Jerry rob the safe. He robs Jerry. Molly, who has faith in Chic hides him from the police. While a search is being conducted. Monahan drunkenly embraces Molly. 'Frou Frou" enraged shoots Monohan and throws the gun at Molly's feet. She attempts to escape but is prevented by Chic who has witessed the whole thing.

And then the fun starts, the police arrest Chic, but Molly tells them the truth, exposing her brother as the real thief, and clearing Chic.

But that isn't the end of the story at all.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I am coming to you to help me make a decision which may change my whole future. I am ambitious, as many are, to write photoplays, but realize I do not know the very first thing about their construction.

I answered an advertisement in a magaizne and procured the Palmer Questionnaire from the Palmer Photoplay Corporation, Hollywood, Cal., which I have now passed, receiving a favorable report. In other words, the report states that I have latent talent.

Now what I would like to know, is, the Palmer Photoplay Corporation what it claims to be, or is it just another fake just to get your money?

I realize no one can develope something that is not in a person, but many fake institutions make one believe that they have something in them that they do not have, merely to gain more money from the student who may work hard and long to no purpose. However, the Palmer catalogue seems more reasonable than most of the literature I have received.

From your experience as Movie Editor you ought to be able to give me the desired information and I will be more than thankful to you if you set me right on this question. Please give me all the information you have in regard to the Palmer School and advise me whether I should take their course or not—in other words, do you think their course worth the trial. Please answer this letter as soon as possible as I would like to make the decision positive in a few days and if favorable to taking the course, get started on the study as soon as possible as each moment is valuable.

Hoping to hear from you in the very near future, and thinking you in advance for your information, I am yours very truly, H. G. H.

That's a big responsibility to put on the shoulders of a mere Movie Editor—when it might, as you say, change your whole future.

Like all correspondent courses, a course in photoplay writing would do you no good, if you took only a few lessons and dropped it. If you have "latent talent" and a will to write photoplays, I think any accredited school could help you. The Palmer School is highly advertised, and so far as I am able to ascertain, is doing a good work for amateur writers. They are now producing a scenario written by Mrs. Ethel Styles Middleton of Pittsburg, called "Judgment of the Storm." It is being filmed at the Ince Studio. Perhaps if you would write to this lady, she might be able to give you some information that would be to your benefit.

Dear Movie Editor—Will you please give me the casts for the following: "The Devil," "The Penalty," and "The Master Mind." Thank you, A. C. C. FAN.

The cast for "The Master Mind" is :Henry Allen, lonel Barrymore; Maggie Flinn and Lucine Blout, Gypsy O'Brien; Cortland Wainwright, Ralph Kellyard; Croeegan, Bradley Parker; Hank, and Mr. Blut, Charles Brandt; Sadie and Mrs. Blout, Marion Shotwell; Diamond Willie, and Walter Blout, Bernard Randall ;The Butler,' Charles Edwards.

"The Penalty" cast is: Blizzard, Lon Chaney; Barbara Claire Adams Wilmet, Kenneth Harlan; Doctor, Charles Clary; Rose, Ethel Grey Terry; Bubble, Elouard Trebael: Lichenstein, Milton Ross; Pete, James Mason.

Following is the cast for "The Devil." Dr. Muller, George Arliss; Mimi, Sylvia Breamer; Marie Matin, Lucy Cotton; Her Aunt, Mrs. Arliss; Paul De Veaux, Edmund Lowe; Georges Roben, Roland Bottomley.

Dear Movie Editor—What is Ruth Roland's next picture? Will it be here soon? How old is Eugene O'Brien? What is his address? Has he ever been married, if so to whom? Can you give me the names of most of his plays and the lady who took the lead? When will Dot Gish and Lillian Gish be here and the name of the plays? Have you a picture of Eugene O'Brien? MOVIES OF OLD RENEWED.

"Ruth's Millions," is the working title of Ruth Roland's latest serial. I don't know just when it wil be here; watch The Star "ads." Eugene O'Brien is a bachelor, thirty-nine years old. Address him at the Players' club, N. Y. Some of his pictures, and the ladies who played with him are: "The Ghosts of Yesterday," "De Luxe Anne," "The Voice from the Minaret," with Norma Talmadge; "A Romance of the Underworld," with Catherine Calvert; "Come Out of the Kitchen," with Marguerite Clark; "Clay Dollars," with Ruth Dwyer; "Chivalrous Charley," with Nancy Deaver; "Is Life Worth Living," with Winifred Westover; "The Last Door," with Martha Mansfield and "Worlds Apart," with Olive Tell. Of course that isn't all of his pictures, but it's a few of his most important ones.

Lillian Gish is making "The White Sister" now, but it will be some time before it is released. You may see Dorothy here in "Fury" and "The Scarlet Shawl" with Richard Barthelmess sometime in the future. I haven't the exact date of their Lincoln appearance. I never have pictures of Eugene. If you write him, he will no doubt send you one.

Editor of "Answers to Movie fans:" I am a reader of of your columns in the Sunday Star and so I am going to ask you a question which I have discussed over and over again. I say Mary Pickford is 35 and my sisters say she is 39. So will you please tell me which it is? I will be looking for the answer in next Sunday's Star. Thank you.

PANDORA.

I received your letter too late for last Sunday's paper. You are wrong about Mary's age, and so are your sisters. Mary was born in 1893, so she will be thirty this year.

Dear Movie Editor—I want to say just a few words about "Racing Hearts," which appeared at the Rialto this week. I thought it was a wonderful picture, well staged and everything. I certainly did miss Wallace Reid, though, more and more, because it was exactly the kind of a picture he should have played in. Richard Div did well, though. Can you tell me how long he has been in the movies, how old he is, and where he was born? Who wrote the story, "Racing Hearts" and who was the director? Does Agnes Ayres have her haid bobbed? It looked like it was in the picture. That is all the space I will take this time. Many Thanks—A LINCOLN FAN.

Mr. Dix was born in St. Paul, Minn., in 1895. He began his first work before the camera in 1920, but he has a stage career back of him. Byron Morgan, the author of 'Too Much Speed," and "Across the Continent," two of Wallace Reid's pictures, was responsible for the story, and Will M. Ritchey wrote the scenario. Paul Powell directed the picture.

Yes, Agnes bobbed her hair, 'Racing Hearts" is her first picture since the shearing.

Dear Movie Editor—Will you please give me the address, age, color of hair and eyes, nationality, weight and height of Lloyd Hughes, Ralph Graves, Bert Lytell, Harrison Ford, Milton Sills and Thomas Meighan. Thank you.—J. R. S.

Loyd Hughes is an American, twenty-five years old and has dark hair and greenish gray eyes. He's six feet tall and weighs 150. Address him 955 Micheltorena street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Mr. Graves was also born in the U. S. A. He's an inch taller than Lloyd and weighs twenty bounds more. He has brown hair and blue eyes and gets his mail in care of the Los Angeles Athletic club. His age, twenty-five.

Bert Lytell was born in 1889 with brown hair and hazel eyes. He's five feet ten and a half inches tall—never could see why they insist upon adding the half inch—and weighs 155. Address him in care of the Los Angeles Athletic club, also.

Mr. Ford has brown hair and eyes and gets his mail sometimes at the Lambs club, 130 W 44th St., N. Y. He is a half inch shorter than Bert and weighs 160. He was born in Kansas City, Mo.

Milton Sills is another American, who has light hair and gray eyes. He's a six footer and weighs 180. Address him at 1320 Crescent Heights Vlvd. Hollywood, Cal. He was born in 1881.

Thomas Meighan is the same height as Mr. Sills and weighs ten pounds less. He has black hair and brown eyes. He was born in 1830 and has his mail sent to the Los Angeles Athletic club.

Dear Movie Editor—Will you please tell me the name of the actor who took the part of 'Charles Brandon" in 'When Knighthood Was In Flower." And send me a photograph of him, please. Do you think it will come back to the 'Sun." I hope so, for I enjoyed it very much. If you do not have a photograph, please tell me where I can get one. Thanking you in advance, I am—A YOUNG FAN.

'Forrest Stanley played the role of 'Charles Brandon" in 'When Knighthood Was In Flower." I have no picture of him, but if you will write to him direct, at 207 S. Ardmore Ave., Los Angeles, I think he will be glad to send you his photograph. Don't forget to enclose money for postage. "When Knighthood Was in lower" will no doubt be back here again in the near future, since it was so popular with those who saw it.

Dear Movie Editor—You haven't seen me in the column for quite a while, but don't worry, I'm still here.

I just want a little information about the Famous Players-Lasky company. Is not Adolph Zuker the president of this company. Then what has Jesse L. Lasky to do with it. Honestly, I'm all balled up. Are the directors employed by the producers? I would be very grateful to you if you would explain this to me. Can you give me a list of the directors employed by this company.

Now I would like to know for sure what color Gloria Swanson's hair is. I have heard that it is black, and again I have been assured that it is red. I would like you to tell me simply the year in which each of the following were born: Alice Terry, Constance Talmadge, Viola Dana, Douglas MacLean, Dick Barthelmess, Marion Davies, Monte Blue and Gloria Swanson.

I have heard such comment and praise on Glenn Hunter's performance in "Merton of the Movies" that I'm quite jealous. Don't you thing its mean to cheat everybody outside of New York out of a good play like that. What is his next picture for the films and how old is he?

Now I want to scold a little. I think it is utterly foolish, it wastes the editor's time, the space in the column and what does all this mean, simply this, the fans will write letters and say, "Oh, I just love her, and I hate him, etc." I think it's so foolish to do that because surely just this person's saying so isn't going to prove it, and he can't change everyone else's likes and dislikes. So why waste time with such foolish ravings. I think sensible questions and friendly criticism would be far more worth while and beneficial. Booh! I'd better hide, Au Revoir!—NOBODY NAN.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

There Are Many Tyrants in Marriage—Sometimes it is the man who must be boss—again it is the nagging wife, or she who delights in her ailments—all are inferior types.

We all know the husband whose jokes are barbed and aimed at the cringing wife—this callous man is as unpopular as the super-sensitive woman. Are cure for both.

Are Marriages Holy? — Should we speak only in hushed voices of this institution?—should widower with family propose t oa girl and wish such responsibilities on her?—such are the problems considered today.

Tyrants In Marriage.

Dear Minerva: One reason that I see why marriage is increasingly unpopular is that the tyrannical husband continues in the majority even in this age of independence. Now I am a bachelor girl and why should I want to give up my treasured liberty when I see, for instance, my own sister unable to say her mind is her own without her husband's consent?

Now she is a fine, upstanding, broad-minded sort of woman. She has four wonderful children, and everyone likes her. Her husband is a pewee. But he thinks he is king and the family certainly act like his subjects. He is about as pleasant to live with as a siege of whooping cough. He tells his wife what she shall eat and drink, what books she shall read, what recreation she shall have and what she shall not have, where she may go and when return, what friends she may have, and what her clothes shall be. And raises Cain if his wishes are not obeyed. He meddles and bosses until she dares not advance one opinion of her own.

There are a lot like him. When they marry they think they have bought themselves a woman. Just as in the olden days.

I prefer to be my own boss. And there are a lot of girls like me—

—ETHELDA.

A. Yes there is the man who bosses. And he makes married life unpleasant. And there is also the woman who nags. And she makes life more unpleasant still. There are a lot of otherwise nice women who do that. They don't raise everlasting rows. But they just have little pecky quarrels over "Why were you late to dinner?" and "Where were you when I phoned this noon," and "Why don't you love me like you used to?" and "who was that woman I saw you talking to?" And "why do you want to go tonight?" dan "why did you lend that man money?"

Small sniping but it keeps her husband feeling like a slave. Then there is the woman also who has such "spells," periods when her family must tiptoe about and when she can run up interesting doctor bills seeking a cure for her imagined ailments.

There are many such tyrants. But marriage is a pretty satisfying institution despite these "blanks."

And do you know these "tyrants" are in reality inferior beings instead of the superior persons they consider themselves? If you doubt it, read what Andre Tridon says in his book, "Psychoanalysis and Behavior:"

"The inferior husband," says Andre Tridon, "surrounds his wife with varied protective devices which are ostensibly meant to protect her and imply her inability to protect herself. He dictates what she may read whom she may properly meet, what she should wear; in reality isolating her as completely as possible from other more attractive and perhaps more virile males. The inferior wife nags her husband into giving up habits, friendship, clubs, membership in associations likely to supply him with alibis—the woman with a sick headache silences the whole family—the person who faints commands the services and attention of all those present."

The Callous Husband.

Dear Minerva: I wonder if you will think my problem trivial and not worth worrying about. Anyway here it is. I suppose I am overly sensitive. My husband says I am. But I try not to be. But he is always bawling me out before others in a way that just takes away all the joy of living. He will make caustic remarks about my clothes, or my skinniness, or even the way I manage my house in front of others. He continually makes jokes at my expense and usually ridiculing me in such a way that people must think he wishes he had nevero married me.

When I object he tells me I am too sensitive and should try to get over it and that nobody likes people who are always having their feelings hurt. I can play bridge with my women friends afternoon after afternoon and never feel hurt or angry or irritable. But when I play with him he makes such caustic remarks that I am near tears all the time.

Now do you think I am overly sensitive? Or is he rather mean? And what can I do about it?—GRIEVED.

A. I very much dislike a man who makes supposedly jocular remarks which have a sting in them for the wife. And I assure you that such a man is more likely to be unpopular than is a sensitive person.

Your only recourse, however, is to overcome your sensitiveness. You can not change your husband. So control yourself and learn to turn a deaf ear to his barbed jokes.

Guard against super-sensitiveness. You might be interested in reading what Dr. Frank Crane says about sensitiveness:

"Another form of egotism is sensitiveness. It is extremely difficult to live with a person when you are in constant fear of treading on his toes. It is too much to ask of anyone to enjoy constant association with anyone so thin-skinned that he cannot be touched without causing pain. Sensitiveness is merely a diseased condition of the ego and comes from loving ourselves and thinking of ourselves so much that we turn the most innocent acts into offense."

You may not need that sermonette at all. Certainly it is no excuse for your husband's carelessness of your feelings. What he might consider "the slightest touch" in one of his jokes might be considered by you (and by most of us) and ample reason for taking offense. But as I said, your only escape is through developing a sort of callousness.

A Healthy Baby.

Dear Minerva: I have a wonderfully healthy baby 19 months old and I want to know if I am feeding him right. I give him spinach and carrots once a week string beans about twice, tomatoes stewed or raw. For his 5 o'lcock feeding I give him bran and a prepared cereal or grits and milk and milk and dessert. Is he old enough for sweet potatoes, beets or raw apples? I give him a poached egg every morning.—MRS. B: I. G.

A. If the baby is wonderfully healthy that speaks well for your system of feeding even though it differs somewhat from the usual. I believe you would do better to feed the cooked cereals instead of the raw. Beets and scraped apples may be given at his age.

The regular menu for a baby the age of yours is as follows:

7 a. m. Cup of warm milk, zwiebach or toast.

9 a. m. orange juice or scraped apple.

10 a. m. Four tablespoons of cooked cereal. Milk and toast.

2 p. m. Coddled egg or unsweetened custard or a slt of chicken or lamb. Baked potato and any of the vegetables you mentioned. Milk and bread and butter.

6 p. m. Milk toast or rice and milk.

Father May Help.

Dear Minerva: I am a widower with three children, eight eleven and fourteen. I buried the children's mother four years ago and the children have since that time been cared for by a paid nurse with occasional visits from my mother and sisters. Now I am in love with a young woman, a very splendid young woman of good sense and accomplishments, and would like to marry her. She seems fond of the children and as she is a teacher she is interested in and does understand children greatly. The children also like her. My problem is would it be a kind thing to her for me to propose marriage to her, and to wish my family upon her. I have reason to think she cares for me—MR MAN.

A. I think it always fair when a man loves a woman to tell her of this love and put the question of the wisdom of marriage up to her. As for the fairness of asking her to undertake to care for your children, it is fair enough to ask her to undertake this difficult task if you are willing to do your part. A man can practically remove all the difficulties in such a case if he is wise enough and unsifish enough. It is the father's duty to banish the possibilities of jealousy and suspicion on the part of his children, to make it clear to them that the bride he is to bring in the home shall be as much mistress of the home as their own mother was before. When the father takes his children into his confidence before making such a marriage, keeps in close touch with them and is ready to strive fairly to keep things harmonious, the way is very greatly smothred for the bride. Also he should be ready and financially able to hire much of the household labor done for her. For the assumption of both a family and home duties is too much for the beginner.

Not Always Holy.

Dear Minerva: I dislike the widespread discussion of marriage in your Mail and elsewhere. It tends to cheapen a sacred institution. Marriage is holy in itself and should not be argued about. Without it men would become mere animals.—MRS. M. V.

A. But is marriage holy in itself? Let us consider what marriage is—and isn't. Marriage is not a natural arrangement. Nature doesn't marry her children; she mates them. She implants within them the mating instinct, also a powerful parental instinct which protects the family while it needs protection. Now man is fundamentally an animal. Part of his nature still functions on that original animal plane and must always be reckoned with. But he is also something more than an animal. How much more, we hardly know. Always he is torn between the two urges within him. In none of these activities does this show more plainly than in marriage.

Marriage is man's plan for the creation and protection of the family. He wants it to be a cleaner, happier, safer, more enduring plan than Nature's. Is it? Some students of biology and sociology say it is not. They say the holy element of the human union is not the marriage part of it. And they say that we have spoiled the beautly, harmony strength and harmony of the original plan by unwise sentiments, ceremonies and laws.

The natural plan was not a wild abandonment to desire. As a matter of fact the mating life of animals is not nearly so undisciplined as the respectable married life of human beings, nor are their home nearly so much at the mercy of individual caprice. If harmony between partners and faithfulness in the discharge of domestic duties are the test of marital holiness, then most married humans have a lot to learn from the robins.

These are biological facts. We need the powerful searchlight of discussion turned upon our marriages. We are too self-satisfied in our mistakes. It is not reverence which holds us back from an honest analysis of marriage, but fear, conceit, ignorance. It is best to humble ourselves and be ready to learn and improve.
